Good turnout here for swine flu shots

by KURT BAER

More than 65,000 persons turned out for swine flu vaccinations at Northwest Suburban Clinics during the weekend.

The numbers at some clinics were slightly less than health officials were prepared to handle, but the area's participation in the program exceeded the countywide average.

Residents who did not attend one of the clinics in the Northwest suburbs but who still want a shot must go to the Chicago Civic Center, or some other area, since no make-up clinic is planned in the Northwest suburbs.

SHOTS WILL BE given this weekend in the southwest suburbs and this week in Evanston. For exact times and locations, persons should call the Cook County Public Health Dept., 865-6100.

Clinic managers were unanimous in their praise for the scores of volunteers, laymen and professionals, who staffed swine flu inoculation centers in eight Northwest suburbs.

"I can't say enough about the volunteers," said Robert Grossman, public health officer in Schaumburg where about 6,000 persons received swine flu shots. "They came out when we really needed them," he said.

St. Marcelline Catholic Church in Schaumburg was "just jammed" between 5 and 7 p.m. Friday, Grossman said. But the lines moved steadily.

AT ARLINGTON Park Race Track about 13,000 persons received shots during the weekend, the largest number vaccinated at any one clinic in the area.

"That was quite a bit down from our original estimate, but still it wasn't too bad all things considered," said Arlington Heights Health Director George Weinand.

Several persons fainted at the Arlington Park clinic and had to be revived by paramedics assigned to the center, Weinand said.

Arlington Heights returned about 2,000 doses of unused vaccine to the Cook County Public Health Dept.

Mount Prospect, which held its clinic at Randhurst Shopping Center, picked up additional vaccine twice during two days of vaccinations, Said Larry Eils, Mount Prospect public health director.

THERE WERE 10,000 persons vaccinated at Randhurst and the program "came together very nicely," Eils said. Cook County initially allocated 8,000 doses of the monovalent swine flue vaccine for the village.

Jim Demos, Hoffman Estates public health director, said about 6,000 people were vaccinated in a one-day clinic at Hoffman Estates High School. "That's well over our esti-

Hastings primes Dist. 23 pupils for orchestra

by SHERYL JEDLINSKI

Right now it's just a vision, but someday Hersey High School in Arlington Heights will have an orchestra as strong as its marching band.

How soon the dream becomes reality depends a great deal on students in Prospect Heights Dist. 23 who eventually will attend Hersey, so Hersey orchestra director Kendall Hastings already has begun courting these students.

Once a week he goes to Muir, Eisenhower and Sullivan schools in Prospect Heights to teach 17 fourth and fifth graders to play the violin, viola and cello. On Saturday mornings, they meet at Hersey, 1900 E. Thomas Ave., Arlington Heights, for an additional hour of lessons.

IF THE STUDENTS' interest in string music continues, they eventually will provide a base for the formation of a Hersey orchestra, Hastings says. His worry is whether he'll be able to keep the school's orchestra alive thst long.

With only eight members, Hersey's orchestra currently is the smallest in High School Dist. 214, he said. Unlike the district's seven other high schools, Hersey had no base on which to build an orchestra because the students it received from Dist. 23 brought no string music skills with them.

"We regretted not having a string music program, but we couldn't afford to initiate one," said Gerald McGovern, assistant superintendent in Dist. 23. "Then last year, Dist. 214 agreed to provide an orchestra instructor for our students and we were set."

Six fourth grade students enrolled in the string music program last year and McGovern transported them to Hersey twice a week for their lessons. Only two of these students are continuing lessons this year, but Hastings is not discouraged.

"Sure we lost 30 per cent of our students, but this year our enrollment jumped 100 per cent," he said. "The program didn't die and we've got a foot in the door."

CONTINUED GROWTH in the program's enrollment hinges on educating parents that there are other aspects to music besides band, Hastings said. He recalled how four girls wanted to sign up for violin at parents' night, but were discouraged by mothers who told them they wouldn't be able to march in the Hersey band if they did.

"I've threatened to buy wheels for the cellos and bass fiddles so we could have a marching orchestra," Hastings joked. "The public sees the band at football games and parades, but they have to go to a concert to hear the orchestra."

As appealing as many students and parents find the Hersey band, it can have only 175 members, he said. With its beginning, cadet, varsity and jazz bands, Dist. 23 alone has more than 300 students involved in band and when they get to Hersey they have to compete with students from River Trails Dist. 26 and with upperclassmen for membership in the band.

If more elementary and junior high school students participated in orchestra or chorus rather than band, fewer would leave music when they get to high school, Hastings said.

"I'm trying to create consumers of music, not necessarily professional performers," he said. "Maybe the kids will play through high school and a few will continue playing in college, but hopefully all will appreciate music and buy records and go to concerts to keep the professional musicians alive."

County rezoning refusal on golf course upheld

A recommendation from the Cook County Zoning Board of Appeals against rezoning the Rob Roy Golf Course to allow construction of 551 homes there was upheld Monday by the county board.

Cook County Comr. Carl Hansen said, "The basic reason was there was not sufficient justification provided for changing the zoning."

Centex Homes of Illinois, Inc., requested the 190-acre golf course, Euclid Avenue and Wheeling Road, unincorporated Wheeling Township, be rezoned from half to quarter-acre lots for the construction of a $5.7 million subdivision.

CENTEX OFFICIALS had no comment on the board's action and have not said whether they will appeal the decision to the Cook County Circuit Court.

Hansen said the current half-acre and optional open space zoning of the golf course "is beneficial" to surrounding municipalities and agencies interested in preserving the site.

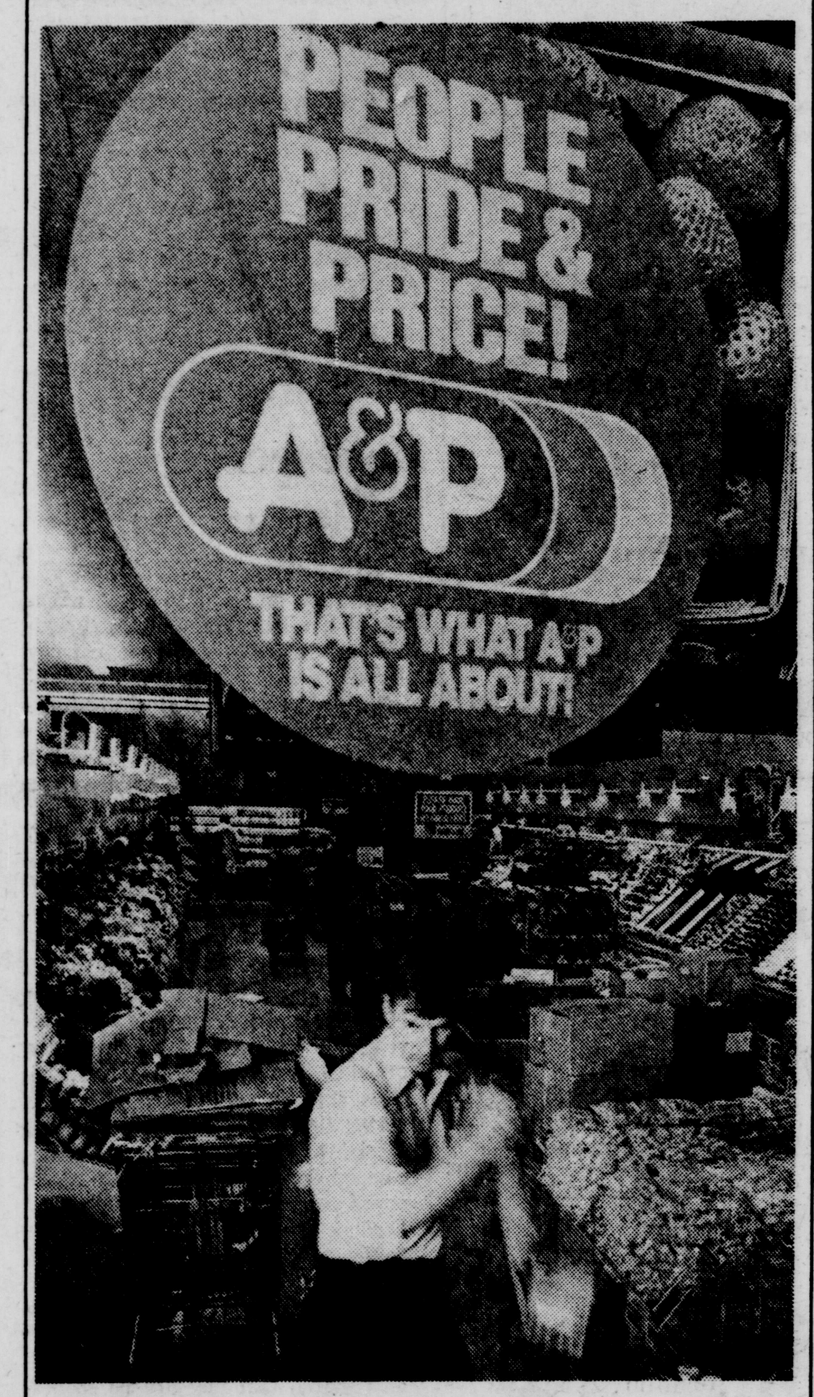
An ad hoc committee was established over the weekend to seek state and federal funding to purchase the golf course and maintain it for recreational purposes.

Representatives of Prospect Heights, Mount Prospect, Wheeling, the county board and the county forest preserve district, area park districts, the Northeastern Illinois Planning Commission and the Illinois Dept. of Local Government Affairs met to discuss the preservation of the site and its possible use for a senior citizens' complex, a golf course and other recreational activities.

$1,000 in clothing stolen at apartment

Burglars stole clothing worth $1,000 from the apartment of an Arlington Heights resident, police reported Monday.

Police said the burglars removed a screen and smashed a window to gain entry to the apartment of Mary J. Thomas, 1025 E. Hintz Rd., between 4:30 p.m. Saturday and 11 a.m. Sunday.



MAKING SURE everything is ready for today's opening of the new A & P store, a local store manager stocks food items. In the Chicago area, 55 National stores that closed Saturday will reopen today as A & P outlets.

A&P takes time to stamp in new food store identity

by MARSHA S. BOSLEY

Location of new stores — Page 7

The sign on the building says A&P, but the sign in the parking lot still says National.

Inside, a handful of employes are busy stamping prices on new house brand merchandise. Yet some products, bearing the National label, are still stocked on the shelves.

Perhaps the scene, to many grocery shoppers, seems confusing. But this transitional atmosphere at the National food store, 1155 Lee St., Des Plaines, has been a typical one in 55 stores throughout metropolitan Chicago where employes since Saturday have been preparing for the changeover to A&P. And today, as doors are opened to thousands of shoppers, the conversion is official.

SURROUNDED BY huge cartons of grocery staples waiting to be displayed at A&P products, store manager Bruno Albiez took a breather to comment on the change.

"We will continue to sell National merchandise until it's phased out. We have until Jan. 15 to sell the merchandise," he said.

Albiez said his main concern was assuring his customers that the National employes would be retained once the store became A&P. The Des Plaines store has been at the Lee Street location since 1968.

"One tremendous plus is that we have been able to keep almost 100 per cent of the National employes," said Dean Ritchey, regional director of marketing for A&P. "And we hope the customers will recognize it."

AS HE PROCEEDED to mark bags of candy and throw them neatly in place on the shelves, Albiez continued to speak of the transition. He said although the store has taken on a new name, special services offered previously by National — including check cashing and a 5 per cent discount for senior citizens — will be retained. The A&P store also will honor Master Charge cards as did the former Nationals.

Other aspects of the store that will remain intact are the delicatessen, bakery and floral department.

Ritchey said for the customers' sake, "We are changing nothing for the time being on the physical set up of the stores." He added probably the hardest adjustment for shoppers will be adoting to the new "house brand" labels.

In determining which National stores they would replace, A&P officials said they chose large volume stores carrying about 3,500 different products.

Carter sees 5 to 7% rate of jobless

PLAINS, Ga. (UPI) — Jimmy Carter Monday said he anticipates a jobless rate of 5 to 7 per cent during the first years of his administration as he works to balance economic recovery with no new rise in the rate of inflation.

One of Carter's main campaign promises was to work to cut unemployment. He frequently criticized President Ford for concentrating on stemming inflation while ignoring the plight of America's unemployed.

At a news conference near his home town, the President-elect also said a new strategic arms limitation agreement with the Soviet Union "will be a top item" on his agenda.

Carter said an unemployment rate of between 5 and 7 per cent was "a likely prospect" during his first few years. He also said he is not now inclined to ask for the resignation of Federal Reserve Chairman Arthur Burns, whose tight money policies he and other Democrats campaigned against.

Burns, TERM as Federal Reserve Chairman expires in 1978 and his term as a governor on the board is up in 1984. He is not bound to resign, as are Cabinet officers.

Carter said in answer to a question that "while my first inclination of course would be to work with him harmoniously and let him stay on as chairman" he would not rule out asking Burns to step down.

A Federal Reserve official, Frank O'Brien, said, "There's no formal process for bringing about a resignation. To the best of my knowledge no president has ever asked a chairman of the board to resign before the end of his term."

Carter also made his first staff appointment, announcing Jody Powell will continue as press secretary.

Despite the indication his economic recovery program would be gradual, Carter said he would not permit the nation's economic condition to delay his programs for tax and welfare reform and for national health insurance.

Carter was not specific on what he would do about unemployment or taxes, but he repeated his campaign pledge he could reduce the jobless rate from the current 7.9 per cent to 4 or 4.5 per cent by the end of his first term.

ASKED IF THAT meant tolerating unemployment of 5 to 7 per cent during the first years of his term, Carter said, "I would guess that would be a likely prospect."

He said once employment dips to 5.5 per cent or less, "You have to start making tradeoffs" to avoid inflation.

Carter said he would meet with Burns and with Cabinet officers when he visits Washington next week. Asked if he would ask Burns to resign, Carter said such a decision would best be left until after the meeting. But he said his current feeling is that he would not do so, especially since Burns has said he will not resign.

"I would guess I could work with Mr. Burns if he should stay on," Carter said.

On foreign affairs, Carter said he might cut back aid to Chile and other countries that do not protect human rights and that his administration will keep up efforts to get a new Strategic Arms Limitation Treaty with Moscow.

Asked about the nuclear arms negotiations, Carter said he hopes the Ford administration will keep working on it and he hopes to have a full new agreement by next fall.

"I will put that as a top item on my agenda," he said.

BUT CARTER said he would not

Palatine supports Tully tax-cut plan

The Village of Palatine Monday night became the first municipality in Cook County to go on record supporting a plan by Assessor Thomas Tully to lower assessments on single-family homes. In a unanimous vote the village board approved a resolution urging the Cook County Board to adopt the Tully plan, which would reduce from 22 per cent to 16 per cent of market value the assessment on single-family homes. Tully has said the reduction will substantially lower tax increases caused by inflated home prices.

Prostitution hearings delayed

Pretrial hearings for a Schaumburg man and two women facing prostitution charges Monday were continued to Dec. 20 in the Niles branch of Cook County Circuit Court. Frank Swicker, 36, of 1312 Wakeby Ln., Schaumburg and Alice Austin, 20, of 846 Algonquin Rd., Mount Prospect, are charged with keeping a place of prostitution. Kim Lee, 20, of Chicago, is charged with prostitution. Ms. Austin was arrested Sept. 28 at County Photo Two, 2420 Oakton St., Elk Grove Township, and Swicker was arrested Sept. 27 at County Photo One in Leyden Township. Ms. Lee also was arrested at County Photo One. Police said at the photo studio customers rented cameras and entered a room with a nude or partially undressed model where a price was set for an act of prostitution. The three arrested were part of a countywide crackdown that netted 26 arrests in five establishments.

Skowron teams up with Dems

The Democratic Club of Schaumburg Township, seeking to make its presence felt in what long has been considered a Republican area, has named Bill (Moose) Skowron, former Yankee and White Sox first baseman, to develop an athletic program it plans to start next spring. Skowron, a 1½-year Schaumburg resident, was named because he is a club member and has experience in athletics, William Shlifka, club president, said. The club, the second Democratic organization in the township, was formed this summer and worked this fall for candidates backed by Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley.

Guttilla suit asks reinstatement

Former Wheeling Police Chief Peter Guttilla has renewed his legal efforts to be reinstated as village police chief. In an amended complaint filed Friday in U.S. District Court, Guttilla contends that village officials should have guaranteed him a fair hearing before his removal as police chief. The complaint asks $250,000 in punitive damages. Guttilla, 60, filed suit in January contending he was fired in July 1975 without cause by the village. He also had charged he was denied a public hearing in violation of state statutes and due process of law.

Fraud case continued to Nov. 29

Pretrial hearings for an Arlington Heights couple, charged with mail fraud after they allegedly obtained $150,000 in merchandise by using phony credit cards, was continued Monday to Nov. 29 in U.S. District Court. Donald E. Davis, 45, of 1034 S. Pine St., and his wife, Carol, 27, have been charged with using at least 20 credit cards under aliases to bilk $150,000 out of 11 firms. The couple has pleaded innocent.

33-month battle with amnesia

Man returns from 'legal death'

SEDALIA, Mo. (UPI) — Harry A. Goldberg, declared dead and buried six months ago, was sorting through a tangle of problems Monday trying to start a new life.

Goldberg, who says he suffered spots of amnesia during the 33 months he was missing, now knows who he is, but the confusion which surrounds his disappearance is far from over.

Goldberg must remarry the wife who thought he had abandoned her, process papers to revoke his legal death, return life insurance money and sort out a number of business debts left when he disappeared in January 1974.

The identity of the body in Goldberg's grave may never be determined.

AUTHORITIES SAID he was several thousand dollars in debt when he vanished.

"It's not all clear, I'd put it that way," Pettis County Sheriff Emmiett Fairfax said of Goldberg's story.

An old acquaintance spotted Goldberg working in a lakeside lodge at Forsyth, Mo., and the man who called himself Harold Alexander Gordon wrote Irene Goldberg saying he wanted to find out who he really was. She drove to Forsyth Nov. 7, and they returned to their home in the central Missouri town of Sedalia that day.

Goldberg, 67, who owned restaurants in Sedalia and Tipton, Mo., was on his way home from a business trip in January 1974, when he pulled over to the side of the highway for a nap. He said that was the last thing he remembers clearly.

Nine months after her husband's disappearance, Irene Goldberg filed for a divorce which was granted in November, 1974.

"I'D RATHER not talk about that," she said in a telephone interview. "Something had to be done to set my life straight again."

When a decomposed body was found in the Missouri River near Kansas City last April, Goldberg's son, Bill, identified it as his father's based on superficial similarities.

On May 6, Goldberg was declared dead and the next day a funeral was held and the body buried in a plot at Mount Washington Cemetery in Kansas City, Mo.

The body was too decomposed to take fingerprints, and Jackson County Coroner Dr. Bonita Peterson said there are no plans to exhume it unless another missing person inquiry should warrant it.

Interstate celebrates 20th year

Illinois completes I-72 stretch

by STEVE BROWN

Two decades ago, the interstate highway system was just a figment of the motorist's imagination as he was stalled behind a haywagon on a narrow two-lane road.

Tuesday, as state officials snipped the ribbon on a 93-mile section of I-72 between Springfield and Monticello, the four-lane, limited access system of roads, which stretches for 1,700 miles through Illinois and 38,000 miles nationally, is taken for granted.

"It was a briefer ceremony than usual," said Illinois Dept. of Transportation representative Richard Adorjan. He said that no special attention was paid despite this week being the 20th anniversary of the opening of the first stretch of interstate highway.

It was in 1956 that Kansas officials opened eight miles of highway west of Topeka. Less than a year later, Illinois motorists were able to drive along 2.8 miles of interstate highway in Kankakee County.

THAT WAS when the network was called the National Defense System of Interstate Highways. It also was the time a Downstate stretch of road cost only $628,000.

Now the name is shorter, but the cost is much higher. Adorjan estimated that a mile of interstate highway costs $2.4 million in rural areas and more when it runs through more congested cities.

Adorjan also said while 80 per cent of the road network is finished nationally, the remaining 20 per cent will cost as much as the rest of the entire system.

In Illinois, the interstate system is 99 per cent completed, Adorjan said. There is, however, a new worry about what government agency will finance the maintenance costs.

ILLINOIS DEPT. of Transportation Sec. Langhorne Bond is working on a national level to have the federal government pick up part of the tab.

While the federal government paid for 90 per cent of the $62 billion system; no federal funds are provided for repaving and repairs to the miles of smooth concrete.

"We believe the federal government has a responsibility for maintenance," Adorjan added.

While 99 per cent of the Illinois system is finished, work is still underway on a bypass around Peoria and sections of I-55 to replace the aging U.S. Rte. 66 which crosses the state from Chicago to St. Louis before heading west to Los Angeles.

THE 1 PER CENT of the system remaining incomplete does not include the controversial Crosstown Expressway, Adorjan said.

"That would have been I-494," he said. Endless political wrangling between Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley and Gov. Daniel Walker blocked construction of the expressway.

The incomplete sections include a bypass around East St. Louis and a bridge across the Mississippi River connecting with I-270 in St. Louis.

Supplemental freeways, like the extension of Ill. Rte. 53 north of Dundee Road is about all that is on the horizon of expressway construction system, but it may be some time before those projects begin.

End of world foreseen by religious cult

YAKIMA, Wash. (UPI) — A member of a religious cult charged with the beating death of a 3-year-old boy it believed was possessed by the devil testified Monday the group had expected destruction of the world.

Velma Cunningham, 45, one of five persons charged with first-degree manslaughter and second-degree assault in the death of David Weilbacher, said the cult earlier this year prepared to flee to Texas to await destruction of the world by an Antichrist.

The appearance of the Antichrist, whom they believed to be the late President John Kennedy, wwas revealed to her husband, Edward Leon Cunningham, 51, in one of several visions, she said.

SHE SAID MEMBERS sold or got rid of all material possessions including the television set. A newspaper subscription also was stopped because there was no need for the household to know what was happening in the world.

"God would reveal to us anything we needed to know," she said.

Before her testimony, the defendants moved that the jury be sequestered because of publicity and for a mistrial on grounds the jury already had been exposed to prejudicial newspaper stories.

One defendant, Carolyn Cunningham, 27, accused the prosecutor of "letting the press run wild with imagination and not the facts." Both motions were denied.

THE DEFENDANTS have cited Biblical guidance for their acts in the killing of the boy, whose decaying body was found in a sealed bedroom of a Yakima home in September. He had been dead for about two months.

The prosecution rested Saturday after Oregon state medical examiner William Brady testified he found bruises on the arms, legs, bottom of the feet and lower back of the boy's body.

Debra Marie Weilbacher, 20, David's mother, and Lorraine Edwards 20, also are defendants.

Daley asks record $1.2 billion budget

by United Press International

Mayor Richard J. Daley Monday asked the City Council to approve a record city budget of more than $1.2 billion for 1977 that includes pay raises for all city employes and a slight cut in property taxes.

The pay rasies will range from 3 per cent for white collar workers to 5.5 per cent for the majority of police and firefighters.

The budget provides for a drop of slightly more than $600,000 in the property tax levy, which translates to a savings of about $1 a year for property owners, city budget director Edward Bedore said.

The $1.2 billion proposed budget is an increase of 2.9 per cent, or $34 million, over the 1976 budget.

The proposal includes an increase in water rates for the first time since 1973.

Palatine supports Tully tax-cut plan

The Village of Palatine Monday night became the first municipality in Cook County to go on record supporting a plan by Assessor Thomas Tully to lower assessments on single-family homes. In a unanimous vote the village board approved a resolution urging the Cook County Board to adopt the Tully plan, which would reduce from 22 per cent to 16 per cent of market value the assessment on single-family homes. Tully has said the reduction will substantially lower tax increases caused by inflated home prices.

Prostitution hearings delayed

Pretrial hearings for a Schaumburg man and two women facing prostitution charges Monday were continued to Dec. 20 in the Niles branch of Cook County Circuit Court. Frank Swicker, 36, of 1312 Wakeby Ln., Schaumburg and Alice Austin, 20, of 846 Algonquin Rd., Mount Prospect, are charged with keeping a place of prostitution. Kim Lee, 20, of Chicago, is charged with prostitution. Ms. Austin was arrested Sept. 28 at County Photo Two, 2420 Oakton St., Elk Grove Township, and Swicker was arrested Sept. 27 at County Photo One in Leyden Township. Ms. Lee also was arrested at County Photo One. Police said at the photo studio customers rented cameras and entered a room with a nude or partially undressed model where a price was set for an act of prostitution. The three arrested were part of a countywide crackdown that netted 26 arrests in five establishments.

Skowron teams up with Dems

The Democratic Club of Schaumburg Township, seeking to make its presence felt in what long has been considered a Republican area, has named Bill (Moose) Skowron, former Yankee and White Sox first baseman, to develop an athletic program it plans to start next spring. Skowron, a 1½-year Schaumburg resident, was named because he is a club member and has experience in athletics, William Shlifka, club president, said. The club, the second Democratic organization in the township, was formed this summer and worked this fall for candidates backed by Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley.

Guttilla suit asks reinstatement

Former Wheeling Police Chief Peter Guttilla has renewed his legal efforts to be reinstated as village police chief. In an amended complaint filed Friday in U.S. District Court, Guttilla contends that village officials should have guaranteed him a fair hearing before his removal as police chief. The complaint asks $250,000 in punitive damages. Guttilla, 60, filed suit in January contending he was fired in July 1975 without cause by the village. He also had charged he was denied a public hearing in violation of state statutes and due process of law.

Fraud case continued to Nov. 29

Pretrial hearings for an Arlington Heights couple, charged with mail fraud after they allegedly obtained $150,000 in merchandise by using phony credit cards, was continued Monday to Nov. 29 in U.S. District Court. Donald E. Davis, 45, of 1034 S. Pine St., and his wife, Carol, 27, have been charged with using at least 20 credit cards under aliases to bilk $150,000 out of 11 firms. The couple has pleaded innocent.

33-month battle with amnesia

Man returns from 'legal death'

SEDALIA, Mo. (UPI) — Harry A. Goldberg, declared dead and buried six months ago, was sorting through a tangle of problems Monday trying to start a new life.

Goldberg, who says he suffered spots of amnesia during the 33 months he was missing, now knows who he is, but the confusion which surrounds his disappearance is far from over.

Goldberg must remarry the wife who thought he had abandoned her, process papers to revoke his legal death, return life insurance money and sort out a number of business debts left when he disappeared in January 1974.

The identity of the body in Goldberg's grave may never be determined.

AUTHORITIES SAID he was several thousand dollars in debt when he vanished.

"It's not all clear, I'd put it that way," Pettis County Sheriff Emmiett Fairfax said of Goldberg's story.

An old acquaintance spotted Goldberg working in a lakeside lodge at Forsyth, Mo., and the man who called himself Harold Alexander Gordon wrote Irene Goldberg saying he wanted to find out who he really was. She drove to Forsyth Nov. 7, and they returned to their home in the central Missouri town of Sedalia that day.

Goldberg, 67, who owned restaurants in Sedalia and Tipton, Mo., was on his way home from a business trip in January 1974, when he pulled over to the side of the highway for a nap. He said that was the last thing he remembers clearly.

Nine months after her husband's disappearance, Irene Goldberg filed for a divorce which was granted in November, 1974.

"I'D RATHER not talk about that," she said in a telephone interview. "Something had to be done to set my life straight again."

When a decomposed body was found in the Missouri River near Kansas City last April, Goldberg's son, Bill, identified it as his father's based on superficial similarities.

On May 6, Goldberg was declared dead and the next day a funeral was held and the body buried in a plot at Mount Washington Cemetery in Kansas City, Mo.

Arab army takes Beirut peacefully

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — A powerful Syrian-dominated Arab army overran Beirut peacefully Monday. Troops separated rival Christian and Moslem militias, swept away barriers dividing east and west and made the capital one city again.

Flowers festooned tanks and artillery and Beirut's women and children clapped and waved as the armored columns entered the city. Even some leftist militiamen, who had been the Syrian troops' bitter foes, welcomed the soldiers with kisses, shouts of approval and shots fired in the air.

The "Operation Beirut" force of about 6,000 men plowed straight through some of he bloodiest battle sites of Lebanon's 19-month civil war, including the southern suburbs, the port, the commercial district, the hotel district and the museum on the "green line" that separated the capital's Christian and Moslem districts.

RIVAL GUNMEN pounded away at each other until the Arab force moved in at dawn, but they faded from sight before the firepower of the Arab peace-keeping troops.

Only two incidents — a sniper and a land mine — disrupted the methodical, well coordinated sweep into Beirut.

A sniper in a neighborhood of high-rise apartments controlled by Christian rightist troops fired on advancing Syrian troops, who returned fire and killed him.

A LAND MINE that exploded in the city's commercial district wounded four civilians and three Syrian soldiers, one seriously, an official for the Arab forces said.

The columns of troops, mainly Syrians, were leavened by a sprinkling of Saudi Arabian, Sudanese and Libyan solidiers who had been stationed in the Beirut area since June.

The final push into the heart of the city, completed between dawn and noon, capped a drive by Syrian forces from the central mountains east of Beirut through leftist and rightist territory to the city gates last Wednesday.

AFTER POSTIONS around the capital have been consolidated, the security plan of President Elias Sarkis called for the Arab army to push north of Tripoli and south to Sidon.

No Arab peace-keeping troops were expected to move beyond the Litani river in the south, since Israel has repeatedly declared it would not tolerate a large Arab force near its northern border.

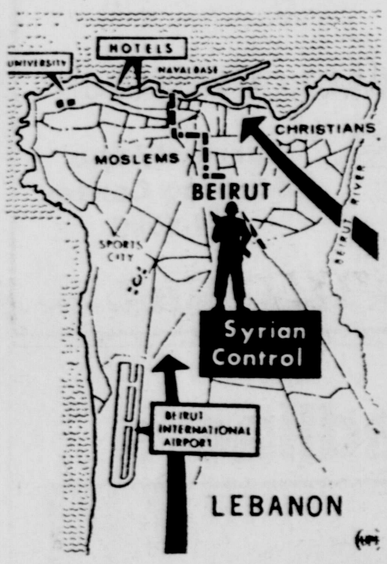
An officer told residents of southeastern Tayyouneh, "We are here for peace only. We are not with one group against another, east or west. We are for Lebanon."

AT THE "GREEN line" that has split the city in two for months, Moslem and Christians walked together in the rubble of collapsed buildings and spent shell casings on a stretch of road whose once stately street lights have become so bullet-riddled they sag like wilted flowers.

A journalist overheard a conversation between a reunited Palestinian and a right-wing National Liberal — friends in the past turned into mortal enemies by the war.

"Elie, do you remember the Grad missiles that kept fallng on the internal security building near the Hotel Dieu Hospital" bragged the Palestinian. "I was the one who fired them."

"Oh really" replied the Christian rightist. "Well, I've been shelling the Barbir hospital so often that now I can fire mortars without aiming and still hit it."



A SYRIAN T-54 tank of the Arab peace-keeping force rumbles into Beirut's shattered commercial district Monday as the Syrian-dominated force swept into the capital. Women and children clapped and waved as the columns entered the city.

Parents held responsible

County passes vandalism rule

by LYNN ASINOF

Vandals in unincorporated Cook County and their parents can be fined up to $1,000 while the vandals can be placed under court supervision for up to one year.

The Cook County Board Monday unanimously approved a vandalism ordinance designed to make parents responsible for any destruction of property by their children.

The ordinance, proposed by suburban Comr. Mary McDonald, will allow the courts to penalize vandals without putting them through the juvenile justice system and leaving them without a permanent police record.

"WE HOPE that this will cut down vandalism," Mrs. McDonald, a Republican said. She said the ordinance was prompted by "excessive damage in the forest preserve" caused by vandals.

Persons arrested and put under court supervision for vandalism also may be required to:

- Work, pursue a course of study or seek vocational training.
- Undergo medical or psychiatric treatment or treatment for drug addiction or alcholism.
- Make restitution for the damage done, not to exceed $1,000.
- If a minor, to reside with his parents or in a foster home, attend school, attend a non-residential youth program or contribute to his own support at home or in a foster home.

A CONVICTED VANDAL can clear his record by completing court supervision without a repeat offense. Any repeat, however, will mean that his police record will show the vandalism charge.

Mrs. McDonald said the ordinance gives the courts great flexibility in administering penalties. "It's up to the judge," she said, noting penalties can be tailored to the offender.

Many parents have abdicated responsibility for their children's behavior, Mrs. McDonald said. Parents now will be required to attend every hearing at which their child may be charged, she said.

The ordinance holds parents responsible for failing to prevent vandalism. A parent, however, can defend himself by proving that he "exercised his duty to restrain the minor from committing the act" but was unsuccessful.

THE PARENTS will be liable for any fine or condition or restitution imposed by the court upon a minor for acts of vandalism.

Mrs. McDonald said the ordinance was modeled after vandalism ordinances in several suburbs. Arlington Heights, Palatine, Mount Prospect, Des Plaines and Schaumburg have such ordinances.

County Board Pres. George W. Dunne said the ordinance will apply to all areas of unincorporated Cook County and county forest preserves, but will not apply to forest preserve areas lying within village or city limits.

Panel begins assassinations inquiry

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House committee on assassinations, meeting formally for the first time, announced Monday that a task force of 170 persons will conduct what it hoped will be the final, definitive investigation of the murders of John Kennedy and Martin Luther King.

Rep. Thomas M. Downing, committee chairman until he retires at the end of this year, told reporters after a two-hour closed session, "We're going down every street until we get a blind alley . . . Congress mandated us to do a thorough job."

Walter Fauntroy, Democratic delegate from the District of Columbia and newly named chairman of a subcommittee to investigate the King slaying, said: "We want to find out what the evidence is and follow it where it leads, no matter where."

A SUBCOMMITTEE concentrating on the Kennedy killing 13 years ago this month will be headed by Rep. Richardson Preyer, D-N.C.

Downing said the full committee had asked the FBI and CIA for all documents and memoranda pertaining to the assassinations. An aide told UPI that a two-foot-high stack already had come in from the CIA.

Downing and Sprague said they had not yet seen a reported 1964 memo from FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover in 1964 which stated that Lee Harvey Oswald told Cuban officials he was going to kill President Kennedy more than a month before he actually did so.

Oswald was known to have visited the Cuban Embassy in Mexico City before Kennedy was shot.

THE HOOVER MEMO, according to press reports, was found after a new search of bureau files at the committee's request.

Rep. Christopher J. Dodd, D-Conn., another member of the committee, said the panel should "make it one of its first orders of business to obtain and evaluate" that document.

Downing, who is expected to be replaced as chairman by Rep. Henry B. Gonzalez, D-Tex., when the new Congress convenes in January, said an investigative crew of 170 "sounds like a lot of people."

But he said it actually is a "bare bones staff" for the immense job, compared to that used by the Warren Commission which investigated the Kennedy killing.

THE WARREN Commission concluded that Oswald acted alone in assassinating Kennedy. Evidence since indicates the FBI and CIA knew far more about Oswald's Cuban connections and had other background which the Warren panel and subsequent congressional investigative bodies never saw.

The committee spent the afternoon watching films of the actual Kennedy shooting.

One film strip has been interpreted by some as showing one or more people, possibly with rifles, standing on a grassy knoll overlooking the Kennedy motorcade at the time of the shooting. But Downing, after viewing the film again Monday said, "I didn't see any people on the hill."

The committee was scheduled Tuesday morning to view slides and pictures taken immediately after King was killed.

Vietnam's bid to join UN rejected on vote by U.S.

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — The United States Monday vetoed the application of Vietnam to become the 146th member of the United Nations.

As expected, Ambassador William Scranton cast the 18th U.S. veto in UN history, carrying out Washington's determination to keep Vietnam out of the world organization until Hanoi gives an accounting of 800 American servicemen missing in action in the Vietnam war.

The veto went against appeals from 32 member nations and a petition from 20,000 Americans to give Vietnam membership.

The Security Council vote was 14-1 in favor of recommending Vietnam for admission by the General Assembly, but the negative U.S. vote killed the resolution sponsored by 10 council members, including the Soviet Union, China and France.

Arab army takes Beirut peacefully

A SYRIAN T-54 tank of the Arab peace-keeping force rumbles into Beirut's shattered commercial district Monday as the Syrian-dominated force swept into the capital. Women and children clapped and waved as the columns entered the city.

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — A powerful Syrian-dominated Arab army overran Beirut peacefully Monday. Troops separated rival Christian and Moslem militias, swept away barriers dividing east and west and made the capital one city again.

Flowers festooned tanks and artillery and Beirut's women and children clapped and waved as the armored columns entered the city. Even some leftist militiamen, who had been the Syrian troops' bitter foes, welcomed the soldiers with kisses, shouts of approval and shots fired in the air.

The "Operation Beirut" force of about 6,000 men plowed straight through some of he bloodiest battle sites of Lebanon's 19-month civil war, including the southern suburbs, the port, the commercial district, the hotel district and the museum on the "green line" that separated the capital's Christian and Moslem districts.

RIVAL GUNMEN pounded away at each other until the Arab force moved in at dawn, but they faded from sight before the firepower of the Arab peace-keeping troops.

Only two incidents — a sniper and a land mine — disrupted the methodical, well coordinated sweep into Beirut.

A sniper in a neighborhood of high-rise apartments controlled by Christian rightist troops fired on advancing Syrian troops, who returned fire and killed him.

A LAND MINE that exploded in the city's commercial district wounded four civilians and three Syrian soldiers, one seriously, an official for the Arab forces said.

The columns of troops, mainly Syrians, were leavened by a sprinkling of Saudi Arabian, Sudanese and Libyan solidiers who had been stationed in the Beirut area since June.

The final push into the heart of the city, completed between dawn and noon, capped a drive by Syrian forces from the central mountains east of Beirut through leftist and rightist territory to the city gates last Wednesday.

AFTER POSTIONS around the capital have been consolidated, the security plan of President Elias Sarkis called for the Arab army to push north of Tripoli and south to Sidon.

No Arab peace-keeping troops were expected to move beyond the Litani river in the south, since Israel has repeatedly declared it would not tolerate a large Arab force near its northern border.

An officer told residents of southeastern Tayyouneh, "We are here for peace only. We are not with one group against another, east or west. We are for Lebanon."

AT THE "GREEN line" that has split the city in two for months, Moslem and Christians walked together in the rubble of collapsed buildings and spent shell casings on a stretch of road whose once stately street lights have become so bullet-riddled they sag like wilted flowers.

A journalist overheard a conversation between a reunited Palestinian and a right-wing National Liberal — friends in the past turned into mortal enemies by the war.

"Elie, do you remember the Grad missiles that kept falling on the internal security building near the Hotel Dieu Hospital" bragged the Palestinian. "I was the one who fired them."

"Oh really" replied the Christian rightist. "Well, I've been shelling the Barbir hospital so often that now I can fire mortars without aiming and still hit it."

Parents held responsible

County passes vandalism rule

by LYNN ASINOF

Vandals in unincorporated Cook County and their parents can be fined up to $1,000 while the vandals can be placed under court supervision for up to one year.

The Cook County Board Monday unanimously approved a vandalism ordinance designed to make parents responsible for any destruction of property by their children.

The ordinance, proposed by suburban Comr. Mary McDonald, will allow the courts to penalize vandals without putting them through the juvenile justice system and leaving them without a permanent police record.

"WE HOPE that this will cut down vandalism," Mrs. McDonald, a Republican said. She said the ordinance was prompted by "excessive damage in the forest preserve" caused by vandals.

Persons arrested and put under court supervision for vandalism also may be required to:

- Work, pursue a course of study or seek vocational training.
- Undergo medical or psychiatric treatment or treatment for drug addiction or alcholism.
- Make restitution for the damage done, not to exceed $1,000.
- If a minor, to reside with his parents or in a foster home, attend school, attend a non-residential youth program or contribute to his own support at home or in a foster home.

A CONVICTED VANDAL can clear his record by completing court supervision without a repeat offense. Any repeat, however, will mean that his police record will show the vandalism charge.

Mrs. McDonald said the ordinance gives the courts great flexibility in administering penalties. "It's up to the judge," she said, noting penalties can be tailored to the offender.

Many parents have abdicated responsibility for their children's behavior, Mrs. McDonald said. Parents now will be required to attend every hearing at which their child may be charged, she said.

The ordinance holds parents responsible for failing to prevent vandalism. A parent, however, can defend himself by proving that he "exercised his duty to restrain the minor from committing the act" but was unsuccessful.

THE PARENTS will be liable for any fine or condition or restitution imposed by the court upon a minor for acts of vandalism.

Mrs. McDonald said the ordinance was modeled after vandalism ordinances in several suburbs. Arlington Heights, Palatine, Mount Prospect, Des Plaines and Schaumburg have such ordinances.

County Board Pres. George W. Dunne said the ordinance will apply to all areas of unincorporated Cook County and county forest preserves, but will not apply to forest preserve areas lying within village or city limits.

Panel begins assassinations inquiry

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House committee on assassinations, meeting formally for the first time, announced Monday that a task force of 170 persons will conduct what it hoped will be the final, definitive investigation of the murders of John Kennedy and Martin Luther King.

Rep. Thomas M. Downing, committee chairman until he retires at the end of this year, told reporters after a two-hour closed session, "We're going down every street until we get a blind alley . . . Congress mandated us to do a thorough job."

Walter Fauntroy, Democratic delegate from the District of Columbia and newly named chairman of a subcommittee to investigate the King slaying, said: "We want to find out what the evidence is and follow it where it leads, no matter where."

A SUBCOMMITTEE concentrating on the Kennedy killing 13 years ago this month will be headed by Rep. Richardson Preyer, D-N.C.

Downing said the full committee had asked the FBI and CIA for all documents and memoranda pertaining to the assassinations. An aide told UPI that a two-foot-high stack already had come in from the CIA.

Downing and Sprague said they had not yet seen a reported 1964 memo from FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover in 1964 which stated that Lee Harvey Oswald told Cuban officials he was going to kill President Kennedy more than a month before he actually did so.

Oswald was known to have visited the Cuban Embassy in Mexico City before Kennedy was shot.

THE HOOVER MEMO, according to press reports, was found after a new search of bureau files at the committee's request.

Rep. Christopher J. Dodd, D-Conn., another member of the committee, said the panel should "make it one of its first orders of business to obtain and evaluate" that document.

Downing, who is expected to be replaced as chairman by Rep. Henry B. Gonzalez, D-Tex., when the new Congress convenes in January, said an investigative crew of 170 "sounds like a lot of people."

But he said it actually is a "bare bones staff" for the immense job, compared to that used by the Warren Commission which investigated the Kennedy killing.

THE WARREN Commission concluded that Oswald acted alone in assassinating Kennedy. Evidence since indicates the FBI and CIA knew far more about Oswald's Cuban connections and had other background which the Warren panel and subsequent congressional investigative bodies never saw.

The committee spent the afternoon watching films of the actual Kennedy shooting.

One film strip has been interpreted by some as showing one or more people, possibly with rifles, standing on a grassy knoll overlooking the Kennedy motorcade at the time of the shooting. But Downing, after viewing the film again Monday said, "I didn't see any people on the hill."

The committee was scheduled Tuesday morning to view slides and pictures taken immediately after King was killed.

Vietnam's bid to join UN rejected on vote by U.S.

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — The United States Monday vetoed the application of Vietnam to become the 146th member of the United Nations.

As expected, Ambassador William Scranton cast the 18th U.S. veto in UN history, carrying out Washington's determination to keep Vietnam out of the world organization until Hanoi gives an accounting of 800 American servicemen missing in action in the Vietnam war.

The veto went against appeals from 32 member nations and a petition from 20,000 Americans to give Vietnam membership.

The Security Council vote was 14-1 in favor of recommending Vietnam for admission by the General Assembly, but the negative U.S. vote killed the resolution sponsored by 10 council members, including the Soviet Union, China and France.

'Teeth bite' figure denies slaying

Confessed rape slayer Richard Macek, a suspect in two "teeth bite" murders, has denied he killed Sally Kandel, 14, beaten to death near her Carol Stream home in September 1972, a Du Page County official said Monday. Mark Kowalczyk, the acting state's attorney, said Du Page County investigators interviewed Macek last week in a psychiatric unit of the Wisconsin state penitentiary in Waupun. "He indicated he did not do it," Kowalczyk said. "He was very helpful. He gave us information that may lead to finding out where he was" on the day of Miss Kandel's murder.

Another man, Richard Milone, 24, Wheaton, was convicted in 1973 of the Kandel slaying, and the conviction was upheld Friday by the Illinois Appellate Court. The prosecution's case was built in part on testimony of dental experts who said a teeth mark on Miss Kandel's right thigh matched Milone's teeth.

AMA gives $25,000 for TV study

The American Medical Assn. has granted $25,000 to a survey group examining violence on prime time television, it announced Monday in Chicago. In June the AMA House of Delegates at its annual convention endorsed a position that TV violence is an environmental hazard to the health of American children. An announcement from Dr. James H. Sammons, executive vice president, said the AMA grant was made to the National Citizens Committee for Broadcasting, based in Washington and working at documenting the amount of violence portrayed in prime time network television showing.

Firemen talks remain stalled

Attempts to set procedures for further contract negotiations between Springfield and local firemen's union stalled Monday in a five-day-old strike which has landed four union leaders in jail. Sangamon County Associate Circuit Judge Richard J. Cadagin jailed the firemen Sunday for disobeying a temporary restraining order barring them from striking. After all-day communications Monday between attorneys for the city and Local 37 of the International Assn. of Firefighters failed to turn up agreeable guidelines for further negotiations, Cadagin postponed a hearing on the situation until Tuesday afternoon.

"I don't expect anything to be done tonight," Cadagin told reporters in announcing the hearing delay. Union attorney Thomas Sonneborn said he and city attorney Bradley Blodgett did not discuss "substantive issues" in their meetings Monday.

'Hot' underwear claim denied

John S. Ervin was so burned up — literally — by some thermal underwear he bought at Sears, Roebuck & Co., he sued the department store for negligence. But the Illinois Supreme Court ruled Monday his claim has no foundation. Ervin, a welder from Alton, was wearing a pair of Sears thermal underwear in 1963 when a spark from his torch dropped down his coveralls and "lodged in plaintiff's groin area," according to the court's opinion.

Ervin's underwear ignited, and before coworkers could pull him from the 400-foot, narrow shaft in which he was working, Ervin was engulfed by flames and severely burned. Ervin went to court, claiming Sears failed to warn customers the thermal underwear was highly flammable. The supreme court, however, agreed with a lower court jury finding that "the product in question was not unreasonably dangerous in regard to flammability."

Chamber supports Walker vetoes

The president of the Illinois State Chamber of Commerce said Monday the legislature should not restore Gov. Daniel Walker's spending cuts. Otherwise, the new administration will be "saddled with huge deficits," said Lester W. Brann Jr., head of the 19,000-member business group. The General Assembly returns Wednesday to consider Walker's 81 vetoes. Forty-eight are reductions totaling some $500 million in the $10.4 billion fiscal 1977 budget sent him by the legislature.

Attorney held in contempt, fined

Cook County Circuit Court Judge Saul A. Epton found attorney Isaiah Skipp Gant in contempt of court Monday and fined him $1,000 for refusing to begin a narcotics case which has been pending for four years. Gant, who walked out of court, was taken into custody by sheriff's deputies and ordered to jail until he paid the fine. Epton said Nathanial Spurlark, 67, arrested on Chicago's South Side in August 1972 on charges of possessing $2 million in drugs, had been through 10 judges and was granted more than 70 continuances.

Gant said Spurlark told him he did not want him as an attorney. The judge said it was "indecent" the case had not yet come to trial. He said Gant was in "direct contempt of court" for refusing to defend Spurlark.

Epton said it was wrong for Gant and his law partners, R. Eugene Pincham and T. Lee Boyd Jr., to have more business than they could handle within a reasonable time.

Only enough vaccine for 1 in 10 kids: U.S.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In the latest setback for President Ford's swine flu immunization program, the U.S. Public Health Service said Monday only one in every 10 American children may get the shots because of a vaccine shortage.

There will be enough vaccine, however, to immunize chronically ill children between 3 and 18, the health service said.

The agency also announced that its advisory committee on immunization practices now recommends a second swine flu shot, four weeks after the first shot, for young adults aged 18-24.

"WHILE IT IS clear that we have the formula to provide a safe and effective vaccine for children, it is also clear that not nearly enough will be available before the influenza season nears its end," said Theodore Cooper, assistant Health, Education and Welfare secretary.

He said only 8 million doses of the split-virus vaccine suitable for children will be available before February.

Since two innocuations would be necessary for each youngster, only 4 million of America's 40 million children between ages 3-18 could be immunized. These shots also are to be given four weeks apart.

Cooper has nursed the President's $135 million swine flu campaign through malpractice insurance problems, scattered scientific opposition and, more recently, public apathy in some areas toward getting the recommended shots.

"WE WOULD HAVE preferred to have had sufficient vaccine to offer it to all children, who are as susceptible to influenza as adults," he said of the latest problem. "Fortunately, healthy children do not have the same risk of serious complications as older individuals."

An agency spokesman said the shortage became evident three weeks ago when it was determined that children would need a split rather than a whole virus. Whole-virus vaccines caused more fever and other side effects in children during field tests.

But split-virus production is conducted primarily by only one of the four swine flu vaccine manufacturers — Parke-Davis Co. Most of its split-virus vaccine has gone into a bivalent vaccine aimed at protecting elderly and chronically ill persons against both swine flu and the A-Victoria virus.

Limited supplies of split-virus vaccine that are available will be sent to states on a population basis for distribution through big city clinics to children in crowded living conditions that make them more susceptible to infection. Some supplies also will be available for private doctors.

mate," he said.

At Harper College in Palatine, 9,724 persons were vaccinated in four days, said Cecil Kisler, Palatine public health director. "Things went very smoothly. There could have been more people, but we were very happy about the ones who did come out," Kisler said.

Kisler said he thought earlier postponements of the vaccination program by the state and county, bad publicity about the shots and a "multitude of other things," probably hurt participation in the program. "I don't know if we'll ever have all the answers," he said.

Dr. Colette Rasmussen, chief of preventative medicine for the Cook County Health Dept., said that average attendance at county clinics has been about one-third of what the clinics were set up to handle.

SHE BLAMED "confusion, apathy and delays" for the lower than expected turn outs.

In Elk Grove Village 4,700 persons were vaccinated, in a two-day clinic at Elk Grove High School. The number was just 300 short of what the village had estimated, a health official said.

Sam Papson, Des Plaines public health director, said there were "no problems at all" in connection with the city's clinic.

A total of 6,827 people were vaccinated in two days at Maine West High School.

AT WHEELING High School, where Wheeling and Prospect Heights jointly sponsored a clinic, 4,210 persons received swine flu shots over the weekend, said Pat Sumner, Prospect Heights deputy clerk.

John Domar, manager of the clinic at Buffalo Grove High School, said 4,670 persons were inoculated "without any problem whatsoever."

Domar said volunteers were prepared for as many as 11,000 persons.

Shots will be given to senior citizens over 60 and high-risk persons with a chronic illness from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday at Wheeling High School and Sunday at Prospect High School field house.

NORTHWEST COMMUNITY Hospital, Arlington Heights, will be the site of the area's only clinic for high-risk children, age 3 to 17, who have a letter from their doctor verifying their chronic illness.

Shots will be given at the hospital Saturday and Dec. 18 and children must get both shots to have immunity.

A child and his parent should enter the hospital through the doctors' door at the north (Kirchoff Road) side of the building.

State election board ordered closed by court

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (UPI) — The Illinois Supreme Court Monday ordered the State Board of Elections out of business effective next March 15 because of two constitutional defects in the way the legislature established the board.

The court ruled in a case brought by Gov. Daniel Walker in an attempt to prevent an investigation of his campaign contributions. The justices said the board was improperly appointed and drawing lots to resolve ties on the bipartisan, four-member board is unconstitutional.

The decision means the legislature will have to try again to fulfill the mandate of the 1970 state constitution that a strong, independent board be established to run the state's election machinery.

THE PRIMARY ISSUE in the case was the validity of the appointment section of the law. The statute provided that each of the four legislative leaders nominate two prospective members to the board. The governor then picked four of the eight to serve. Vacancies are to be filled in the same fashion.

Walker said that provision violated a section of the state constitution which specifies the legislature "shall have no power to elect or appoint officers of the executive branch."

The court agreed. "While it may technically be true that the governor retains the power to appoint board members, that power is so limited by statute that we must find the legislative leaders do participate in the de facto exercise of the appointive power," the justices said.

Justice Walter V. Schaefer did not participate in the case and Justice Robert Underwood filed an opinion agreeing on the unconstitutionality of the appointment process but dissenting from the decision of the majority on the tie-breaker.

THE TIE-BREAKER question involves the nature of the board itself. The constitution requires that no political party have a majority of the members — but does not address the question of how decisions are to be made when the parties are involved in a standoff.

The legislature decided that in the event of a tie vote, the four members draw lots and the loser drops out while another vote is taken.

The net effect of that procedure, the court said, is to decide partisan matters by chance, rather than deliberation.

"We realize that the remaining members are not inflexibly precluded from altering their prior views upon the disqualification of their colleague," the decision said. "Nevertheless, it strains credulity to suggest that any shift of position would be likely to occur, given the fact that the tie-breaker comes into operation only when the inability to reach agreement produces a deadlock."

In a separate case, the court also held the governor has the power to summarily dismiss members of the Board of Elections for cause. But the justices said he may not summarily dismiss a board member because of the "unique" nature of the office.

The justices therefore allowed to stand a Cook County Circuit Court order preventing Walker from firing Franklin Lunding Jr. as a member. Walker had attempted to fire Lunding for refusing to make public the details of his personal finances.

"WHILE IT IS clear that we have the formula to provide a safe and effective vaccine for children, it is also clear that not nearly enough will be available before the influenza season nears its end," said Theodore Cooper, assistant Health, Education and Welfare secretary.

He said only 8 million doses of the split-virus vaccine suitable for children will be available before February.

Since two innocuations would be necessary for each youngster, only 4 million of America's 40 million children between ages 3-18 could be immunized. These shots also are to be given four weeks apart.

Cooper has nursed the President's $135 million swine flu campaign through malpractice insurance problems, scattered scientific opposition and, more recently, public apathy in some areas toward getting the recommended shots.

"WE WOULD HAVE preferred to have had sufficient vaccine to offer it to all children, who are as susceptible to influenza as adults," he said of the latest problem. "Fortunately, healthy children do not have the same risk of serious complications as older individuals."

An agency spokesman said the shortage became evident three weeks ago when it was determined that children would need a split rather than a whole virus. Whole-virus vaccines caused more fever and other side effects in children during field tests.

But split-virus production is conducted primarily by only one of the four swine flu vaccine manufacturers — Parke-Davis Co. Most of its split-virus vaccine has gone into a bivalent vaccine aimed at protecting elderly and chronically ill persons against both swine flu and the A-Victoria virus.

Limited supplies of split-virus vaccine that are available will be sent to states on a population basis for distribution through big city clinics to children in crowded living conditions that make them more susceptible to infection. Some supplies also will be available for private doctors.

mate," he said.

At Harper College in Palatine, 9,724 persons were vaccinated in four days, said Cecil Kisler, Palatine public health director. "Things went very smoothly. There could have been more people, but we were very happy about the ones who did come out," Kisler said.

Kisler said he thought earlier postponements of the vaccination program by the state and county, bad publicity about the shots and a "multitude of other things," probably hurt participation in the program. "I don't know if we'll ever have all the answers," he said.

Dr. Colette Rasmussen, chief of preventative medicine for the Cook County Health Dept., said that average attendance at county clinics has been about one-third of what the clinics were set up to handle.

SHE BLAMED "confusion, apathy and delays" for the lower than expected turn outs.

In Elk Grove Village 4,700 persons were vaccinated, in a two-day clinic at Elk Grove High School. The number was just 300 short of what the village had estimated, a health official said.

Sam Papson, Des Plaines public health director, said there were "no problems at all" in connection with the city's clinic.

A total of 6,827 people were vaccinated in two days at Maine West High School.

AT WHEELING High School, where Wheeling and Prospect Heights jointly sponsored a clinic, 4,210 persons received swine flu shots over the weekend, said Pat Sumner, Prospect Heights deputy clerk.

John Domar, manager of the clinic at Buffalo Grove High School, said 4,670 persons were inoculated "without any problem whatsoever."

Domar said volunteers were prepared for as many as 11,000 persons.

Shots will be given to senior citizens over 60 and high-risk persons with a chronic illness from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday at Wheeling High School and Sunday at Prospect High School field house.

NORTHWEST COMMUNITY Hospital, Arlington Heights, will be the site of the area's only clinic for high-risk children, age 3 to 17, who have a letter from their doctor verifying their chronic illness.

Shots will be given at the hospital Saturday and Dec. 18 and children must get both shots to have immunity.

A child and his parent should enter the hospital through the doctors' door at the north (Kirchoff Road) side of the building.

State election board ordered closed by court

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (UPI) — The Illinois Supreme Court Monday ordered the State Board of Elections out of business effective next March 15 because of two constitutional defects in the way the legislature established the board.

The court ruled in a case brought by Gov. Daniel Walker in an attempt to prevent an investigation of his campaign contributions. The justices said the board was improperly appointed and drawing lots to resolve ties on the bipartisan, four-member board is unconstitutional.

The decision means the legislature will have to try again to fulfill the mandate of the 1970 state constitution that a strong, independent board be established to run the state's election machinery.

THE PRIMARY ISSUE in the case was the validity of the appointment section of the law. The statute provided that each of the four legislative leaders nominate two prospective members to the board. The governor then picked four of the eight to serve. Vacancies are to be filled in the same fashion.

Walker said that provision violated a section of the state constitution which specifies the legislature "shall have no power to elect or appoint officers of the executive branch."

The court agreed. "While it may technically be true that the governor retains the power to appoint board members, that power is so limited by statute that we must find the legislative leaders do participate in the de facto exercise of the appointive power," the justices said.

Justice Walter V. Schaefer did not participate in the case and Justice Robert Underwood filed an opinion agreeing on the unconstitutionality of the appointment process but dissenting from the decision of the majority on the tie-breaker.

THE TIE-BREAKER question involves the nature of the board itself. The constitution requires that no political party have a majority of the members — but does not address the question of how decisions are to be made when the parties are involved in a standoff.

The legislature decided that in the event of a tie vote, the four members draw lots and the loser drops out while another vote is taken.

The net effect of that procedure, the court said, is to decide partisan matters by chance, rather than deliberation.

"We realize that the remaining members are not inflexibly precluded from altering their prior views upon the disqualification of their colleague," the decision said. "Nevertheless, it strains credulity to suggest that any shift of position would be likely to occur, given the fact that the tie-breaker comes into operation only when the inability to reach agreement produces a deadlock."

In a separate case, the court also held the governor has the power to summarily dismiss members of the Board of Elections for cause. But the justices said he may not summarily dismiss a board member because of the "unique" nature of the office.

The justices therefore allowed to stand a Cook County Circuit Court order preventing Walker from firing Franklin Lunding Jr. as a member. Walker had attempted to fire Lunding for refusing to make public the details of his personal finances.

STAFF PHOTOGRAPHER

"In this visual age of instantaneous news, I feel photojournalism is becoming a more integral part of the newspaper. I think of myself as a reporter with a camera, striving to record the story visually."

Since joining The Herald in April of this year, staff photographer Anne Cusack has concentrated her talents on visually recording news events for the Northwest suburbs. On assignment, she is responsible for successfully capturing the mood and reality of the moment on film.

A 1973 graduate of the University of Illinois, Anne is a member of the National Press Photographers Assoc., the Illinois Woman's Press Assoc. and the Illinois Press Photographers Assoc.

While photographer for a South suburban newspaper, Anne earned two first-place awards from the National Federation of Press Women in 1975. She also was named Illinois Press Photographer of the Year for 1976.

Despite her achievements in the field of photojournalism, Anne is continually striving "to be a good visual communicator" in her own estimation.

Aside from taking pictures, Anne enjoys spending her free time bicycling and playing the guitar. She has lived in Berwyn for the past two years and is married to Richard Derk.

BECOMING A FAMILIAR scene in the Northwest suburbs is the armed robbery of small retail stores. This mock armed robbery was staged Monday by the Mount Prospect Crime Prevention Bureau with a local store owner who has been held up several times. Police are hoping that businessmen will become more aware of armed robbery dangers. The robber is really a police officer.

'Tis the season to be wary of robbers: police

Armed robberies are big business during the Christmas season in the Northwest suburbs.

Most stores have large increases in business and take in more money than at any other time of the year.

And along with Santa Claus and reindeer, Christmas brings out thieves and armed robbers anxious to make "easy" money by preying on small retail businesses.

"NOW THAT THE winter season is here, heavier clothing such as sweaters and overcoats are excellent places to hide small weapons," Michael Salatino of the Mount Prospect Crime Prevention Bureau, said.

Michael Goy, also with the bureau, said during holiday seasons, businesses hire a great number of part-time high school students who are more easily victimized by con artists and armed robbers.

To emphasize how easy it is for a gunman to "knock over" a small business, Mount Prospect police Monday staged a mock armed robbery of a local store.

The store owner, who did not want himself or his business identified, has personally been robbed at gunpoint several times and said he hopes the demonstration will make other businessmen aware of the armed-robbery problem.

"THE PRINCIPAL places to watch for armed robberies are small businesses that do quite a lot of cash transactions like gas stations, 7-Eleven and White Hen Pantry stores and small fast-order restaurants," Salatino said.

In an effort to make store owners more aware of robbery risks and to make identification of robbers more efficient, the Mount Prospect bureau this week will initiate a new program called "Operation Hands Up."

The program, initially used by the Buffalo Grove Police Dept. as an experimental operation, gives store owners and employes step-by-step instructions on how to report an armed robbery.

"The key to the whole thing is awareness by the victim," Goy said. "This will help us to get correct information quickly and accurately to our beat patrolman who will hopefully make an arrest."

INCLUDED IN the "Hands Up" packet are:

- A height chart to place at the doorway of a business enabling a victim to check the exact height of the robber as he flees.
- A suspect description chart enabling a victim to write down pertinent information about a suspect, including a description of a car, if one was used.
- Step by-step instructions on how to alert police and what to tell them.

"Following our procedures probably doesn't save much time, but it does minimize confusion and can give a responding patrolman a better assist," Salatino said.

ALTHOUGH THE kit is primarily designed to be effective after a robbery, the presence of the height chart on the doorway and the procedure list next to the telephone may act as a deterrent in some cases.

"The worst thing about armed robbery is that you never know when or where it is going to happen," Mount Prospect Police Chief Ralph Doney said.

"We're not trying to make persons behind the counter paranoid. We want them to be at ease," Goy said.

UNTIL LAST YEAR, Prospect Heights Dist. 23 could not afford to offer its students string music lessons, but this year Felicia Shockey and 16 other fourth and fifth graders are learning to play the violin, the viola and the cello.

Girl struck by car; suffers cuts, bruises

A 13-year-old Arlington Heights girl suffered cuts and bruises when a bicycle she was riding was struck by a car, police reported Monday.

Police said Colleen M. McManus, 400 S. Vail Ave., was struck by a car driven by Carl M. Behrens, 60, of 525 W. Kirchoff Rd., Arlington Heights, at 5:08 p.m. Sunday at Park Street and Mitchell Avenue.

Miss McManus reportedly had ridden her bicycle into the path of Behrens' auto, which was westbound on Park Street.

Arlington Heights firefighters rushed Miss McManus to Northwest Community Hospital, where she was admitted for observation and reported in good condition in the hospital's pediatrics unit Monday night.

No citations were issued by police.

Community events panel approved for village

The creation of a community events commission to replace the Arlington Heights Bicentennial Commission and Festival Committee was approved Monday night by the Arlington Heights Village Board.

The permanent commission was requested by Dwight Walton, chairman of the Bicentennial Commission, to take advantage of the "enthusiasm" from this year's temporary panel.

The board's legal committee was given the responsibility of recommending how funds raised by the new commission should be spent.

The creation of the commission was opposed by Trustees Robert Miller, Madeline Schroeder and Richard Durava.

Construction permit OKd

Permission was given to Marching Bands of America to begin construction of a 15,000-square-foot building on University Drive in the Arlington Industrial and Research Center and file a subdivision plat for the site later.

Ralph Gerstenfeld of Kenroy Inc., said one-half of the building will be used for offices and the remainder will be a warehouse for storing musical instruments and sheet music.

Trustees O. V. Anderson, Durava and Schroeder opposed the waiver.

A similar waiver was given to Dental, Ltd., to begin construction of a dental building on Fairview Lane. Trustees Durava and Anderson opposed the request.

Business plan OKd

A comprehensive long-range land-use plan for the village's central business district was accepted by the village board and will now be drafted as an ordinance for final review.

The plan, developed by the village planning department, calls for parking garages to be built on the northeast corner of Vail and Sigwalt streets and on Dunton Avenue between Eastman and St. James streets.

Modification of the village's parking requirements also are recommended in the plan and will be considered by the plan commission at a later date.

Model homes approved

A request from Szczesny Builders to build three model homes prior to submitting a final plat for the Courts of Russetwood subdivision was approved by the village board.

The subdivision is on Thomas Avenue, immediately east of John Hersey High School.

Thieves take $279 from deposit bag

Police are seeking thieves who stole $279 from a moneybag lodged in the night depository of an Arlington Heights bank.

Police said the thieves took the cash from a moneybag stuffed into the night depository, built to accept only envelopes, at the Bank & Trust Co. of Arlington Heights, 900 E. Kensington Rd.

Victim of the thieves was James McVicker, 800 W. Rand Rd., Arlington Heights, police said.

The theft reportedly occurred between the time of deposit at 9 p.m. Thursday and 6 a.m. Friday, when a security guard discovered the bag, still lodged in the depository, zipped open and with some money still inside.

The way we see it

Suburbs near racial harmony

The path to racial harmony in American society is a difficult and often painful one, but in the Northwest suburbs there is at least a generally positive picture.

A Herald report last week which focused on the experiences of some of the black families who have moved into the area presented an encouraging view of the progress of the racial integration which has occurred here.

It remains true that blacks are a tiny though increasingly visible minority in the Northwest suburbs. More problems may arise when the amount of integration increases.

Nevertheless, it is heartening to find that blacks who have become part of the community have been accepted as neighbors and friends by their white neighbors.

This acceptance has not occurred entirely without the unpleasant spector of discrimination, however.

The Herald found some instances of hostility encountered by blacks, including the case of one woman whose mother somehow could not find an apartment in Arlington Heights in buildings with "for rent" signs. That kind of problem should have vanished long ago.

Negative events make it clear that neither whites nor blacks in the Northwest suburbs can complacently sit back believing all problems are solved.

There will be difficulties. Many of the black parents interviewed expressed concern about teen-age children and interracial dating. Some even said they will move to areas with larger black populations when their children grow older.

Whatever problems do arise in the future, however, will be possible to solve if all persons involved approach them with sensitivity and good will.

It may be that the complete end of racial strife in this country will not occur in the lifetimes of any Northwest suburban residents. Even if that is the case, we are proud of the progress that has been made in this area.

As prices fluctuate, the cost of edible meat continually seeks a higher and higher bottom level. The practice of layering outer fat on livestock by confining them in a rigidly controlltd minimal area just prior to marketing has long been a questionable practice. The amount of edible beef per pound of carcass is drastically shrunk as a result. Since cattle still come to market in their fur coats and we share the cost of the waste portions of bone and fat, who's winning? The consumer — target prey of the industry — lost that race even before he knew he was running.

Now a new track is being set up to give the consumer yet another run for his money. And this race too is "fixed". I wonder how many people have noticed — and share my dismay at — the amount of fat now coming out of the poultry industry, again at our expense. One expects a fat duck or a fat old hen for stewing, but a fat frying chicken?

The other night I roasted two cut up fryers in an effort to avoid too much fried food in our diet. When they were done, there was as much melted fat in the bottom of the pan as there would have been had I roasted an equal quantity of pork! While I agree there are many excellent uses for rendered chicken fat, so it need not be a total waste, these are limited and if the industry continues to follow this course we will soon be swimmin' in it. The only "home base" the racing consumer will be able to slide into — once he's been sold all this excess chicken — will be the 'poor house.'

Please conduct one of Paddock's thorough investigations and find out who threw all the fat in the fryer!

Praise for less campaign trivia

A syndicated news analyst brought out the crying towel for the professional politicians in the Nov. 10 Herald. His beef is that not enough money was spent on the recent presidential campaign. There were fewer campaign posters, funny hats, buttons, traveling and speeches by the candidates.

I count these as blessings and am in favor of further cuts. As a campaign worker I have bad "vibes" over the extravagance and waste in political campaigns. More than 50 per cent of campaign trivia is dumped in the garbage, unused. Also I don't feel any need to have the candidate visit my area so I can shake his hand.

Candidates usually have a "track record," and in my book this and whom he is associated with is the best indication of what to expect of him. I would like to know if he is a political "hack," what appointments he has made, what is the trend in his action on legislation? Such information can be furnished the voters at a fraction of the cost of our present campaign circus, and the voters will be far less apathetic.

Last but not least, the lower cost campaigns are more democratic. We do not want our politicians owned "lock, stock and barrel" by big contributors. We also want the guy with limited funds to have a real opportunity. Give the campaigns back to the amateurs and give the professional campaigners some real productive work.

Hotel dies in mystery

The story was worthy of Agatha Christie, but if Hollywood decides to make it a movie, the actors won't be able to go "on location" unless they hurry.

The Bellevue-Stratford Hotel in Philadelphia, one of the principal characters in the drama, has become the final victim of the "Legionnaires Disease."

It's certainly understandable that people, even those who might ordinarily be attracted to the scene of a mystery, have been shunning the hotel since the outbreak of the disease which killed 29 persons last summer.

The hotel's owners said last week they were closing the Bellevue-Straford because bookings have dropped to just 3 per cent and it is economically impossible to continue to operate.

Philadelphia Mayor Frank Rizzo has said the city will negotiate to buy the 75-year-old hotel and demolish it. Eventually, a convention center may be built on the site.

That will mean that years from now, no one will be able to convert the Bellevue-Stratford into an historical site to commemorate those few weeks in 1976 when Americans were reminded of the terror of unknown disease.

No monument will be needed, however, for those who lived through the event. For them, the passing of the Bellevue-Stratford will doubtless go unmourned.

Background of Meadows aldermen needed

As a voter, taxpayer and active citizen of Rolling Meadows, I demand a detailed write-up of the background of each of our city aldermen.

I'd like to know personal history, education, jobs, government experience, views on city politics and any type of volunteer work in which they are active.

If we the voters could have looked into the future before the last election maybe the wise vote would have called for a new election this spring and half the number of aldermen voted upon by the whole city.

One of my aldermen came around before the election. I talked to him for a time and I asked him a question — I knew the answer to. He answered it wrong for to answer it right meant to cut down the amount of aldermen needed for council. What do you call that?

President Ford was correct when he said, "The problems of government lie within the House and Senate."

City aldermen, do you qualify for your job? Are you worthy of the seat you sit in?

Doctors not alone in lawsuit fear

by DON OAKLEY
(A Commentary)

It isn't only the doctors who are afflicted with lawsuit sickness.

The number of people suing companies for allegedly defective products is rapidly rising, says The Conference Board, and so is the cost of product liability insurance — the manufacturers' counterpart of medical malpractice insurance.

According to an analysis by the New York-based, business-supported organization, total premiums paid for product liability insurance amounted to $1.6 billion in 1975 — twice that paid for all medical malpractice premiums.

Nor are only big corporations feeling the impact. A growing number of small firms report difficulties in obtaining product liability insurance, with the result that many are going "self-insured," which is a synonym for "uninsured."

Rising product liability costs are clearly being fueled by the rising expectations of consumers regarding both the products they buy and the responsibility of manufacturers to assure that the products are safe, says The Conference Board.

Cited as another factor is a shift in the judicial climate which is making it easier for persons to collect for product-related injuries. Individuals need not prove that a manufacturer has been negligent or has violated either an expressed or implied warranty.

Even consumers who have improperly used a product have received awards, and the size of awards is steadily getting bigger.

It's a bad time to be an insurer, but a very good time to be a lawyer.

From another source comes the report that "police and sheriffs' departments throughout the United States are staggering under skyrocketing insurance premiums for protection against suits alleging false arrest, false imprisonment and assault."

This year hundreds of high-risk departments will lose their insurance because of these lawsuits, and more plan to drop their insurance because of its high cost, says the National Observer.

Los Angeles, for example, paid $7,000 for claims against its police in 1965. Last year, claims totalled nearly $1.5 million.

Boulder, Colo., was recently hit by a $180,000 judgment against its police department. Insurance covered the loss, but Boulder will lose its police insurance this year.

The huge increase in lawsuits has produced some profound changes for the better in law-enforcement procedures and policies, notes the Observer, even as it has put the fear of God into physicians and manufacturers.

Since all consumers and citizens are ultimately paying the costs of this upsurge in litigation, it can only be hoped that we will all ultimately benefit from better medical care, more professional police work and safer products.

The answer man returns

'Adultery' won for Carter

by ARNOLD SAWISLAK

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Campaign Answer Man has burrowed his way out of 79 million votes and has agreed to give us his scientific analysis of the election before heading for a long deserved vacation on Riker's Island.

QUESTION: Jimmy Carter is going to be our new president. The final unofficial vote was 40,291,626 for Carter and 38,563,089 for Ford. What was the primary factor in his victory?

ANSWER MAN: I have studied the returns carefully and find that Governor Carter and President Ford traded off vote blocs evenly except for one group. My information is that Carter got the votes of 1,728,537 Americans who committed adultery in their hearts the day before the election.

QUESTION: Governor Carter says the debates were the key to his victory. How does that compare with your findings?

ANSWER MAN: That is a possibility. The third debate was scheduled for the same evening as the fifth game of the World Series. This possible conflict impelled the Reds to finish off the Yankees in four games. This gave Governor Carter the votes of 1,728,537 Americans who bet on Cincinnati to sweep the series.

QUESTION: It also has been said that Carter can thank the blacks or the unions or the big cities or the Dmocratic organizations for his victory. Does that stand up to your examination?

ANSWER MAN: Yes, it does. By my calculation, there are 1,728,537 black union members who belong to Democratic organizations in big cities.

QUESTION: Well, some commentators have suggested that Senator Dole, the president's running mate, made the difference between the tickets. Have you analyzed that?

ANSWER MAN: Yes, and I find it groundless. Senator Dole got the same number of votes as the President. It is my conclusion that he did nothing for the Republican ticket.

QUESTION: Now that the election is over, do you think President Ford could have won it with different campaign tactics?

ANSWER MAN: Yes. The President gained nearly 30 points by remaining in the White House during the summer and early fall. Then he went out on a 10-day campaign tour with his entire entourage. This required lengthy motorcades from airports into cities that tied up traffic everywhere they went. Carter also caused traffic jams, but his motorcades were shorter. My research indicates that Ford caused 1,728,537 more commuters to miss their pre-dinner martinis than Carter.

QUESTION: Well, what about Carter? Do you have any afterthoughts about his campaign?

ANSWER MAN: Carter captured the South by embracing stock car racing. His Sunday softball exploits locked up New York, where baseball was invented. But he neglected the West. A couple of bull roping appearances at rodeos would have given him more votes in that region.

QUESTION: Really? Can you estimate how many more votes?

ANSWER MAN: 1,728,537.

The way we see it

Suburbs near racial harmony

The path to racial harmony in American society is a difficult and often painful one, but in the Northwest suburbs there is at least a generally positive picture.

A Herald report last week which focused on the experiences of some of the black families who have moved into the area presented an encouraging view of the progress of the racial integration which has occurred here.

It remains true that blacks are a tiny though increasingly visible minority in the Northwest suburbs. More problems may arise when the amount of integration increases.

Nevertheless, it is heartening to find that blacks who have become part of the community have been accepted as neighbors and friends by their white neighbors.

This acceptance has not occurred entirely without the unpleasant spector of discrimination, however.

The Herald found some instances of hostility encountered by blacks, including the case of one woman whose mother somehow could not find an apartment in Arlington Heights in buildings with "for rent" signs. That kind of problem should have vanished long ago.

Negative events make it clear that neither whites nor blacks in the Northwest suburbs can complacently sit back believing all problems are solved.

There will be difficulties. Many of the black parents interviewed expressed concern about teen-age children and interracial dating. Some even said they will move to areas with larger black populations when their children grow older.

Whatever problems do arise in the future, however, will be possible to solve if all persons involved approach them with sensitivity and good will.

It may be that the complete end of racial strife in this country will not occur in the lifetimes of any Northwest suburban residents. Even if that is the case, we are proud of the progress that has been made in this area.

55 stores ready for business today

A&P opens doors on new lineup

by LEA TONKIN

When the Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Co. opens the doors to 55 new stores this morning, customers at the Northwest suburban and other Chicago area stores, formerly National Tea Co. outlets, will be invited to share in A&P's "price, pride and people" campaign.

In the Northwest suburbs, the lineup of new A&P stores converted from National outlets includes: 1155 Lee St., Des Plaines; 1900 S. Wolf Rd., Wheeling; 534 Hicks Rd., Palatine; and 100 E. Rand Rd., Arlington Heights.

"The Chicago division also will have four new stores, between 32,000 and 41,000 square feet, to be opened by the end of March," Dean Ritchy, regional director of marketing for A&P, said Monday. One of the new outlets will be in Schaumburg.

NATIONAL AND A&P announced Oct. 1 a tentative plan for A&P acquisition of more than 60 National stores. The $22 million transaction does not include more than 90 remaining National stores in the Chicago division.

National said more than 80 per cent of the remaining outlets are covered by negotiations with other food store chains. A complete withdrawal from the Chicago market by the end of 1976 has been forecast by National. Paul Butera, a Chicago-based independent food retailer, purchased the Rolling Meadows National outlet, 2995 Kirchoff Rd. National had no comment on the firm's Buffalo Grove store, Arlington Heights and Dundee roads.

The sale of 63 National stores to A&P was officially announced Nov. 11. National has 230 remaining stores in the New Orleans, Indianapolis, Minneapolis and St. Louis markets. The firm will retain its Chicago area headquarters office at 9701 W. Higgins Rd., Rosemont. The A&P chain, based in Montvale, N.J. has 134 stores in its Chicago region.

Same as this year's gain

Food prices may rise 3% to 4%

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Retail food prices next year may increase about 3 to 4 per cent, close to this year's 3 per cent gain, which was the smallest in five years, Agriculture Department experts predicted Monday.

Analysts reporting at the opening of the department's annual Agricultural Outlook Conference warned that their initial 1977 food and farm price forecasts were tentative.

The outlook for the second half of the year depends heavily on harvests of crops which will not be planted until next spring, they said.

BUT ON THE basis of potential big crops again in 1977, economist Rex F. Daly said indications point to a possible increase of 5 to 6 per cent in restaurant meal prices, a smaller gain in grocery prices, and a combined all-food price index "averaging some 3 to 4 per cent above the average for this year."

Economist James Donald said that this year's "moderate" 3 per cent gain — the smallest since 1971 — means that food has advanced only about half as fast as the over-all cost of living index and therefore has been slowing the increase in the over-all cost of living.

The 3 per cent advance followed jumps of 8.5 per cent last year and 14.5 per cent in each of the two preceding years.

All of this year's retail food gain came because of increases in middlemen's marketing margins, Donald said. The farmer's return for foods in a typical market basket for 1976 will be down about 4 per cent from last year, he said.

Consumers would have seen retail food prices rise only 1.25 per cent this year, Donald said, if they had purchased only American farm-produced foods at groceries. The over-all gain rose to 3 per cent because of increases in fish and imported foods like coffee, and because of a 7 per cent rise in restaurant prices.

DALY SAID net farm income next year also is likely to remain close to the 1976 level. The expert said this year's net income is estimated at $24 billion compared with $22.7 billion next year. If crop conditions are normal in 1977, net income may range about $23 billion to $25 billion, he said.

The new estimates fall short of the $29.9 billion and $27.8 billion peaks of 1973 and 1974, but are about double the levels of the late 1960s, Daly said.

Donald said large food supplies, which are shaping prospects for holding retail food prices to a 3 per cent advance in the first half of 1977, will produce a "steady" price picture at groceries in the first three months of the year. In the second quarter, he said, increases will come a little faster as this year's drop in retail beef prices is reversed by an expected decline in beef supplies.

Stocks rally slightly, close up 7 pts. at 935.4

NEW YORK (UPI) — Wall Street investors, encouraged by indications President-elect Jimmy Carter would keep Arthur F. Burns as Federal Reserve chief, rallied prices higher Monday in moderate trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

The Dow Jones industrial average, off nearly four points at the outset, gained 7.73 to 935.42. Much of the gain came in a late burst of buying following Carter's statement at a news conference that "my first inclination would be to work with him (Burns) harmoniously."

Burns, who has commanded considerable influence with Wall Street's opinions, last week acknowledged the economy had slowed down, but warned against too much stimulus that could trigger inflation. Carter has said he would consider a tax cut or rebate if the economy continued to slump through January.

ANALYSTS SAID Carter's statement increased bargain hunting that had helped the market earlier. They noted the Dow average, a 3.74-point loser Friday, had lost 15.86 points last week and more than 80 points since reaching a 42-month high of 1,014.79 Sept. 21.

The NYSE common stock index rose 0.32 to 53.42 and the average price of a common share increased by 20 cents. Standard & Poor's 500-stock index, which includes some over-the-counter stocks, gained 0.66 to 99.90.

Volume totaled 16,710,000 shares, up from the 15,550,000 traded Friday.

Prices closed lower in moderate trading on the American Stock Exchange. The average price of an Amex share decreased two cents. Volume totaled 1,790,000 shares, cmpared with 1,660,000 traded Friday.

People in business

Raymond A. Bowersox of Schaumburg recently attended a marketing techniques workshop at the John Hancock Mutual Life Insurance Co.'s home office in Boston, Mass. He is a sales manager of the Palatine general agency, 800 E. Northwest Hwy.

Richard T. Guttman of Buffalo Grove has been promoted to general patent counsel by Square D Co., Park Ridge based international manufacturer of electrical equipment. He joined the company in 1960 as a patent engineer. He also served as division patent attorney and, most recently had been administrative patent attorney. He is a past president of the Buffalo Grove Jaycees.

Thomas E. Weir of Woodstock has been elected an assistant cashier of the First National Bank of Des Plaines. He joined the bank in late summer of thi year in the installment loan department.

John A. Davidson of Arlington Heights has been named central region sales manager for Stange Company's newly formed food service products division. He has been with the company since 1974. He is a retired food service officer from the U.S. Army and owned and operated a food processing and packaging plant.

John Mazzola of Schaumburg was recently promoted to sales manager in Prudential's Norridge West district agency, 4242 N. Harlem Ave., Chicago. He joined the company in 1973 as an agent. He topped the $1 million sales figure in 1975 and again in 1976 just prior to his advancement. He is a former officer and board member of the Schaumburg Jaycees.

BETTY J. ANGSTADT of Arlington Heights recently completed 25 years of service with Peoples Gas Light and Coke Co. Ms. Angstadt is a senior stenographer in the main office of the Chicago utility's division services department.

RICHARD J. SZDLOWSKI of Wheeling has been promoted to manager of Washington National Trust Co., a Washington National Corp.'s financial service company. He joined the company as operations supervisor in 1975.

Industrial output off .7% in 2 months

Industrial production dropped 0.5 per cent in October and was revised down 0.2 per cent in September — the first drops in the key indicator since the economic recovery began more than a year ago, the Federal Reserve Board said Monday. Although much of the downturn was due to strikes, the board said there nevertheless would have been a decline in October. It was the first decline since March, 1975, the final month of the 1974-75 recession that was the worst since World War II. The report measures the physical output of the nation's factories, mines and utilities.

No postal rate hike in 1977?

A $15 million surplus by the Postal Service during the three months ended Oct. 1 has raised hopes that rate increases can be avoided next year, Postmaster Gen. Benjamin Bailar said Monday. "Our cost control program is paying off," Bailar said. "We achieved this through tightening our operations and improving fiscal management. The accomplishment was not at the expense of service. "I'm hopeful there will not be any rate increase in 1977," he said. "If there is any, it will be very late in the year." But Bailar cautioned that operating costs continue to rise with inflation, and there is a "fundamental" downward trend in the mail volume level needed to keep the service in the black.

50 counties disaster areas

Fifty Illinois counties have been declared economic disaster areas because of drought conditions, the U.S. Dept. of Agriculture and the Small Business Administration said Monday. John L. Smith, state district director of the business group, said the counties will be eligible for low-interest 6 5/8 per cent loans for businesses adversely affected by the drought. The counties include Adams, Bond, Boone, Brown, Bureau, Calhoun, Carroll, Cass, Christian, Clay, Clinton, Crawford, Cumberland, De Kalb, Effingham, Fayette, Fulton, Greene, Hancock, Jasper. Also Jefferson, Jersey Jo Daviess, Kendall, Lake, La Salle, Lee, McDonough, McHenry, Macoupin, Madison, Marion, Mason, Monroe, Montgomery, Morgan, Ogle, Perry, Pike, Randolph, St. Clair, Sangamon, Schuyler, Scott, Shelby, Stephenson, Washington, Whiteside and Winnebago.

Jobless trust fund rates hiked

The Illinois Dept. of Labor Monday announced an increase in one of the two factors that determine employer contributions to the state unemployment insurance fund. The department said the "state experience factor" — determined by the amount of money paid out to claimants and the amount of money in the insurance trust fund as of June 30 — will increase nearly threefold from 61 per cent this year to 158 per cent next year. Sue Kolker, a department representative, said 27 per cent of the employers already pay the maximum 4 per cent contribution and will not be affected by the increase. She said another 49 per cent are paying the minimum .1 per cent and they will not be affected if they continue to have no layoffs.

Economists urge tax rebate

Three economists urged Monday that the federal government give at least $8 billion worth of rebates to American taxpayers early next year to spur a new economic recovery. The economists, testifying before the Senate Banking Committee, did not spell out the amount the rebates would be worth to each taxpayer, but $17 billion worth of rebates in 1975 amounted to $200 per person in the lower brackets. The recommendations ranged from a "one-shot tax rebate . . . in the magnitude of $8 billion" urged by one economist to a permanent $10 billion to $12 billion by another and more than $12 billion by a third. The recommendation came from Henry Kaufman, a partner in Salomon Brothers of New York; Allan H. Meltzer, economics professor at Carnegie Mellon University; and Benjamin M. Friedman, Harvard University economics professor.

55 stores ready for business today

by LEA TONKIN

When the Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Co. opens the doors to 55 new stores this morning, customers at the Northwest suburban and other Chicago area stores, formerly National Tea Co. outlets, will be invited to share in A&P's "price, pride and people" campaign.

In the Northwest suburbs, the lineup of new A&P stores converted from National outlets includes: 1155 Lee St., Des Plaines; 1900 S. Wolf Rd., Wheeling; 534 Hicks Rd., Palatine; and 100 E. Rand Rd., Arlington Heights.

"The Chicago division also will have four new stores, between 32,000 and 41,000 square feet, to be opened by the end of March," Dean Ritchy, regional director of marketing for A&P, said Monday. One of the new outlets will be in Schaumburg.

NATIONAL AND A&P announced Oct. 1 a tentative plan for A&P acquisition of more than 60 National stores. The $22 million transaction does not include more than 90 remaining National stores in the Chicago division.

National said more than 80 per cent of the remaining outlets are covered by negotiations with other food store chains. A complete withdrawal from the Chicago market by the end of 1976 has been forecast by National. Paul Butera, a Chicago-based independent food retailer, purchased the Rolling Meadows National outlet, 2995 Kirchoff Rd. National had no comment on the firm's Buffalo Grove store, Arlington Heights and Dundee roads.

The sale of 63 National stores to A&P was officially announced Nov. 11. National has 230 remaining stores in the New Orleans, Indianapolis, Minneapolis and St. Louis markets. The firm will retain its Chicago area headquarters office at 9701 W. Higgins Rd., Rosemont. The A&P chain, based in Montvale, N.J. has 134 stores in its Chicago region.

Same as this year's gain

Food prices may rise 3% to 4%

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Retail food prices next year may increase about 3 to 4 per cent, close to this year's 3 per cent gain, which was the smallest in five years, Agriculture Department experts predicted Monday.

Analysts reporting at the opening of the department's annual Agricultural Outlook Conference warned that their initial 1977 food and farm price forecasts were tentative.

The outlook for the second half of the year depends heavily on harvests of crops which will not be planted until next spring, they said.

BUT ON THE basis of potential big crops again in 1977, economist Rex F. Daly said indications point to a possible increase of 5 to 6 per cent in restaurant meal prices, a smaller gain in grocery prices, and a combined all-food price index "averaging some 3 to 4 per cent above the average for this year."

Economist James Donald said that this year's "moderate" 3 per cent gain — the smallest since 1971 — means that food has advanced only about half as fast as the over-all cost of living index and therefore has been slowing the increase in the over-all cost of living.

The 3 per cent advance followed jumps of 8.5 per cent last year and 14.5 per cent in each of the two preceding years.

All of this year's retail food gain came because of increases in middlemen's marketing margins, Donald said. The farmer's return for foods in a typical market basket for 1976 will be down about 4 per cent from last year, he said.

Consumers would have seen retail food prices rise only 1.25 per cent this year, Donald said, if they had purchased only American farm-produced foods at groceries. The over-all gain rose to 3 per cent because of increases in fish and imported foods like coffee, and because of a 7 per cent rise in restaurant prices.

DALY SAID net farm income next year also is likely to remain close to the 1976 level. The expert said this year's net income is estimated at $24 billion compared with $22.7 billion next year. If crop conditions are normal in 1977, net income may range about $23 billion to $25 billion, he said.

The new estimates fall short of the $29.9 billion and $27.8 billion peaks of 1973 and 1974, but are about double the levels of the late 1960s, Daly said.

Donald said large food supplies, which are shaping prospects for holding retail food prices to a 3 per cent advance in the first half of 1977, will produce a "steady" price picture at groceries in the first three months of the year. In the second quarter, he said, increases will come a little faster as this year's drop in retail beef prices is reversed by an expected decline in beef supplies.

Industrial output off .7% in 2 months

Industrial production dropped 0.5 per cent in October and was revised down 0.2 per cent in September — the first drops in the key indicator since the economic recovery began more than a year ago, the Federal Reserve Board said Monday. Although much of the downturn was due to strikes, the board said there nevertheless would have been a decline in October. It was the first decline since March, 1975, the final month of the 1974-75 recession that was the worst since World War II. The report measures the physical output of the nation's factories, mines and utilities.

No postal rate hike in 1977?

A $15 million surplus by the Postal Service during the three months ended Oct. 1 has raised hopes that rate increases can be avoided next year, Postmaster Gen. Benjamin Bailar said Monday. "Our cost control program is paying off," Bailar said. "We achieved this through tightening our operations and improving fiscal management. The accomplishment was not at the expense of service. "I'm hopeful there will not be any rate increase in 1977," he said. "If there is any, it will be very late in the year." But Bailar cautioned that operating costs continue to rise with inflation, and there is a "fundamental" downward trend in the mail volume level needed to keep the service in the black.

NEW YORK (UPI) — Wall Street investors, encouraged by indications President-elect Jimmy Carter would keep Arthur F. Burns as Federal Reserve chief, rallied prices higher Monday in moderate trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

The Dow Jones industrial average, off nearly four points at the outset, gained 7.73 to 935.42. Much of the gain came in a late burst of buying following Carter's statement at a news conference that "my first inclination would be to work with him (Burns) harmoniously."

Burns, who has commanded considerable influence with Wall Street's opinions, last week acknowledged the economy had slowed down, but warned against too much stimulus that could trigger inflation. Carter has said he would consider a tax cut or rebate if the economy continued to slump through January.

ANALYSTS SAID Carter's statement increased bargain hunting that had helped the market earlier. They noted the Dow average, a 3.74-point loser Friday, had lost 15.86 points last week and more than 80 points since reaching a 42-month high of 1,014.79 Sept. 21.

The NYSE common stock index rose 0.32 to 53.42 and the average price of a common share increased by 20 cents. Standard & Poor's 500-stock index, which includes some over-the-counter stocks, gained 0.66 to 99.90.

Volume totaled 16,710,000 shares, up from the 15,550,000 traded Friday.

Prices closed lower in moderate trading on the American Stock Exchange. The average price of an Amex share decreased two cents. Volume totaled 1,790,000 shares, cmpared with 1,660,000 traded Friday.

SOVIET LEADER Leonid Brezhnev, left, Monday met Yugoslavia's President Tito and assured him the Soviet Union planned no attack. He also pledged Moscow's respect for Yugoslav independence and the country's own brand of communism. Brezhnev complained about "absurd inventions" about a Soviet-led invasion against the Balkan country came from "somewhere in the West" — a possible reference to President-elect Jimmy Carter's campaign statement he would not commit troops to Yugoslavia if it were invaded by Moscow.

Strong earthquake jolts Peking area

The strongest earthquake since the July tremors that killed tens of thousands of persons rocked Peking Monday night. China kept silent about the series of shocks, but scientists around the world said they were damaging. Western correspondents' reports from Peking said Chinese fled their homes and ran for earthquake shelters dug in the capital since the July disaster. Six U. S. senators touring China were in Peking Sunday. Neither the senators nor officials at the U. S. Liaison Office in the capital could be contacted in the hours after the quake.

The Royal Hong Kong Observatory recorded the earthquake at 9:57 p.m. (8:57 a.m. CST). A seismic laboratory in Strasbourg, France, said it registered 7.0 on the open-ended Richter scale, and Marcus Baath of the Uppsala Institute in Sweden said the tremor was "big enough for certain damage."

Another earthquake hit the Khorramabad Loreston area of southwestern Iran and new tremors shook northeastern Khorassan province where 17 persons were killed and 260 injured earlier this month, government officials said. The Khorramabad quake registered 4.6 on the Richter scale, officials said. They said there were no immediate reports of casualties or damage.

Blacks split on Rhodesia

Black nationalist leaders split Monday over Britain's compromise formula at the Rhodesia peace talks calling for a flexible transition period of 12 to 15 months before the former colony can gain independence under black majority rule. Two of the nationalist leaders — militants Joshua Nkomo and Robert Mugabe, who have united in a "Patriotic Front" determined to oust the white regime as soon as possible — said a definite date for independence must be set, and discussions on the formation of an interim government cannot occur until that issue is resolved. The leaders of two other black nationalist delegations, Bishop Abel Muzorewa and the Rev. Ndabaningi Sithole, said they could accept Britain's compromise formula as the only way of moving the conference forward to substantial issues.

Separatists win in Quebec

Separatist forces scored an upset victory over Quebec's Liberal government Monday, paving the way for a move to separate the province from the rest of Canada. Two hours after the polls closed, former journalist Rene Levesque's Parti Quebecois had won 42 seats in the 110-seat assembly and was leading in 26 others. Premier Robert Bourassa's Liberals trailed with only 14 seats won and was leading in 13 other constituencies.

Levesque's Parti Quebecois, promising a referendum within three years on whether Quebec will remain within the Canadian union, scored heavily in the province's rural areas and made solid gains in traditional Liberal territory in the more heavily populated areas.

Cuban refugees questioned

Two Cuban refugees, who said they were packed inside a shipping crate and flown to Miami in a cargo plane, were questioned in Miami Monday by U. S. Immigration officials about their escape from Havana and their arrival in the United States. "We have been questioning them all morning," Immigration Examiner John Hurley said Monday. "They have asked for political asylum, but that decision would have to be made by the U. S. State Department."

Juan Dominguez Santana, 32, and Reinaldo Acosta Veliz, 28, said that they arrived at Miami International Airport Friday night on a flight from Guatemala. They had ridden in a shipping crate marked "Ceramics, handle with care." They said they broke out of the crate in the early morning hours Saturday and ended a six-week journey that took them from the docks of Havana through Guatemala to Miami.

Gays asks for TV fairness

A national gay activist group, saying radio and television stations rarely portray a homosexual other than as "a simpering fruitcake or a deranged killer" asked the Federal Communications Commission Monday to help it get more fair treatment. Ginny Vida, media director of the National Gay Task Force, a New York-based clearing house for the gay movement, asked for "full visibility and respect from our broadcast licensees." Ms. Vida was joined by James Gutherie, news director of a radio station in Philipsburg, Pa., in presenting a list of recommendations before the FCC at its monthly open hearing.

Soviets cited at NATO meet

The Soviet Union has expanded its military forces beyond its needs and NATO governments should increase defense spending to meet the challenge, Joseph Luns told the North Atlantic Assembly meeting in Williamsburg, Va. Monday. "The shadow cast by the Soviets in Angola has not been dispelled," said Luns, NATO secretary general. He addressed the assembly's 22nd annual meeting. He said "Soviet intervention in Angola . . . struck a note of warning, and its echoes will not quickly fade away." Luns criticized the "continued expansion of Soviet military forces well beyond their needs." But he also criticized West European governments for not matching increased Soviet defense spending.

U.S. moves to deport three accused Nazis

by United Press International

The United States opened deportation proceedings Monday against three immigrants it said took part in Nazi atrocities against Jews during World War II. Two said they were innocent and a third had his hearing postponed.

The three — Karlis Detlavs, 65, of Baltimore, Boleslavs Maikovskis, 72, of Mineola, N.Y., and Bruno Kaminskas, 74, of Hartford, Conn. — were accused of shooting Jews or selecting them for execution in Eastern Europe.

All three were charged with violating immigration laws by lying about their past. The U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service wants them out of the country.

KARLIS DETLAVS

DETLAVS, A retired electrical worker who came to the United States from Latvia 26 years ago, pleaded innocent at his hearing in Baltimore. He refused to talk to reporters but said earlier, "I never did anything. I am not guilty."

After the plea, an immigration service hearing officer delayed further proceedings to study defense motions and other procedural matters. A date for the government to begin its case will be set.

Maikovskis, a retired carpenter who came to America from Latvia in 1951, declined to enter a plea and won a delay until Jan. 10 in his deportation hearing in New York City. His lawyer said he had not had enough time to prepare his defense.

The government said Detlavs, as a member of the Latvian Legion, took part in the shooting of Jews and the selection of others for execution, and personally assaulted several Jews in Latvia in 1941.

"I was not even in Latvia the whole time of the war," Detlavs, who lost a foot to cancer and now walks with a cane, said earlier. "I was in Russia."

IMMIGRATION OFFICIALS said Maikovskis, as a Latvian SS lieutenant, in seven instances selected Jewish men, women and children for execution and beatings in Latvia during the Nazi occupation of the Balkan country. He was kept under strict security and refused to talk to newsmen.

In 1965, a Soviet court convicted Maikovskis in absentia of participating in mass murders and sentenced him to death. The United States at that time refused to permit his extradition.

Kaminskas, a retired janitor lives in a $20 a week room and speaks little English, pleaded innocent to charges he was involved in the deaths of more than 600 Jews, including 60 children, in Nazi-occupied Lithuania during the summer of 1941.

The charges were complied by Israeli authorities and turned over to the U.S. government. The hearing for Kaminskas was held in Waterbury, Conn.

Kaminskas said at his hearing in Waterbury, Conn., that he was a wagonmaker in Lithuania during the war and never joined the German army.

The deportation hearing was continued until Jan. 25 to allow Kaminskas more time to prepare his case.

Carter chooses aide Jody Powell to direct press

PLAINS, Ga. (UPI) — Jimmy Carter, making his first White House appointment, named long-time aide Jody Powell as press secretary Monday and invited "interested citizens" to make suggestions for filling other posts.

Carter told his second news conference since election day that the selection process has been "slow and methodical," and Powell's appointment is the only one he has decided so far.

The president-elect said he had "complete confidence" in Powell.

POWELL, 32, is believed to be Carter's alter ego and closest confidant. He joined Carter's staff as a full-time driver during his campaign for governor, and became press secretary after the election.

A former cadet who was dismissed from the Air Force Academy, Powell received a BA degree in political science from Georgia State and has nearly completed work on his doctorate from Emory.

Powell, dismissed from the Air Force Academy for cheating, and in an interview with UPI two months ago, said: "I cheated. There were no particularly extenuating circumstances for it. I hope I learned something from it. Whether I did or not, it was a mistake, a serious one."

Carter repeated his intention to "work closely" with Vice President-elect Walter Mondale — who arrives in Plains Tuesday — in choosing the top men for their administration.

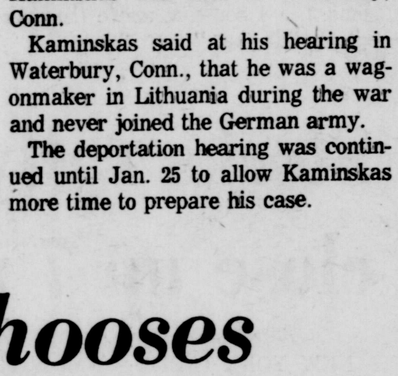
CARTER SAID he had a list of 6,000 or 7,000 persons as possible office holders, and he invited "all interested citizens" to submit their recommendations.

He said he would call on "distinguished Americans" to advise him on the recommendations.

"I will personally interview the selections for major posts," Carter said. "I have not made a decision about any of these appointees" with exception of Powell.

Carter said he would personally choose about 75 other appointees, while former campaign manager Hamilton Jordan will coordinate the selection process from his Washington office.

Carter also said he will meet with "distinguished business leaders" sometime next week, and with labor leaders and other groups in the future, and "ask their advice on the Cabinet appointees."



JODY POWELL

necessarily be bound by any process begun by Sec. of State Henry A. Kissinger.

Carter said he would not rule out mandatory wage and price controls in the event of an economic disaster, but he said he would first seek to use voluntary restraints and "jawboning."

Carter noted 80 per cent of food for peace program funds go to Chile, a country he has criticized as disregarding human rights.

He said foreign aid received by any country likely would be affected by its attitude about human rights.

Separatists win in Quebec

Separatist forces scored an upset victory over Quebec's Liberal government Monday, paving the way for a move to separate the province from the rest of Canada. Two hours after the polls closed, former journalist Rene Levesque's Parti Quebecois had won 42 seats in the 110-seat assembly and was leading in 26 others. Premier Robert Bourassa's Liberals trailed with only 14 seats won and was leading in 13 other constituencies.

Levesque's Parti Quebecois, promising a referendum within three years on whether Quebec will remain within the Canadian union, scored heavily in the province's rural areas and made solid gains in traditional Liberal territory in the more heavily populated areas.

Cuban refugees questioned

Two Cuban refugees, who said they were packed inside a shipping crate and flown to Miami in a cargo plane, were questioned in Miami Monday by U. S. Immigration officials about their escape from Havana and their arrival in the United States. "We have been questioning them all morning," Immigration Examiner John Hurley said Monday. "They have asked for political asylum, but that decision would have to be made by the U. S. State Department."

Juan Dominguez Santana, 32, and Reinaldo Acosta Veliz, 28, said that they arrived at Miami International Airport Friday night on a flight from Guatemala. They had ridden in a shipping crate marked "Ceramics, handle with care." They said they broke out of the crate in the early morning hours Saturday and ended a six-week journey that took them from the docks of Havana through Guatemala to Miami.

Gays asks for TV fairness

A national gay activist group, saying radio and television stations rarely portray a homosexual other than as "a simpering fruitcake or a deranged killer" asked the Federal Communications Commission Monday to help it get more fair treatment. Ginny Vida, media director of the National Gay Task Force, a New York-based clearing house for the gay movement, asked for "full visibility and respect from our broadcast licensees." Ms. Vida was joined by James Gutherie, news director of a radio station in Philipsburg, Pa., in presenting a list of recommendations before the FCC at its monthly open hearing.

Soviets cited at NATO meet

The Soviet Union has expanded its military forces beyond its needs and NATO governments should increase defense spending to meet the challenge, Joseph Luns told the North Atlantic Assembly meeting in Williamsburg, Va. Monday. "The shadow cast by the Soviets in Angola has not been dispelled," said Luns, NATO secretary general. He addressed the assembly's 22nd annual meeting. He said "Soviet intervention in Angola . . . struck a note of warning, and its echoes will not quickly fade away." Luns criticized the "continued expansion of Soviet military forces well beyond their needs." But he also criticized West European governments for not matching increased Soviet defense spending.

U.S. moves to deport three accused Nazis

by United Press International

The United States opened deportation proceedings Monday against three immigrants it said took part in Nazi atrocities against Jews during World War II. Two said they were innocent and a third had his hearing postponed.

The three — Karlis Detlavs, 65, of Baltimore, Boleslavs Maikovskis, 72, of Mineola, N.Y., and Bruno Kaminskas, 74, of Hartford, Conn. — were accused of shooting Jews or selecting them for execution in Eastern Europe.

All three were charged with violating immigration laws by lying about their past. The U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service wants them out of the country.

KARLIS DETLAVS

DETLAVS, A retired electrical worker who came to the United States from Latvia 26 years ago, pleaded innocent at his hearing in Baltimore. He refused to talk to reporters but said earlier, "I never did anything. I am not guilty."

After the plea, an immigration service hearing officer delayed further proceedings to study defense motions and other procedural matters. A date for the government to begin its case will be set.

Maikovskis, a retired carpenter who came to America from Latvia in 1951, declined to enter a plea and won a delay until Jan. 10 in his deportation hearing in New York City. His lawyer said he had not had enough time to prepare his defense.

The government said Detlavs, as a member of the Latvian Legion, took part in the shooting of Jews and the selection of others for execution, and personally assaulted several Jews in Latvia in 1941.

"I was not even in Latvia the whole time of the war," Detlavs, who lost a foot to cancer and now walks with a cane, said earlier. "I was in Russia."

IMMIGRATION OFFICIALS said Maikovskis, as a Latvian SS lieutenant, in seven instances selected Jewish men, women and children for execution and beatings in Latvia during the Nazi occupation of the Balkan country. He was kept under strict security and refused to talk to newsmen.

In 1965, a Soviet court convicted Maikovskis in absentia of participating in mass murders and sentenced him to death. The United States at that time refused to permit his extradition.

Kaminskas, a retired janitor lives in a $20 a week room and speaks little English, pleaded innocent to charges he was involved in the deaths of more than 600 Jews, including 60 children, in Nazi-occupied Lithuania during the summer of 1941.

The charges were complied by Israeli authorities and turned over to the U.S. government. The hearing for Kaminskas was held in Waterbury, Conn.

Kaminskas said at his hearing in Waterbury, Conn., that he was a wagonmaker in Lithuania during the war and never joined the German army.

The deportation hearing was continued until Jan. 25 to allow Kaminskas more time to prepare his case.

Carter chooses aide Jody Powell to direct press

PLAINS, Ga. (UPI) — Jimmy Carter, making his first White House appointment, named long-time aide Jody Powell as press secretary Monday and invited "interested citizens" to make suggestions for filling other posts.

Carter told his second news conference since election day that the selection process has been "slow and methodical," and Powell's appointment is the only one he has decided so far.

The president-elect said he had "complete confidence" in Powell.

JODY POWELL

POWELL, 32, is believed to be Carter's alter ego and closest confidant. He joined Carter's staff as a full-time driver during his campaign for governor, and became press secretary after the election.

A former cadet who was dismissed from the Air Force Academy, Powell received a BA degree in political science from Georgia State and has nearly completed work on his doctorate from Emory.

Powell, dismissed from the Air Force Academy for cheating, and in an interview with UPI two months ago, said: "I cheated. There were no particularly extenuating circumstances for it. I hope I learned something from it. Whether I did or not, it was a mistake, a serious one."

Carter repeated his intention to "work closely" with Vice President-elect Walter Mondale — who arrives in Plains Tuesday — in choosing the top men for their administration.

CARTER SAID he had a list of 6,000 or 7,000 persons as possible office holders, and he invited "all interested citizens" to submit their recommendations.

He said he would call on "distinguished Americans" to advise him on the recommendations.

"I will personally interview the selections for major posts," Carter said. "I have not made a decision about any of these appointees" with exception of Powell.

Carter said he would personally choose about 75 other appointees, while former campaign manager Hamilton Jordan will coordinate the selection process from his Washington office.

Carter also said he will meet with "distinguished business leaders" sometime next week, and with labor leaders and other groups in the future, and "ask their advice on the Cabinet appointees."

Carter sees 5 to 7% unemployment rate necessarily be bound by any process begun by Sec. of State Henry A. Kissinger.

Carter said he would not rule out mandatory wage and price controls in the event of an economic disaster, but he said he would first seek to use voluntary restraints and "jawboning."

Carter noted 80 per cent of food for peace program funds go to Chile, a country he has criticized as disregarding human rights.

He said foreign aid received by any country likely would be affected by its attitude about human rights.

Men in our towns with fashion savvy

by MARIANNE SCOTT

Richman, poorman, beggarman, thief — doctor, lawyer, merchant, chief.

Whatever their metier there is more than a handful of well-dressed men in our Northwest suburbs. They may never make Robert Green's (Playboy mag) list of 10 best dressed, or the Custom Tailors Guild of America list that includes Hizzoner, but according to an informal survey (our sources were mostly scrubbily-dressed reporters), suburban men do qualify as "fashion leaders."

Always elegantly attired and well groomed with no look alike dullness among them, these suburban style innovators do their own thing.

Let's begin with the head of the list.

RICHMAN. Lacking an in-resident "Rockefeller," who but someone in the banking biz is surrounded by more money? Our sources named Phil Moran, vice president of Mount Prospect State Bank.

The image of the drab, stodgily dressed banker has no place in Phil's business wardrobe. This past summer he sported a yellow coat with plaid-checked trousers, for instance.

Because of his build (42 long with 32 waist), Phil finds that imports fit him better than American-mades, and imports don't come with low price tags. He prefers French fabrics, mainly wools, and has long been turned off on double knits because "they are not neat." Phil likes both lights and darks with bright ties.

For "grubbies" he dons shorts or levis and for an evening at home with friends chooses slacks with cardigan or slim pullover, and shirts mostly in solids except for Indian madras or painted design. His only jewelry is gold chains and a nice watch. He's not big on rings.

POORMAN. Because his job as president of Dist. 211 Board of Education pays zilch, Robert N. (Bob) Creek of Inverness earned honors in this category.

However, Bob doesn't really qualify as a pauper. He has another job — vice president of Union Oil of California — which supplies him with enough salary to dress in Christian Dior and Hart Schaffner & Marx suits.

He has dozens of suits because he has to fit the corporate image in all of his three offices: Los Angeles, San Francisco and Palatine. In Los Angeles, for instance, Bob says businessmen dress ultra conservatively and just recently have begun to switch from black to navy blue.

According to Bob, who is always completely coordinated right down to his sox, men have more fashion savvy

Whatever they do they do in style in the Midwest. Not afraid to let his clothes reflect his personal identity, Bob, depending on season, might wear a blue denim designer suit, an off-white linen or a navy suit with pink shirt. He likes the look of vests but finds them rather warm for all-day office wear.

For an evening with friends he usually chooses a silk or wool jacket with slacks, and for TV sports watching, jeans with open-necked knit shirt. His wardrobe also includes formal attire, though his seldom-worn tails are stored in the attic.

BEGGARMAN. Dave Russell's livelihood isn't dependent on asking for alms or charity for himself; he does, however, seek funds to operate The Bridge, a Palatine youth services organization.

He's a cross between an administrator and a youth director, his business ensembles the envy of all who hate ties. He never wears ties for work. Completely informal, his wardrobe includes California designer sports shirts, heavy knit wool and cashmere sweaters, corduroys and comfortable footwear such as Italian leather boots, soft leather or suedes with crepe soles, mostly from Florsheim. A pair of deep blue "heels" is a recent purchase.

Dave, who really knows his labels, chose a Christian Dior from Mark Shale for his latest suit. To be worn on more formal occasions, the suit's a knit with interesting detail featuring touches of light blue and gold. With it he will likely wear a deep, rich tie and a colored shirt. His favorite colors are trend or even those preceding trend.

Thief. On the grounds that it might be incriminating we'll skip this category. However, we all know about the once well-dressed pillars of the community whose habiliments now include shirts with numbers.

DOCTOR. 'Tis said that patients come a bit unglued when their doctor is so disorganized as to wear mismatched sox. Whether his job is to unquiver a liver or unpile some piles, Dr. Hector Vazquez wears matched sox.

Fortunately, most patients are unconscious when he wears his surgeon's suit — a green get-up that could reduce a conscious person into a state of helpless fear. But his office and calling-on-patients garb has no such overtones. He likes to wear clothes that will make people feel better, and his well-coordinated, cheery raiment, if not his super charming smile, would inspire confidence in even a hypochondriac.

Dr. Vazquez likes French cut sports coats in bright patterns. His most recent purchase is a black velvet sports coat, and he has ordered a St. Laurent suit. He'll take it in either light blue or light green, whichever looks best on him.

The Arlington Heights surgeon, who is also chief of emergency at St. Mary's in the city, also likes practical clothes, like jump suits. He owns two, both in blue denim, and he plans on buying more in other fabrics.

"You can always put a coat over a jump and be well suited," he explained. "And besides, they make you look so skinny!"

LAWYER. Baring your problems to Barrister Dave Griffin could be an uplifting visual experience. In his vested Pierre Cardin suit he'll point out your vested rights.

A European-made shirt and silk tie complete his business ensemble. Recent additions to Dave's wardrobe include suits in gray flannel and heather blue. Most of his ties are bright, though some are subdued with design interest.

Dave owns only one leisure suit, preferring good looking slacks with Qiana print shirt or turtleneck sweater for less formal occasions.

Busy in his own law practice, with office digs in Arlington Heights, Dave is also an Arlington Heights village trustee.

MERCHANT. Ralph H. Martin's merchandise isn't your everyday type of purchase. His wares are biggies. He's in houses and other types of property.

Ralph is vice president of Kunkel Realty, Des Plaines, and also president of the state real estate board, a post that takes him to many formal affairs. But there are no rental duds for Ralph; he owns his own glamour threads.

Out on business six or seven days a week, Ralph must include in his wardrobe a lot of suits, not high style, he'll tell you, but well cut. Most of his shopping is done locally, and because of a color deficiency he buys shirt, tie, everything all at once, and keeps them together in his closet. His favorite colors are blues and grays.

Occasionally he goes casual, donning golf slacks and perhaps a turtleneck. He's not of the jeans camp, he claims, and dons old golf slacks for gardening. Even his only leisure suit is dressy.

CHIEF. The suburbs have lots of chiefs.

One who immediately comes to mind is Donald Totten, state representative and GOP committeeman for Schaumburg Township.

Totten is a far cry from the old image of the politican with the rumpled suit and big, black cigar. A fashion picture at all times, he's a sharp but conservative dresser who has all colors in his wardrobe but prefers blues and grays.

He's also into vests, his most recent purchase being a dark, navy blue, vested suit which he'll team with one of his many shirts in a small stripe pattern.

This Hoffman Estates resident, with offices in Schaumburg, likes to shop at Baskin's and his favorite label is Silver Trumpeter. When not in a suit, he mixes slacks with sports jackets in low key patterns.

He always dresses for everything and only occasionally does he wear a leisure suit, and never, never blue jeans. "I'm not the type," the statesman states.

ANOTHER CHIEF is Howard Kiester of the Buffalo Grove Plan Commission, who has planned a versatile wardrobe of business suits (He's with Illinois Bell in Chicago) and outfits that fit his informal lifestyle at home. He likes moderately bright, low key fashions.

Howard's most recent purchase was, not just one, but four business suits, three with vests, from Marshall Field's where they carry many designer labels. But, except for very formal occasions, friends and neighbors seldom see him in anything but the sharpest of leisure suits (he has a white linen one for summer) or jeans with T shirt and silver neck chain.

"The apparel oft proclaims the man" may have been true in Shakespeare's time, but not so today. Behind every well-dressed gent there's usually a wife with fashion know-how.

All but one of our "fashion leaders" affirmed that their wives accompanied them on shopping sprees. And often as not, the wife does the advance leg work, picking out ensembles, with busy hubby following later to be fitted — and write the check, a privilege still afforded the so-called liberated male.

WELL SUITED for law suits. Attorney Dave Griffin, Arlington Heights, presents a valid case for the new vested suit fashion.

At work or play they set a pace shopping is done locally, and because of a color deficiency he buys shirt, tie, everything all at once, and keeps them together in his closet. His favorite colors are blues and grays.

Occasionally he goes casual, donning golf slacks and perhaps a turtleneck. He's not of the jeans camp, he claims, and dons old golf slacks for gardening. Even his only leisure suit is dressy.

CHIEF. The suburbs have lots of chiefs.

One who immediately comes to mind is Donald Totten, state representative and GOP committeeman for Schaumburg Township.

Totten is a far cry from the old image of the politican with the rumpled suit and big, black cigar. A fashion picture at all times, he's a sharp but conservative dresser who has all colors in his wardrobe but prefers blues and grays.

He's also into vests, his most recent purchase being a dark, navy blue, vested suit which he'll team with one of his many shirts in a small stripe pattern.

The doctor says

by Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Thyroid problem needs evaluation

I am now 46 and 10 years ago I had a thyroid operation. My parathyroid glands were also removed by mistake.

I went through my menopause immediately with cramping of my hands and legs and muscle spasms and also convulsions. The doctor put me on calcium and phosphorus but kept increasing it unitl I was on 35 pills a day, which is hard to swallow.

Lately I have been taking chewable pills which contain 750 milligrams of calcium and 580 milligrams of phosphorus. Could you tell me what would be the right amount of these to take?

I hadn't had a convulsion in almost two years, but in the last two months I have had three of them. I live alone and it is very frightening since I have no idea when I will have one. I have been to five doctors and they just put me on more pills. I cannot drink or eat eggs.

"I wake up all bruised and with black eyes. Is there any way this can be controlled?

Presuming that you are correct in your interpretation that the convulsions are secondary to low parathyroid function, the problem should be solvable.

The parathyroid glands, on each side of the throid gland, are sometimes damaged during surgery. This is often temporary, but your 10 year history means that the damage in your case is permanent.

These tiny glands help regulate the level of calcium in your blood. When they are gone or damaged the blood calcium falls. The low blood calcium, not the menopause, causes the muscle cramps, tetany and convulsions that you have experienced. Usually these symptoms can be controlled if the blood calcium can be maintained at sufficiently high levels. In your case this must have been uncommonly difficult.

The blood calcium is elevated by giving calcium and vitamin D. The vitamin D is very important in the absence of parathyroid glands and it is given in very large doses. This is not the kind of vitamin therapy you should try to regulate yourself but needs to be part of your treatment program. Some doctors prefer to use crystalline dihydrotachysterol called simply A.T. -10 rather than vitamin D because it can be much more rapidly eliminated from the body if you get into trouble with too large a dose.

Anyone who has had as much trouble in regulation as you have had and who is now having convulsions that are not controlled should have an evaluation by an endrocrinology clinic or specialist in endrocrinology. Ask your doctor to send you to the nearest university medical center endocrinology section for a more complete evaluation.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 5-12, Menopause, so you can see the difference between this condition and the one you are experiencing. Menopause does not cause your symptoms. Others who want this issue can send 50 cents for it with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope. Send your letter to me in care of Paddock Publications, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

Coupon-clipper finds organization method

Dear Dorothy: I'm a coupon-clipper and have come up with a real timesaver. When I cut out coupons I put them in an envelope, placing the new ones behind the others — and list these new ones on a card kept in the front of my recipe file. I can quickly glance down the card to see if I have any coupons for things I need. If so, I cross these off as used and add the new ones to the bottom. It takes only minutes to organize and saves endless shuffling of the coupons — and, more, prevents the accumulation of unused coupons. — Diane Whittier

Excellent idea, Diane. These coupons are small dividends and many of us let this fact slip by when we fail to take advantage of coupons.

Dear Dorothy: Your experiments with enzyme pre-soaks prompted me to try soaking a glue stain on my youngster's permanent-press pants. Soaked the pants overnight and while the stain was still visible, I tossed it in with the other clothes in the washer. Cycle done, the stain was gone. Bravo. — Claudia Fraser

Dear Dorothy: Do you have to take off that thin, paper-like covering on leg of lamb? What is it, anyway? — Rosemary Petty

Drinking an art doctor claims

by PATRICIA McCORMACK

If whiskey makes you drunk on occasion, maybe it's not all your fault.

It's probably due in part to being an American. You see, Americans aren't taught the "art of responsible drinking."

The word comes from Dr. Morris Chafetz, former head of the National Institute on Alcohol Abuse. He wants to help Americans to master the drinking art.

While Chafetz was at the Institute's helm, it funded the controversial Rand Corporation Report showing certain recovered alcoholics can drink safely again.

He doesn't understand the controversy since "60 similar studies came to a similar conclusion."

"AMERICANS don't know how to drink," he said in an interview. "They've never been taught.

"There is an art and responsibility that involves individuals and groups. This has not been stressed at all.

"People get turned off by bureaucrats and experts telling them what to do about drinking. I believe in trusting people to make their own decisions. If you level with them and share the scientific secrets they will participate in the decision about drinking — and how to do it."

The scientist attempts to "level with people" in a new book "Why Drinking Can Be Good For You" (Stein and Day).

HE SAID alcohol can be beneficial to your health, when used properly and in measured amounts.

"This is not a recommendation that everyone drink," he said. "For some a drop is too much.

"Drinking is a personal, private decision and the last thing a person wants is to have an expert tell him what to do."

The main benefit of drinking, according to the authority on alcohol abuse: Helping along the human experience of socializing, the "social lubricant" role.

Used properly, alcohol does not kill brain cells as commonly believed, does not shorten the life span of the drinker nor reduce his ability to think clearly, according to Chafetz.

His rules for improving drinking habits so drinking can be good for you:

- Always eat something before drinking and while drinking. Bulky foods — bread, meat, creamy spreads.
- Avoid noisy watering holes which increase tension and create a need for more liquor.
- Measure the amount of alcohol that goes into a drink.
- Remember you are dispensing a drug. No guest should pour his own drink.
- Avoid pretzels, potato chips, and other salty snacks. Alcohol should not be asked to quench an unquenchable thirst.
- Display nonalcoholic beverages so guests don't feel obliged to drink.
- How much to drink? "Most people can enjoy the benefits of alcohol and avoid the pain if they drink no more than one and a half ounces of absolute alcohol per day."

- Good drinking depends on good company. "It's best to drink with people who set expectations that are socially useful and not destructive. Americans tend to fail in this regard."
- Don't drink when you're physically or emotionally upset, lonely or in need of solace. Alcohol is no substitute for another person.

"Responsible drinking is taking alcohol as just part of rather than the reason for, an activity," Chafetz said.

"To focus on drinking as an end in and of itself is the wrong way to go about it."

Chafetz, now a research scientist at the Johns Hopkins University Center for Metropolitan Planning and Research, and president of the Health Education Foundation in Washington, D.C., added:

"I guess the cocktail of responsible drinking contains . . . a jigger of self-respect combined with a dash of common sense poured over cubes of knowledge and stirred well with people."

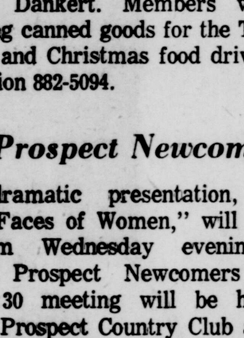
The engagement of two 1972 Prospect High School graduates, Donna Sigfusson and Robert Walter Nachtsheim, has been announced by Mr. and Mrs. Benedict Sigfusson of Mount Prospect. Robert is the son of the Richard Nachtsheims, also of Mount Prospect.

Donna, who holds a journalism degree from the University of Missouri-Columbia, works at Standard Oil of Indiana, where her finance is employed in the accounting department. Robert attended Miami University for two years, then graduated from Missouri-Columbia in accounting.

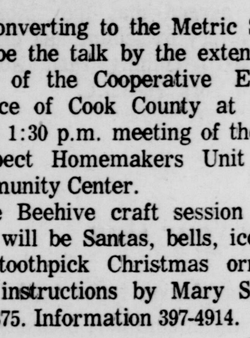
The couple plan a July wedding.



Meyer-Pillion

A May wedding is planned by Nancy Meyer and Jo-Paul Pillion. Nancy's engagement and approaching marriage to the son of Mrs. Margaret Pillion, Iron Mountain, Mich., are announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Meyer, Rolling Meadows.

A graduate of Forest View High, Nancy is employed at Henry C. Lytton, Schaumburg, and her fiance, a graduate of Iron Mountain High, is with Anderson Builders, Schiller Park.



Schwolow-Christensen

Mr. and Mrs. James A. Schwolow of Rolling Meadows announce the engagement of their daughter, Pamela Jeanne, to Gary Paul Christensen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul H. Christensen, Hanover Park. The wedding is planned for August.

Pam, a 1975 graduate of Rolling Meadows High School, is working for C. R. Industries of Elgin. Her fiance, a 1972 graduate of Schaumburg High School, is employed by Wanger Electric, Elk Grove Village.

State supreme court rules

Grandparents don't have grandchildren visit right

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (UPI) — The Illinois Supreme Court Monday ruled that a divorce decree cannot include wording giving grandparents a formal right to visit their grandchildren.

The justices ruled in a case involving John C. Setecka, Cicero, whose divorced daughter, Carol Ann Chodzko, had refused him the right to visit her children.

When Setecka was informed of the ruling he said, "I think they're all wrong."

He said he didn't want to discuss the details of the case, which has been in court since 1971, because he feared it would embarrass his grandchildren. But Setecka said he doesn't know why his daughter refuses to let him see her children.

"YOU MAY THINK that's strange, but I don't know," he said. "It didn't come out in court because she didn't want a hearing."

Mrs. Chodzko could not be reached for comment.

The case began in Cook County Circuit Court when Setecka asked a judge to modify Mrs. Chodzko's divorce decree, which stated formally he could not visit her children.

Setecka asked in his suit that the prohibition be lifted because there was a "deep and abiding love" between him and his grandchildren.

He said in the suit he had visited his grandchildren regularly in the past, bought them clothes and other gifts, taken them to sporting events and helped pay their private school tuition.

The Circuit Court awarded his visitation rights and the appeals court upheld that decision. The Supreme Court disagreed.

MRS. CHODZKO argues in her petition, the high court ruling said, that "visitation privileges can be extended to grandparents only when it is shown that special circumstances beyond mere mutual affection exist to justify an order awarding such visitation.

"Since the grandfather's petition to intervene contained no allegation of such special circumstances and none is shown in the record, the mother contends that the trial court erred in granting visitation to the grandfather.

"We agree with the mother's contention."

The justices said it is "commendable that a bond of love and affection, as alleged, exists between the grandfather, and the minor children.

But they said the mother, "who is charged with the daily responsibility of rearing the children," should retain the right to decide who may or may not visit them.

High court to hear case on schools' racial quotas

by JAMES A. KIDNEY

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court indicated Monday it is anxious to rule on the constitutionality of racial quotas for admissions to colleges and professional schools.

The justices also agreed to reexamine the question of how far employers must go in accommodating the religious beliefs of employes in setting work schedules — an issue on which it deadlocked two weeks ago.

In the education case, the court at the request of California temporarily blocked a state Supreme Court decision striking down a minority quota system for admission to the University of California at Davis medical school.

THE COURT told the state to submit a petition for full review within 30 days, and the stay is effective until the justices dispose of the case. Such stays often signal a willingness to grant full review of the issues.

Allan Bakke, 36, white, sued the state after he twice was turned down for admission to the medical school. The university acknowledged Bakke was more qualified than some minority applicants who were accepted, but said 16 per cent of the school's 100 freshman seats were reserved for nonwhites.

The California Supreme Court rejected the university's argument that the quota was needed to bring minorities into the medical profession, ruling by a 6-1 vote that "a quota becomes no less offensive when it serves to exclude a racial majority."

IN 1974, THE U.S. Supreme Court considered the constitutionality of a quota system at a Washington State law school, but on a 5-4 vote, ruled the case moot after the graduation of the plaintiff, admitted under court order.

No such problem seems likely in Bakke's case because he has not been admitted. The Supreme Court stay means he cannot yet demand admission.

On the religion issue, the court took for review a case filed in Kansas City by Larry G. Hardison, a member of the Worldwide Church of God, against Trans World Airlines and the machinists union.

Hardison sued after he was fired for refusing to work on Saturday, the sabbath observed by his sect. TWA claimed that favoring him would violate the union contract.

The case is similar to one on which the justices deadlocked, 4 to 4, two weeks ago. Justice John Paul Stevens did not sit on that case, but he will do so in the new one.

IN OTHER ACTION Monday, before recessing until Nov. 29, the justices:

- Rejected challenges by Nassau County, N.Y., and Fairfax County, Va., to a federally authorized 16-month trial period for landings of the Concorde SST at Kennedy and Dulles airports outside New York City and Washington.
- Over the votes of three justices, turned down an American Civil Liberties Union challenge to a Middletown, Pa., curfew ordinance for minors. The ACLU said such curfews are in effect in about 3,000 localities and violate minors' rights.
- Agreed to decide whether Michigan must pay a $5.8 million share of the cost of expanding special programs in the Detroit school system to foster integration.

Ends eight-day vacation

Ford ready to complete his term

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford, tanned and slightly slimmer, came home Monday from an eight-day golfing vacation in Palm Springs, Calif., where he may return to live after his presidency.

Aides said he will resume a busy work schedule focused on preparation of a new federal budget.

"I think he is relaxed and rested and ready to complete the duties of his presidency," Press Sec. Ron Nessen told reporters aboard Air Force One as Ford flew to Washington.

WHITE HOUSE sources said Ford and his wife, Betty, are almost sure to settle in Palm Springs after the President's return to private life and that they would leave Washington right after the Jan. 20 inauguration of Jimmy Carter.

Nessen said the Fords looked over a couple of houses for sale as well as some vacant property in the desert resort Sunday, but that "The basic decision has not been made of where his (Ford's) base of operation will be."

"I think the Fords will spend some time in Palm Springs as they have in the last 10 or 12 years," he said. "Beyond that, their plans are not final."

Nessen gave no indication when Ford might announce his post-presidential plans, but other White House officials said the President was expected to make a series of decisions soon, prime among them where to live.

NESSEN SAID Ford would get back to work Tuesday by meeting with various staff members before holding a three-hour session with budget director James T. Lynn and others involved in drafting of the proposed federal budget for fiscal 1978, starting next Oct. 1.

On other matters, Nessen said:

• Ford intends to meet with Carter to coordinate arrangements for transition of power, but no date has been set.

• "There's a good chance" that Ford will spend next weekend with Vice President Nelson Rockefeller at Rockefeller's Pocantico Hills estate in Tarrytown, N.Y. Rockefeller invited Ford "as a friend and colleague for a weekend of relaxation," Nessen said.

• Ford is considering a "farewell speech" to the nation before leaving office, but has not decided yet whether he will deliver a special address or express his personal feelings in the course of the last State of the Union message, which he will present to congress in January.

Maj. Robert Barrett, the military aide who is helping Ford with personal transition plans, said Palm Springs is good for Mrs. Ford. "That's one reason he likes it. The only place that compares would be someplace like Arizona."

The houses Ford looked at were in the same complex where the President lived during his vacation. He stayed in the high-walled villa owned by Leonard K. Firestone, the U.S. ambassador to Belgium, and remained secluded there except for golf outings, a party Wednesday and a hotel reception Saturday night.

The homes are modern, California style with Spanish influence and the Firestone house is reported to be valued at more than $400,000. One house in the area sold recently for more than $1 million.

The exclusive, very private complex has homes inside a country club setting, and owners have automatic access to the club.

Kidnaped trooper dies in gun battle

DURHAM, N.C. (UPI) — A kidnaped Virginia state policeman was killed Monday during a barrage of gunfire at a roadblock in North Carolina when officers attempted to halt his abductor.

The suspected kidnaper was wounded but hospitalized in stable condition. Authorities awaited the results of an autopsy to determine whether the trooper, Garland W. Fisher, 33, of Petersburg, Va., was killed by the kidnaper or by police bullets.

An autopsy late Monday showed Fisher was shot 14 times, but Medical Examiner Dr. Wilton Reavis said a decision on who fired the fatal shots would have to wait ballisticts tests.

The shootout took place 10 miles north of Durham, 70 miles from the spot where the trooper was abducted.

THE SUSPECT in the kidnaping was identified as Rubin Connelly, 33, of Atlanta. He was reported in stable condition at Duke University Hospital where he was taken for treatment of wounds in his chest, knee and hands.

Col. E. W. Jones, commander of the North Carolina Highway Patrol, said his preliminary investigation failed to determine if his officers fired the shots which killed Fisher.

Jones said interviews with patrolmen at the roadblock indicated shots had come from the car first.

Fisher's body was reported to have as many as 16 wounds and authorities said only the autopsy would determine the cause of death, authorities said.

Jones said investigators believed Fisher, a 12-year veteran of the state police and father of a 6-year-old girl, was shot at least once before the pair crossed the state line into North Carolina.

HE SAID VIRGINIA police reported Fisher made a radio call at 11:44 p.m. and said he had been shot by a man who was forcing him to drive to Atlanta.

Virginia authorities believed Fisher stopped Connelly for driving down the wrong side of I-85 about one-half mile north of where Connelly's car was found.

Jones said he had interviewed Connelly's sister in Atlanta and she had described him as "very troubled with things on his mind." She told Jones her brother had never been in any trouble and she did not know why he was in Virginia.

The firing at the roadblock broke out, said Jones, when the suspect's car pulled over to the shoulder and tried to pass the roadblock. Jones said the suspect was sitting in the back seat.

"One of the officers indicated there was some firing from inside the car first," Jones said. "I have not been able to confirm who fired first."

Two highway patrol sergeants at the scene made the decision to stop the car. "I think they were somewhat apprehensive about what would happen when they got to Durham where there are so many exits," said Jones.

NAVY

1977 HIGH SCHOOL GRADUATES

If you are considering college in your future, educational financing is likely one of your major concerns. G. I. Bill education may be one option available to you, but current benefits of this program will be terminated Dec. 31, 1976. Consider this: the Navy has over 60 challenging specialties from nuclear engineering to personnel administration. We can provide you with training and practical experience in your field of interest and eligibility for current G.I. Bill educational benefits by enrolling in the Navy's Delayed Entry Program by Dec. 31, 1976. If this training, experience & financial assistance for your planned education are options you would consider valuable, let's talk about it.

NAVY

1977 HIGH SCHOOL GRADUATES

If you are considering college in your future, educational financing is likely one of your major concerns. G. I. Bill education may be one option available to you, but current benefits of this program will be terminated Dec. 31, 1976. Consider this: the Navy has over 60 challenging specialties from nuclear engineering to personnel administration. We can provide you with training and practical experience in your field of interest and eligibility for current G.I. Bill educational benefits by enrolling in the Navy's Delayed Entry Program by Dec. 31, 1976. If this training, experience & financial assistance for your planned education are options you would consider valuable, let's talk about it.

Notice of Public Hearing

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN to all interested persons that a design public hearing will be held regarding the location and design of the proposed improvements to the intersection of Rand Road, Central Road and Mt. Prospect Road within the Village of Mount Prospect and the City of Des Plaines. The public hearing will be held at 7:30 p.m., December 16, 1976 at the Mount Prospect Public Safety Building, 112 E. Northwest Highway in the Village of Mount Prospect Board of Trustees' room.

The limits of the proposed improvement are: on Rand Road from a point approximately 1500 feet northwest of Central Road to a point approximately 900 feet southeast of Central Road: on Central Road from a point approximately 100 feet west of George Street to a point approximately 150 feet east of Westgate Road; and on Mt. Prospect Road from a point approximately 500 feet south of Central to a proposed intersection with Rand Road approximately 275 feet north of Central Road. The total length of the proposed improvement is approximately 0.97 miles.

The proposed intersection improvement will include pavement widening at: the intersection of Rand Road and Central Road to provide two (2) thru-traffic lanes in each direction at each approach plus separate left-turn lanes on Rand Road and separate right and left turn lanes on the east approach of Central Road; the intersection of Central Road and Relocated Mt. Prospect Road to provide two (2) thru-traffic lanes in each direction plus separate left-turn lanes on Central Road; and the new intersection of Relocated Mt. Prospect Road and Rand Road to provide two (2) thru-traffic lanes in each direction plus separate right-turn lanes on Rand Road and a separate left-turn lane on the northwest approach of Rand Road. Existing Mt. Prospect is proposed to be realigned to a new location approximately 400 feet west of its present alignment and is to be extended northerly to a new intersection at Rand Road. New traffic signal installations are proposed at the Relocated Mt. Prospect Road intersections with Central Road and Rand Road. The existing traffic signals at Rand Road and Central Road will be modernized. Maps, drawings, and others information developed in conjunction with this project will be presented and discussed at the public hearing.

Right-of-way acquisition is required for the proposed project. The tentative schedule for right-of-way acquisition and proposed construction dates will be discussed at the hearing. The Illinois Department of Transportation's Relocation Assistance and Payments Program, which will be available to anyone displaced as a direct result of this project, will also be discussed at the hearing.

In the "Environmental Assessment Report" for the project, the proposed improvement has been determined to constitute a non-major action. The Illinois Department of Transportation and Federal Highway Administration have concurred in the findings of the report. The report, maps, drawings, and other information developed by the Village of Mount Prospect and the City of Des Plaines in conjunction with this project, and any written views received as a result of coordination with other agencies, are available for public inspection and copying at the following locations: Village of Mount Prospect, Engineering Department, 100 South Emerson, Mount Prospect, Illinois; and the City of Des Plaines, Engineering Department, 1420 Miner Street, Des Plaines, Illinois. The above offices are open Monday through Friday from 8:30 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. Information is also available by telephone from the Village of Mount Prospect Engineering Department at 392-6000, or from the City of Des Plaines Engineering Department at 297-1200.

Written statements and other exhibits in place of, or in addition to, oral statements presented at the public hearing will be accepted after the public hearing up to December 27, 1976 at 5:00 p.m. at the Village of Mount Prospect Engineering Department and the City of Des Plaines Engineering Department.

Notice of Public Hearing

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN to all interested persons that a design public hearing will be held regarding the location and design of the proposed improvements to the intersection of Rand Road, Central Road and Mt. Prospect Road within the Village of Mount Prospect and the City of Des Plaines. The public hearing will be held at 7:30 p.m., December 16, 1976 at the Mount Prospect Public Safety Building, 112 E. Northwest Highway in the Village of Mount Prospect Board of Trustees' room.

The limits of the proposed improvement are: on Rand Road from a point approximately 1500 feet northwest of Central Road to a point approximately 900 feet southeast of Central Road; on Central Road from a point approximately 100 feet west of George Street to a point approximately 150 feet east of Westgate Road; and on Mt. Prospect Road from a point approximately 500 feet south of Central to a proposed intersection with Rand Road approximately 275 feet north of Central Road. The total length of the proposed improvement is approximately 0.97 miles.

The proposed intersection improvement will include pavement widening at: the intersection of Rand Road and Central Road to provide two (2) thru-traffic lanes in each direction at each approach plus separate left-turn lanes on Rand Road and separate right and left turn lanes on the east approach of Central Road; the intersection of Central Road and Relocated Mt. Prospect Road to provide two (2) thru-traffic lanes in each direction plus separate left-turn lanes on Central Road; and the new intersection of Relocated Mt. Prospect Road and Rand Road to provide two (2) thru-traffic lanes in each direction plus separate right-turn lanes on Rand Road and a separate left-turn lane on the northwest approach of Rand Road. Existing Mt. Prospect is proposed to be realigned to a new location approximately 400 feet west of its present alignment and is to be extended northerly to a new intersection at Rand Road. New traffic signal installations are proposed at the Relocated Mt. Prospect Road intersections with Central Road and Rand Road. The existing traffic signals at Rand Road and Central Road will be modernized. Maps, drawings, and others information developed in conjunction with this project will be presented and discussed at the public hearing.

Right-of-way acquisition is required for the proposed project. The tentative schedule for right-of-way acquisition and proposed construction dates will be discussed at the hearing. The Illinois Department of Transportation's Relocation Assistance and Payments Program, which will be available to anyone displaced as a direct result of this project, will also be discussed at the hearing.

In the "Environmental Assessment Report" for the project, the proposed improvement has been determined to constitute a non-major action. The Illinois Department of Transportation and Federal Highway Administration have concurred in the findings of the report. The report, maps, drawings, and other information developed by the Village of Mount Prospect and the City of Des Plaines in conjunction with this project, and any written views received as a result of coordination with other agencies, are available for public inspection and copying at the following locations: Village of Mount Prospect, Engineering Department, 100 South Emerson, Mount Prospect, Illinois; and the City of Des Plaines, Engineering Department, 1420 Miner Street, Des Plaines, Illinois. The above offices are open Monday through Friday from 8:30 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. Information is also available by telephone from the Village of Mount Prospect Engineering Department at 392-6000, or from the City of Des Plaines Engineering Department at 297-1200.

Written statements and other exhibits in place of, or in addition to, oral statements presented at the public hearing will be accepted after the public hearing up to December 27, 1976 at 5:00 p.m. at the Village of Mount Prospect Engineering Department and the City of Des Plaines Engineering Department.

FROM A NEARBY town dump, toxic liquids are flowing into three of four pounds on Bo Waldie's land, and there is little question they will ever be the same. Waldi, says the town's rush to progress left the ponds strangling in pollution.

Toxic liquids strangling New Englander's 3 ponds

by JAMES V. HEALION

CROMWELL, Conn. (UPI) — As a boy, Bo Waldie swam and fished in the four ponds on his father's land, drawing from their still waters what he now wants for his children — an appreciation of nature. But it's not likely his hopes will be realized.

Waldie, 33, a tall outdoorsman, says this town's rush to progress left three ponds strangling in pollution's grip. And Waldie is an angry man, a flinty New Englander, who vows a fight to the finish.

Toxic liquids are flowing into three of Waldie's ponds from a nearby town dump and there is little question they ever will be the same even if the dump is closed.

HIS FATHER before him farmed the land for 32 years when Cromwell was another small town where neighbor knew neighbor and a road to Hartford was known as "The Shunpike," a term coined by stagecoach drivers who shunned main turnpikes to avoid their tolls or traffic.

It was Cromwell's country setting and closeness to Hartford, 15 miles to the north, that appealed to real estate developers. Condominiums appeared. Industry expanded.

Waldie's late father sounded the first alarm about encroaching development.

"HE WAS JUST a good man with a sixth-grade education who worked at night and farmed by day," the son said. The elder Waldie was killed in a tractor accident in 1969.

"When the town grew by leaps and bounds he knew, like any practical man, that more people produce more garbage. And because our land adjoins the town dump, it stood to reason at least three of the four ponds on it would be endangered.

"It's simple enough. If the level of the dump is higher than the ponds and three of them are flow-connected with brooks running into them, the seepage and rains will carry the leachate (toxic liquids) into them.

"NOBODY WOULD listen. My father was so disgusted he had trees felled to fill in one of the ponds, but once the trees were down and he looked at that pond we enjoyed so much he couldn't bring himself to do it.

"The irony is that if our septic tanks were running over and bothering, they (the officials) would be after us to fix it within 30 days or be cited."

Waldie, a steamfitter, has been a disturber of this town's peace. He has confronted town officials, written letters to newspapers and was arrested recently for blocking the access road to the dump.

HIS FIRST BRUSH with the bureaucracy came in 1972 when he said he was assured by William J. Salwocki, then the first selectman (mayor), that the dump would be closed by the end of 1976 because the state Dept. of Environmental Protection said so.

Waldie checked periodically and could not confirm the promised closing.

A department spokesman told United Press International that Salwocki may have based his comments on a projection the department circulated in 1972, advising the dump should be closed in 1976.

It was not an order, but a recommendation, and the dump in the town's isolated western pocket near I-91 remains open, trickling its red poisons into the Waldie ponds.

Incumbent First Selectman J. Peter Mahony said recently the town is negotiating with Ronald and Alvin Ravizza, who lease the dump acreage to the town.

Mahony said drainage improvements are planned and the town would not hesitate to close the dump if the state could find a suitable alternative.

WALDIE'S LONE struggle apparently was not without success of sorts. The environmental department ordered the town on Sept. 13 to take certain corrective steps and to conduct, at its own expense, a comprehensive engineering analysis of the site to determine the dump's life expectancy.

While the department is evidently convinced the three ponds at the site are polluted, Waldie says they can be reclaimed if the dump is closed and the ponds are dredged — at the town's expense.

"I think a good case could be made for it and I'm talking to my lawyer about it," Waldie said, adding that, if it turns out he loses, "One thing's for sure. I'll go down with flags flying."

Decision today in Mikva-Young ballot dispute?

Abner Mikva

Sam Young

by TONI GINNETTI

Two weeks after the Nov. 2 election, a decision could come today in the controversy surrounding the counting of undelivered absentee ballots in the 10th Congressional District race.

Cook County Circuit Court Judge Arthur L. Dunne Monday continued until 2 p.m. today a hearing surrounding U.S. Rep. Abner J. Mikva's request for a court order compelling Cook County Clerk Stanley T. Kusper Jr. to count some 4,800 absentee ballots which were not delivered in time for counting at local precincts on election day.

Dunne said during emergency proceedings Monday that he would allow state's attorneys representing Kusper and attorneys representing Republican Samuel Young, Mikva's 10th District challenger, to file briefs today before hearing the case.

HE ADDED he was concerned about settling the issue, which has waivered unresolved before three judges in the past two weeks.

Dunne also indicated he favors Mikva's position, saying "the court may be tipping its hand" in singling out the portion of the state election laws dealing with the time absentee ballots are received by the clerk and the time they are delivered to precincts.

"That is the heart of the matter," Dunne said. "Were these ballots returned with sufficient time to be counted?

"I'm not just talking about the 10th Congressional District. I'm concerned about all the absentee ballots and the right of people who vote to have their vote counted just as I would want my ballot counted if I voted absentee," Dunne said.

KUSPER HAS said the ballots in question, including some 2,669 in the Mikva-Young race, were collected by his office in a special postal pickup at mid-afternoon Nov. 2 but were not delivered in time for counting at precincts.

Dunne also told the court he resides in the 10th District and voted in the general election, and said he would remove himself from the case if either side so requested. He stressed, however, that he believed he could remain impartial in the matter.

Neither side objected to Dunne hearing the case.

The Mikva-Young race has remained in doubt since Nov. 2, with unofficial canvass results giving Mikva only a 201-vote margin over Young.

MIKVA HAS pushed to include in the final tally the uncounted absentee ballots, which in the past have gone heavily in his favor, while Young has opposed the effort.

Kusper has said he wants to include the ballots but failed in an effort last week to win court approval for the move. Circuit Court Judge Joseph Schneider ruled the court had no jurisdiction to issue a declaratory judgment for the count, which Kusper had sought.

State's Atty. Bernard Carey has said Kusper can include the ballots, but Kusper has held off on a final decision until the court proceedings are settled.

The countywide election results have yet to be certified because of the absentee ballot dispute. The election results must be certified by Monday according to state law.

FROM A NEARBY town dump, toxic liquids are flowing into three of four pounds on Bo Waldie's land, and there is little question they will ever be the same. Waldi, says the town's rush to progress left the ponds strangling in pollution.

Toxic liquids strangling New Englander's 3 ponds

by JAMES V. HEALION

CROMWELL, Conn. (UPI) — As a boy, Bo Waldie swam and fished in the four ponds on his father's land, drawing from their still waters what he now wants for his children — an appreciation of nature. But it's not likely his hopes will be realized.

Waldie, 33, a tall outdoorsman, says this town's rush to progress left three ponds strangling in pollution's grip. And Waldie is an angry man, a flinty New Englander, who vows a fight to the finish.

Toxic liquids are flowing into three of Waldie's ponds from a nearby town dump and there is little question they ever will be the same even if the dump is closed.

HIS FATHER before him farmed the land for 32 years when Cromwell was another small town where neighbor knew neighbor and a road to Hartford was known as "The Shunpike," a term coined by stagecoach drivers who shunned main turnpikes to avoid their tolls or traffic.

It was Cromwell's country setting and closeness to Hartford, 15 miles to the north, that appealed to real estate developers. Condominiums appeared. Industry expanded.

Waldie's late father sounded the first alarm about encroaching development.

"HE WAS JUST a good man with a sixth-grade education who worked at night and farmed by day," the son said. The elder Waldie was killed in a tractor accident in 1969.

"When the town grew by leaps and bounds he knew, like any practical man, that more people produce more garbage. And because our land adjoins the town dump, it stood to reason at least three of the four ponds on it would be endangered.

"It's simple enough. If the level of the dump is higher than the ponds and three of them are flow-connected with brooks running into them, the seepage and rains will carry the leachate (toxic liquids) into them.

"NOBODY WOULD listen. My father was so disgusted he had trees felled to fill in one of the ponds, but once the trees were down and he looked at that pond we enjoyed so much he couldn't bring himself to do it.

"The irony is that if our septic tanks were running over and bothering, they (the officials) would be after us to fix it within 30 days or be cited."

Waldie, a steamfitter, has been a disturber of this town's peace. He has confronted town officials, written letters to newspapers and was arrested recently for blocking the access road to the dump.

HIS FIRST BRUSH with the bureaucracy came in 1972 when he said he was assured by William J. Salwocki, then the first selectman (mayor), that the dump would be closed by the end of 1976 because the state Dept. of Environmental Protection said so.

Waldie checked periodically and could not confirm the promised closing.

A department spokesman told United Press International that Salwocki may have based his comments on a projection the department circulated in 1972, advising the dump should be closed in 1976.

It was not an order, but a recommendation, and the dump in the town's isolated western pocket near I-91 remains open, trickling its red poisons into the Waldie ponds.

Incumbent First Selectman J. Peter Mahony said recently the town is negotiating with Ronald and Alvin Ravizza, who lease the dump acreage to the town.

Mahony said drainage improvements are planned and the town would not hesitate to close the dump if the state could find a suitable alternative.

WALDIE'S LONE struggle apparently was not without success of sorts. The environmental department ordered the town on Sept. 13 to take certain corrective steps and to conduct, at its own expense, a comprehensive engineering analysis of the site to determine the dump's life expectancy.

While the department is evidently convinced the three ponds at the site are polluted, Waldie says they can be reclaimed if the dump is closed and the ponds are dredged — at the town's expense.

"I think a good case could be made for it and I'm talking to my lawyer about it," Waldie said, adding that, if it turns out he loses, "One thing's for sure. I'll go down with flags flying."

Decision today in Mikva-Young ballot dispute?

Abner Mikva

Sam Young

by TONI GINNETTI

Two weeks after the Nov. 2 election, a decision could come today in the controversy surrounding the counting of undelivered absentee ballots in the 10th Congressional District race.

Cook County Circuit Court Judge Arthur L. Dunne Monday continued until 2 p.m. today a hearing surrounding U.S. Rep. Abner J. Mikva's request for a court order compelling Cook County Clerk Stanley T. Kusper Jr. to count some 4,800 absentee ballots which were not delivered in time for counting at local precincts on election day.

Dunne said during emergency proceedings Monday that he would allow state's attorneys representing Kusper and attorneys representing Republican Samuel Young, Mikva's 10th District challenger, to file briefs today before hearing the case.

HE ADDED he was concerned about settling the issue, which has waivered unresolved before three judges in the past two weeks.

Dunne also indicated he favors Mikva's position, saying "the court may be tipping its hand" in singling out the portion of the state election laws dealing with the time absentee ballots are received by the clerk and the time they are delivered to precincts.

"That is the heart of the matter," Dunne said. "Were these ballots returned with sufficient time to be counted?

"I'm not just talking about the 10th Congressional District. I'm concerned about all the absentee ballots and the right of people who vote to have their vote counted just as I would want my ballot counted if I voted absentee," Dunne said.

KUSPER HAS said the ballots in question, including some 2,669 in the Mikva-Young race, were collected by his office in a special postal pickup at mid-afternoon Nov. 2 but were not delivered in time for counting at precincts.

Dunne also told the court he resides in the 10th District and voted in the general election, and said he would remove himself from the case if either side so requested. He stressed, however, that he believed he could remain impartial in the matter.

Neither side objected to Dunne hearing the case.

The Mikva-Young race has remained in doubt since Nov. 2, with unofficial canvass results giving Mikva only a 201-vote margin over Young.

MIKVA HAS pushed to include in the final tally the uncounted absentee ballots, which in the past have gone heavily in his favor, while Young has opposed the effort.

Kusper has said he wants to include the ballots but failed in an effort last week to win court approval for the move. Circuit Court Judge Joseph Schneider ruled the court had no jurisdiction to issue a declaratory judgment for the count, which Kusper had sought.

State's Atty. Bernard Carey has said Kusper can include the ballots, but Kusper has held off on a final decision until the court proceedings are settled.

The countywide election results have yet to be certified because of the absentee ballot dispute. The election results must be certified by Monday according to state law.

Hawk runner meets goals in nationals

Wil Fieldhouse, Harper College's most successful cross-country runner in seven years, capped an outstanding season with a 31st-place finish in the Junior College Nationals at Farmingdale, N.Y.

The former Fremd High School harrier had qualified for the nationals two weeks ago by taking fifth place in the Region IV meet in Champaign. He was the only Harper runner to make it through the regionals.

"Wil met his big goals this year," said Harper coach Bob Nolan, who accompanied Fieldhouse to New York. "He qualified with a really strong fifth-place finish and he ran what I thought was the race of his life in the nationals.

"HE RAN A really beautiful race under pressure conditions," Nolan added, "when it's so easy to be off."

Fieldhouse's performance was the best finish by a Hawk runner in the nationals since 1969 when Jim Macnider placed 21st. Macnider is currently head cross-country coach at Schaumburg High School.

The individual winner was Robin Holland of Allegheny Community College of Pittsburgh, Pa. Holland's time was 23:26 for five miles of relatively flat terrain at Bethpage State Park on Long Island.

Allegheny was an incredibly easy team winner, too. Three of Holland's teammates were right behind him in second, third and fourth as Allegheny scored 18 points. Six of the team's runners earned All-American honors.

The second-place team, Pima (Ariz.) Junior College, totaled 118 points.

FIELDHOUSE RAN his fastest five-mile time ever, 24:20, and finished strong, but he failed to garner All-American status by six places and just seven seconds.

"Wil ran a super, well-paced race," Nolan said. "He was about 75th at the mile and he moved up to about 50th at two-and-a-half. He finished strong, he didn't die, and he was passing people. As it was, I was yelling at him to pass a few more guys. And he was a little mad because he thought he could have got a few people at the end."

Fieldhouse went out fast, clocking a 4:30 for the first mile, but not to take the lead. He needed to maintain good position near the front of the huge pack.

"You need to get to the front for the first turn, especially in a race like this with almost 300 runners," said Nolan.

Fieldhouse's effort was the best for any Region IV runner, including members of Lincoln Land and Danville, the two top teams in the region. Lincoln Land finished 15th as a team and Danville was 24th.

Debate ahead on Blackman future

Loren Tate

ANN ARBOR, Mich. — Bob Blackman has dealt nimbly and patiently with repeated questions about his future during the University of Illinois football team's six-for-eight losing spin.

At Michigan, just as at Ohio State, he followed a logical line of thinking.

"A coach should be judged on his day-in, day-out performance . . . his record over a period of time," he said to a scribbling press corps following Saturday's 38-7 loss to the Wolverines.

It was Illinois' 17th setback in 18 meetings with the Wolverines, dominance in this series being established a dozen years before Blackman came on the scene.

"I HAVE no idea what effect this game might have," he continued. "But I feel it would be ridiculous to base a coach's job on one game."

Still, this sixth UI setback guaranteed Illinois' 10th losing campaign in 11, and it could have a bearing on Blackman's future. Eight of the 11 members of the UI Athletic Board were present as guests of athletic director Cecil Coleman in Ann Arbor, and a ninth, Jim Grabowski, was also present as a radio broadcaster.

These Illini athletic leaders — Coleman, faculty rep Bill Ferguson, board chairman Jack Chamblin, vice-chairman Frank Hinds, female members Mary Jones and Elizabeth Lyman, Chicagoan Paul Patterson, Grabo and the rest — are a grim group, and they'll be convening again in Champaign Friday to engage in weighty discussions.

By coincidence, the UI Board of Trustees is also meeting that day.

SO, EVEN if nothing evolves for public consumption prior to Saturday's Illini-Northwestern game, a great deal will be happening. And this will become apparent early next week.

One who has waded through similar problems in the past, recently retired Indiana University athletic director Bill Orwig, viewed the Illini situation from a distance in Ann Arbor Saturday.

"The one thing I learned is that you cannot operate a successful football program at the Big Ten level with a head coach on a one-year contract," he said.

"I fought with our board to give John Pont a long-term contract at Indiana. You simply have to do it for recruiting purposes. That's why I told John to go to Northwestern when the opportunity came up (in 1973). Coaching football is a highly pressurized job and the coach needs some degree of security. John couldn't get it at Indiana, even though he was then and is now as fine a coach as anyone, Bo Schembechler and Woody Hayes included.

"RECRUITING is the key to everything. Young athletes want to have some assurance that the coach who recruits them will be there when it comes time for them to play."

Orwig has no inside information as to Bob Blackman's future at Illinois, but he did offer this advice:

"If they're going to retain him, they should hand him a five-year contract and get behind him 100 per cent. If he is extended just one year, the same situation will come up next year."

Blackman has made no demands for a multi-year contract, other than to state:

"THERE IS no question the contractual situation is used against us by other schools in recruiting situations. For that reason, it would be preferred. For myself, I'm not that concerned . . . and I don't want to coach anywhere I'm not wanted."

Assistant coaches note that recruiting is currently at a standstill until the matter is settled. Prep athletes throughout the state are watching and waiting for a decision.

Coleman, meanwhile, has icily refused to consider a multi-year contract for any established members of his coaching staff, although he handed basketball coach Lou Henson a five-year pact to come from New Mexico and has confided that "you couldn't attract the right man to Illinois as head football coach without giving him a long-term contract."

Thus, by the mere issuance of a multi-year contract, a new man would automatically have an edge over an incumbent without one . . . and, if all other factors were equal, a greater chance of success.

THAT IS a basic unfairness in most coaching changes, the new man often receiving some of the items which the previous coach sought and could not get.

In the case of Blackman, the UI board will be pondering a man who has upgraded Illinois from the 4-26 depths to a level of competitiveness with all Big Ten schools except perennial national title contenders Ohio State and Michigan.

His accomplishments, however, have been dimmed somewhat by recent in-state recruiting and on-field disappointments, and the primary issue is now: Is Bob Blackman the man to take it from here?

If he isn't, the search begins. If he is, wouldn't it make sense to lift the one-year contractual monkey off his back?

Wheeling launches area basketball slate tonight

An optimistic coach Ted Ecker leads his untried Wheeling basketball team into battle at Addison Trail Tuesday night, raising the curtain on a new cage season for the Herald area.

The Wildcats and Blazers will square off at approximately 8 p.m. with Addison's veteran 6-7 center Bob Kowsky towering over anything Wheeling will put on the court.

'Cat pivotman Ken Paulus is 6-3. He and 5-11 guard Brian Begrowicz will be providing the leadership for a Wildcat club aiming at improving on last winter's 11-14 slate.

"We have no lettermen returning and we're obviously not a big team but I'm still very optimistic," Ecker reported. "It's a hard working group that's easy to coach and I think they'll be fun to watch. Quickness is going to be their strong suit.

In addition to Paulus and Begrowicz, 6-2 junior Jim Lockefeer, 5-10 senior Rick Heredia and 6-0 sophomore Jim Sabal will probably round out the starting lineup. All but Paulus have seen some previous varsity action.

Others who should be seeing a good deal of combat for Wheeling this season include 5-11 Steve Majkowski, 5-7 Bob Steinberg, 5-11 Bill Luzinski, 6-3 Bob Mendralla and 5-9 Scott Shirley. All but senior Mendralla are juniors.

The Wildcats will have their home opener on Friday, against Barrington. Eight other area teams will also be inaugurating the 1976-77 campaign that evening.

Hawk runner meets goals in nationals

Wil Fieldhouse, Harper College's most successful cross-country runner in seven years, capped an outstanding season with a 31st-place finish in the Junior College Nationals at Farmingdale, N.Y.

The former Fremd High School harrier had qualified for the nationals two weeks ago by taking fifth place in the Region IV meet in Champaign. He was the only Harper runner to make it through the regionals.

"Wil met his big goals this year," said Harper coach Bob Nolan, who accompanied Fieldhouse to New York. "He qualified with a really strong fifth-place finish and he ran what I thought was the race of his life in the nationals.

NORTHWESTERN QUARTERBACK Randy Dean en route to Offensive Player of the Week honors Saturday. Dean received the UPI Midwest award Monday for engineering a 42-21 upset over Michigan State. He passed for 272 yards, including two touchdown bombs, and ran for a pair of TDs.

Cowboys nip Bills

IRVING, Tex. — Roger Staubach, bothered all night by a withering Buffalo blitz, hooked up with his favorite receiver, Drew Pearson, to score one touchdown and set up a fourth-quarter field goal Monday night that allowed Dallas to hold off the Bills, 17-10.

The victory was the ninth of the year for the Cowboys and it helped them maintain a one-game lead over the St. Louis Cardinals in the NFC East.

But the decision did not come easy as the Bills' improved defense harassed Staubach into one of his poorest games of the year and shut down the Dallas running attack as well.

Weber family shines in World Open

Rich Weber, the son of a Hall of Famer, held the first-round lead at the sixth annual Brunswick World Open in Glendale Heights Monday night. Weber rolled an eight-game score of 1930 to hold a two-pin lead over Rich Carrubba and a three-pin margin over Wayne Zahn.

Weber's dad, Dick, is in 14th place with 1804 with younger brother John, 18, in 26th at 1756.

Palatine's Les Zikes is in 95th place with 1605.

Tommy Hudson and Jim Plessinger scored the day's only perfect games.

Bo talks about showdown game...

ANN ARBOR, Mich. — Coach Bo Schembechler said Monday he does not feel "jinxed" just ecause Michigan has not beaten Ohio State since 1971.

The Wolverines go to Columbus, Ohio, Saturday to play the Buckeyes of Coach Woody Hayes with the Rose Bowl berth and conference title at stake. Ohio State, 7-0 in the Big Ten, has a share of the championship cinched since Michigan is 6-1.

Hayes holds a 4-2-1 edge over his former assistant and has not lost to Schembechler since Michigan came out on top, 10-7, in 1971. The coach of the Wolverines has yet to end any of his seasons at Michigan with a victory.

"Any time you lose a big game, it takes something out of you," Schembechler said in a press conference, "But I don't look at it like you people.

"We've played every game (in the series) hard," he said, "we've been prepared well. We were in every game . . . we had a chance to win. We just didn't win them all.

"I don't look at it like we're 'jinxed' at all."

. . . But Woody won't until Saturday

COLUMBUS, Ohio — A relaxed Ohio State Coach Woody Hayes told his weekly news luncheon Monday he preferred to "wait until Saturday" to talk about the Buckeyes' Big Ten showdown with Michigan.

"After that game Saturday (Minnesota), there's not much to say," Hayes began, "and the game coming up (Michigan), we never have anything to report until after it is over. We'll wait until Saturday to talk about that."

Ohio State Sports Information Director Marv Homan announced that, as usual, Buckeye practices would be closed but Hayes would meet the press each night after practice.

Hayes even tried to discourage attendance at those meetings by saying, "I don't think they will be very newsworthy. If we have an injury, we're not going to announce it and we won't be changing our usual practice program any."

Shutt's 19th goal paces Montreal

MONTREAL — Steve Shutt scored his 19th goal of the season in the third period Monday night and the Montreal Canadiens defeated the St. Louis Blues 4-2 in a National Hockey League game.

The victory was the 14th of the season for Montreal, the most in the NHL, and it gave the Canadiens 31 points, also tops in the league. Montreal now holds a nine-point advantage over the Los Angeles Kings in the Norris Division.

Bears sideline Dickey for season

GREEN BAY, Wis. — Starting quarterback Lynn Dickey of the Green Bay Packers has a dislocated shoulder, and is lost to the team for the season.

Bart Starr, coach and general manager of the Packers, said Monday that Dickey would undergo surgery Wednesday. The injury occurred in Sunday's 24-13 loss to the Chicago Bears. Starr said backup quarterback Carlos Brown would be the starter next Sunday against Minnesota. Brown is the only healthy quarterback on the Green Bay roster.

Schaumburg Kings

The Schaumburg Kings Hockey League has officially opened their 1976/77 season with two Mite, two Squirt, two Pee Wee and two Bantam teams plus one Midget and one Senior unit.

PEE WEE

Playing their first game of the year, the Kings came out flying and beat Naperville, 4-1. Scoring the first goal of the season in the first period was Mike Cress. Howard Leek scored once while Vince Russo had a good night scoring twice. John Machonis stopped 17 shots in net.

The Pee Wees traveled to Lake Barrington for a very close contest, with the Broncos winning, 5-4. Scoring for the Kings were Ron Wehrs with two and Jim Fuchsen and John Murphy with one each. Mike Cress was in net with 16 saves while the Kings had 18 shots at Barrington.

The Pee Wees beat Naperville, 2-1 for their second victory over the Sabres. Good work by the defense held the slim King lead. Mike Sikora and Jim Walsh scored. Mike Cress had 11 saves in net.

The game was tied until the third period when Evanston scored twice to beat the Kings, 3-1. Vince Russo scored, assisted by Ron Wehrs.

BANTAM

In league action, the Kings met a strong Evanston team and lost 8-1. Nick Steinbach scored the lone goal for the King with an assist by Bumper Waghorne. Steve Garland had 22 saves in net.

The Bantams won their first league game, 4-2, over the Arlington Rangers. Joe Keller scored twice with Dave Jakubel and John Keller each beating the Arlington goalie once. The Kings outshot the Rangers 16-8. Dave Klosowski and Steve Garland shared the net.

MITE AA

The King Mites hockey team visited St. Louis over the Halloween weekend and came home victors. After losing their first game, 4-2 to the Rockets they beat Delta 6-0, played the Rockets again and won 5-3 and finished against Delta winning 5-3. The victories raised the Mites record to 4-1-1-.

PEE WEE AA

In the first North Suburban league game of the season the Pee Wees' Tony DeVita scored a hat trick, leading the Kings past Highland Park 3-1. John Machonis looked sharp stopping 12 shots.

The Pee Wees visited St. Louis and saw some heavy action. They tied Olivette 1-1; lost to Delta 4-1; beat Delta 4-2 and were beaten by Olivette 4-2. The Pee Wees look very solid and will be a team to contend with in the season ahead. Scoring in St. Louis were Mike Stevenson with 2, Tony DeVita 2, Joe Zeller 2 and Brad Tally 1.

Area skaters prepare for Wilmette headliner

Three Herald area members of the Skokie Valley Skating Club will be part of the program for the seventh annual Exhibitions and Competition Preview this weekend in Wilmette.

Blake and Stacia Hobson, of Buffalo Grove, and Kimberley Sue Carney, of Arlington Heights, will take part during the three-day extravaganza at the Centennial Park Ice Rink.

Blake will be skating with his partner of over two years, Jamie Remein, of Northbrook.

JOINING THESE and many other young Chicagoland competitors will be some of the nation's top amateur skaters. Among the top names are:

Ron Shaver — 1976 Canadian silver medalist, member of Canada's World and Olympic teams and Skate Canada champion.

Scott Cramer — ranks third nationally, first in the Midwest and was an alternate on the 1976 Olympic and World teams.

Susan Kelley and Andrew Stroukoff — rank third nationally in gold ice dancing and are members of the U.S. Olympic and World teams.

MICHELLE FORD and Glenn Patterson — rank fourth nationally in gold dancing and were alternates on the Olympic team.

Sandy Lenz — ranks third nationally in Junior Ladies.

Kathy Gelecinskyj — Midwest Junior Ladies champion.

Billy Fauver — ranks second in national pairs and a member of the 1976 Olympic and World teams. He will be joined by his new partner, Jill Harbin.

THE SKOKIE Valley Skating Club participants have already qualified for the Upper Great Lakes Regional competition (Dec. 5-11 in Milwaukee). The Friday and Saturday night performances, starting at 7:30, and the finale on Sunday afternoon, beginning at 1:30, offer these youngsters a unique opportunity to demonstrate their programs before a large audience.

Spectators will have the opportunity of seeming some of competitors who will make up the 1980 Olympic team.

Tickets are available to the general public at Centennial Park, 2300 Old Glenview Rd., Wilmette.

NORTHWESTERN QUARTERBACK Randy Dean en route to Offensive Player of the Week honors Saturday. Dean received the UPI Midwest award Monday for engineering a 42-21 upset over Michigan State. He passed for 272 yards, including two touchdown bombs, and ran for a pair of TDs.

Cowboys nip Bills

IRVING, Tex. — Roger Staubach, bothered all night by a withering Buffalo blitz, hooked up with his favorite receiver, Drew Pearson, to score one touchdown and set up a fourth-quarter field goal Monday night that allowed Dallas to hold off the Bills, 17-10.

The victory was the ninth of the year for the Cowboys and it helped them maintain a one-game lead over the St. Louis Cardinals in the NFC East.

But the decision did not come easy as the Bills' improved defense harassed Staubach into one of his poorest games of the year and shut down the Dallas running attack as well.

The Cowboys' chief offensive threat was Staubach-to-Pearson, a combination that hooked up nine times for 135 yards.

Weber family shines in World Open

Rich Weber, the son of a Hall of Famer, held the first-round lead at the sixth annual Brunswick World Open in Glendale Heights Monday night. Weber rolled an eight-game score of 1930 to hold a two-pin lead over Rich Carrubba and a three-pin margin over Wayne Zahn.

Weber's dad, Dick, is in 14th place with 1804 with younger brother John, 18, in 26th at 1756.

Palatine's Les Zikes is in 95th place with 1605.

Tommy Hudson and Jim Plessinger scored the day's only perfect games.

Bo talks about showdown game...

ANN ARBOR, Mich. — Coach Bo Schembechler said Monday he does not feel "jinxed" just ecause Michigan has not beaten Ohio State since 1971.

The Wolverines go to Columbus, Ohio, Saturday to play the Buckeyes of Coach Woody Hayes with the Rose Bowl berth and conference title at stake. Ohio State, 7-0 in the Big Ten, has a share of the championship cinched since Michigan is 6-1.

Hayes holds a 4-2-1 edge over his former assistant and has not lost to Schembechler since Michigan came out on top, 10-7, in 1971. The coach of the Wolverines has yet to end any of his seasons at Michigan with a victory.

"Any time you lose a big game, it takes something out of you," Schembechler said in a press conference, "But I don't look at it like you people.

"We've played every game (in the series) hard," he said, "we've been prepared well. We were in every game . . . we had a chance to win. We just didn't win them all.

"I don't look at it like we're 'jinxed' at all."

. . . But Woody won't until Saturday

COLUMBUS, Ohio — A relaxed Ohio State Coach Woody Hayes told his weekly news luncheon Monday he preferred to "wait until Saturday" to talk about the Buckeyes' Big Ten showdown with Michigan.

"After that game Saturday (Minnesota), there's not much to say," Hayes began, "and the game coming up (Michigan), we never have anything to report until after it is over. We'll wait until Saturday to talk about that."

Ohio State Sports Information Director Marv Homan announced that, as usual, Buckeye practices would be closed but Hayes would meet the press each night after practice.

Hayes even tried to discourage attendance at those meetings by saying, "I don't think they will be very newsworthy. If we have an injury, we're not going to announce it and we won't be changing our usual practice program any."

Shutt's 19th goal paces Montreal

MONTREAL — Steve Shutt scored his 19th goal of the season in the third period Monday night and the Montreal Canadiens defeated the St. Louis Blues 4-2 in a National Hockey League game.

The victory was the 14th of the season for Montreal, the most in the NHL, and it gave the Canadiens 31 points, also tops in the league. Montreal now holds a nine-point advantage over the Los Angeles Kings in the Norris Division.

Bears sideline Dickey for season

GREEN BAY, Wis. — Starting quarterback Lynn Dickey of the Green Bay Packers has a dislocated shoulder, and is lost to the team for the season.

Bart Starr, coach and general manager of the Packers, said Monday that Dickey would undergo surgery Wednesday. The injury occurred in Sunday's 24-13 loss to the Chicago Bears. Starr said backup quarterback Carlos Brown would be the starter next Sunday against Minnesota. Brown is the only healthy quarterback on the Green Bay roster.

Schaumburg Kings

The Schaumburg Kings Hockey League has officially opened their 1976/77 season with two Mite, two Squirt, two Pee Wee and two Bantam teams plus one Midget and one Senior unit.

PEE WEE

Playing their first game of the year, the Kings came out flying and beat Naperville, 4-1. Scoring the first goal of the season in the first period was Mike Cress. Howard Leek scored once while Vince Russo had a good night scoring twice. John Machonis stopped 17 shots in net.

The Pee Wees traveled to Lake Barrington for a very close contest, with the Broncos winning, 5-4. Scoring for the Kings were Ron Wehrs with two and Jim Fuchsen and John Murphy with one each. Mike Cress was in net with 16 saves while the Kings had 18 shots at Barrington.

The Pee Wees beat Naperville, 2-1 for their second victory over the Sabres. Good work by the defense held the slim King lead. Mike Sikora and Jim Walsh scored. Mike Cress had 11 saves in net.

The game was tied until the third period when Evanston scored twice to beat the Kings, 3-1. Vince Russo scored, assisted by Ron Wehrs.

BANTAM

In league action, the Kings met a strong Evanston team and lost 8-1. Nick Steinbach scored the lone goal for the King with an assist by Bumper Waghorne. Steve Garland had 22 saves in net.

The Bantams won their first league game, 4-2, over the Arlington Rangers. Joe Keller scored twice with Dave Jakubel and John Keller each beating the Arlington goalie once. The Kings outshot the Rangers 16-8. Dave Klosowski and Steve Garland shared the net.

MITE AA

The King Mites hockey team visited St. Louis over the Halloween weekend and came home victors. After losing their first game, 4-2 to the Rockets they beat Delta 6-0, played the Rockets again and won 5-3 and finished against Delta winning 5-3. The victories raised the Mites record to 4-1-1-.

PEE WEE AA

In the first North Suburban league game of the season the Pee Wees' Tony DeVita scored a hat trick, leading the Kings past Highland Park 3-1. John Machonis looked sharp stopping 12 shots.

The Pee Wees visited St. Louis and saw some heavy action. They tied Olivette 1-1; lost to Delta 4-1; beat Delta 4-2 and were beaten by Olivette 4-2. The Pee Wees look very solid and will be a team to contend with in the season ahead. Scoring in St. Louis were Mike Stevenson with 2, Tony DeVita 2, Joe Zeller 2 and Brad Tally 1.

Cards jolt playoff hopes

Bears bask in victory; more duties for Payton

by ED SAINSBURY
UPI Sports Writer

Walter Payton has his 1,000 yard rushing season, and Chicago Bears' Coach Jack Pardee offered something new Monday to give future rivals of the Bears some concern.

"Walter still has to learn how to play his game," Pardee said at the Bears' usual Monday briefing session. "Walter hasn't scratched the surface of what he can do. We're going to use him more as a receiver and on kickoff returns as he matures and gets it together.

"Walter wants to be good, and that's the reason why he is."

PAYTON LEADS the National Football Conference in rushing with 1,008 yards, and Sunday against Green Bay he earned 109 yards on 18 carries, scoring one touchdown to tie a Gale Sayers' record for the Bears by scoring touchdowns in seven consecutive games.

"We've got to get the ball to a player with Payton's ability," Pardee said. "If he carries the ball 25 or 30 times a game and we get it to him 10 times passing, it'll improve our game. He's learning how to be a runner, and there's not time this year for him to learn how to beat the linebackers or the zones in receiving.

"He's got a great present and a great future," he added. "We've just got to get the ball to him more."

PARDEE'S plans to expand Payton's duties, more along the lines of Chuck Foreman of Minnesota and the St. Louis Cardinals' Terry Metcalf, may not reach fulfillment this year. But neither may the Bears in Pardee's optimistic outlook that they can make the playoffs.

The Cardinals' win over Los Angeles Sunday about wiped out the Bears' chances of making the playoffs even if they attain a 9-5 season record. "If we do our job, that's all we can do," Pardee said. A week ago, and after Sunday's 24-13 win over the Green Bay Packers, he believed the Bears could go 9-5 and make the playoffs.

The Bears play Detroit next Sunday, their victims in the opening game of the season, and Pardee said "it's tough to beat a team twice in a season, especially when the teams are pretty even. Detroit is the top defensive team in the conference and second in the league, and Greg Landry has brought their offense to life.

"So if we're going to beat them, we'll have to play better than we did Sunday. They've had their problems and made a coaching change, but they're rough at home, and we've got to get ready to play a great game at Detroit."

East Suburban Catholic

St. Viator collects 10 positions on all-stars

Ten members of the St. Viator football team, the largest number from any one team in the East Suburban Catholic Conference, have been named to that league's 1976 all-conference squad.

John Josten, John Gillen, Tom Murray, Rick Krumtinger, Dan Bucaro, Chuck Regini, Jeff O'Connor, Terry Shanahan, Dan Skarzynski and Dave Nicolau were chosen by ESCC coaches.

Josten, a 6-0, 175-pound junior, led the Lions at quarterback this season as Viator finished with a 7-3 record and won the ESCC title with a perfect 6-0 slate. The only other junior named from Viator was Bucaro, a 5-10, 160-pound receiver.

GILLEN, THE Lions' leading rusher this season, is a 6-3, 215-pound senior. Linebackers Murray (6-2, 205) and Krumtinger (6-2, 175) were also honored. Both are seniors.

Regini played center for the Lions and is a 6-0, 205 pound senior. Other offensive linemen who were selections to the All-Conference squad are O'Connor, a 6-0, 185-pound senior center-guard, and Skarzinski, a 6-2, 202-pound senior tackle.

From the Viator defense, defensive end and senior Nicolau (6-5, 230) and Shanahan a 6-5, 215 pound senior tackle, also were honored.

The Godfather

Frankie Carbo put muscle in boxing

Jim Murray

They called him "Mr. Gray," "The Wolf," "The Uncle," "The Cousin." He was well-connected in high places in the Mafia. In 1960, when the Kefauver Congressional Committee instigated hearings to see whether boxing needed a federal "scar," one fighter sniffed, "What for? They already got one — Frankie Carbo."

When Paul John Carbo died in a Miami Beach hospital the other day, an era passed with him. It was the era which gave a generation of movie fans their idea of the fight game — a seamy, seedy thing as grime-filled as one of its gyms, as unsanitary as a cut man's swabs.

It was an era in which hoodlums sat in ringside with guns concealed under their newspapers and pointed at the guy who was supposed to lose. It was an era of threats, manipulation and extortion in which fighters frequently ended up on shoeshine stands or in mental hospitals while the guys in the gray felt hats who owned them wore diamond rings and rode around in bullet-proof cars.

FRANKIE CARBO was the lord and master of this sporting compost. Mr. Gray wasn't greedy. All he wanted was the lightweight and the welterweight championships in fee simple, and a piece of every other champion.

He fixed few fights. The Jake LaMotta - Tiger Jack Fox bout was one he got caught at. But, usually, he didn't have to. He owned both fighters anyway. If he didn't own a fighter, that fighter never got a shot at the title. It was that simple.

Carbo's lieutenant in most of this was a human shrike named Frank (Blinky) Palermo, but it was clear Mr. Gray had access to the foot soldiers of the Mafia in any city he needed them.

He became the underworld boss of boxing in the late 40s when James D. Norris, a rich kid from Chicago whose daddy owned stadia and hockey teams in the Midwest, took over the old Mike Jacobs' boxing empire with Joe Louis as his front.

Some people look up to football players, movie stars, others to statesmen or scientists. Jim Norris worshipped hoodlums. He grew up in a Chicago where Al Capone and Frank Nitti and their machine guns kept the peace, and Norris respected muscle.

WHEN HE TOOK over boxing, he soon found he had bought the weed of crime. Like crabgrass, Carbo's tentacles ran deep in the soil of the sport. Rocky Marciano, the heavyweight champ, for instance, was owned by Al Weill. And Al Weill was owned by Frankie Carbo.

But it wasn't only that Jim Norris had seen too many Edward G. Robinson movies. Jim Norris not only wanted to cooperate with Frankie Carbo (Norris named one of his race horses, "Mr. Gray"), Jim Norris had to.

Jim Norris' lawyer and majordomo in the International Boxing Club, Truman Gibson Jr., was to testify later: "We were confronted with the facts of life, because in New York, the first fight we tried to stage, the Graziano-LaMotta fight, suddenly was called off because Graziano developed a mysterious illness, and we had a picket line around Madison Square Garden so that we became concerned that all the elements that would interfere with our keeping our contracts: the organization of managers, the fact of Carbo's friendship with managers, which resulted in our making decisions of policy with respect to operating a business that grew into a very big business."

IN OTHER WORDS, boxing with its big TV commitments, needed an enforcer to ensure the supply of fighters, the honoring of contracts and the guarantee that, on fight night, the network would not have to show test patterns or play organ music. Carbo fit in nicely.

In 1959, trying to arrange a routine transfer of the welterweight title — from his champion, Virgil Akins, to the Los Angeles contender, Don Jordan — Carbo ran into, of all things, that most dreaded of foes, an amateur. All Frankie wanted was his piece of Jordan, who would, then, of course, win the fight and the title.

Carbo paid a Los Angeles fight promoter, Jackie Leonard (nee, Leonard Blakely), $28,000 to effect the orderly transfer. But the amateur, Don Nesseth, a car dealer and Jordan's manager, said no, his fighter wasn't for sale.

When Jordan won, as scheduled, Carbo felt double-crossed. He enlisted the aid of local gangland types, Joe Sica and Louis Dragna, to threaten Leonard and Nesseth, he sent Palermo out to remind everyone how Ray Arcel got hit over the head with a lead pipe and his skull fractured in Boston for a lesser offense against Mr. Gray.

NESSETH WENT to the FBI. Paul John Carbo, Frank Palermo, Louis Dragna, Joseph Sica and Truman Gibson Jr. were all indicted, convicted and sentenced. Jackie Leonard disappeared, presumably to a new identity someplace (in the middle of the proceedings, Jackie Leonard had been found in an alley outside his garage, semi-conscious and bleeding behind the ear but, as with Ray Arcel, nothing was ever proved.)

Boxing never quite shook the reputation the Carbos and Palermos and Co. saddled on it. Even the 15 years he was in prison, Carbo was often suspected of masterminding the game from his jail cell. He is, presumably, someplace now where he no longer can. Boxing has lost its Godfather, at last.

Hoffman honors soccer success

In five years, the growth of the Hoffman Estates Soccer Club in spring and fall programs, included over 750 children between 5-17 years. The program has produced three regional championship teams from both the boys and girls divisions.

The Hoffman Estates Soccer Club, in conjunction with the park district, is anticipating a growth to 1,200 participants for the spring program, plus expansion into greater participation with other communities through the North Suburban Soccer League.

Hoffman Estates Mayor Virginia M. Hayter honored the Hustler Soccer Team for their 1976 undefeated season and permanently winning the championship trophy of the NSSL. Ralph Henrich, soccer commissioner and Fred Tognocchi, Hustler coach, were honored with the 15-man team.

Cards jolt playoff hopes

Bears bask in victory; more duties for Payton

by ED SAINSBURY
UPI Sports Writer

Walter Payton has his 1,000 yard rushing season, and Chicago Bears' Coach Jack Pardee offered something new Monday to give future rivals of the Bears some concern.

"Walter still has to learn how to play his game," Pardee said at the Bears' usual Monday briefing session. "Walter hasn't scratched the surface of what he can do. We're going to use him more as a receiver and on kickoff returns as he matures and gets it together.

"Walter wants to be good, and that's the reason why he is."

PAYTON LEADS the National Football Conference in rushing with 1,008 yards, and Sunday against Green Bay he earned 109 yards on 18 carries, scoring one touchdown to tie a Gale Sayers' record for the Bears by scoring touchdowns in seven consecutive games.

"We've got to get the ball to a player with Payton's ability," Pardee said. "If he carries the ball 25 or 30 times a game and we get it to him 10 times passing, it'll improve our game. He's learning how to be a runner, and there's not time this year for him to learn how to beat the linebackers or the zones in receiving.

"He's got a great present and a great future," he added. "We've just got to get the ball to him more."

PARDEE'S plans to expand Payton's duties, more along the lines of Chuck Foreman of Minnesota and the St. Louis Cardinals' Terry Metcalf, may not reach fulfillment this year. But neither may the Bears in Pardee's optimistic outlook that they can make the playoffs.

The Cardinals' win over Los Angeles Sunday about wiped out the Bears' chances of making the playoffs even if they attain a 9-5 season record. "If we do our job, that's all we can do," Pardee said. A week ago, and after Sunday's 24-13 win over the Green Bay Packers, he believed the Bears could go 9-5 and make the playoffs.

The Bears play Detroit next Sunday, their victims in the opening game of the season, and Pardee said "it's tough to beat a team twice in a season, especially when the teams are pretty even. Detroit is the top defensive team in the conference and second in the league, and Greg Landry has brought their offense to life.

"So if we're going to beat them, we'll have to play better than we did Sunday. They've had their problems and made a coaching change, but they're rough at home, and we've got to get ready to play a great game at Detroit."

East Suburban Catholic

St. Viator collects 10 positions on all-stars

Ten members of the St. Viator football team, the largest number from any one team in the East Suburban Catholic Conference, have been named to that league's 1976 all-conference squad.

John Josten, John Gillen, Tom Murray, Rick Krumtinger, Dan Bucaro, Chuck Regini, Jeff O'Connor, Terry Shanahan, Dan Skarzynski and Dave Nicolau were chosen by ESCC coaches.

Josten, a 6-0, 175-pound junior, led the Lions at quarterback this season as Viator finished with a 7-3 record and won the ESCC title with a perfect 6-0 slate. The only other junior named from Viator was Bucaro, a 5-10, 160-pound receiver.

GILLEN, THE Lions' leading rusher this season, is a 6-3, 215-pound senior. Linebackers Murray (6-2, 205) and Krumtinger (6-2, 175) were also honored. Both are seniors.

Regini played center for the Lions and is a 6-0, 205 pound senior. Other offensive linemen who were selections to the All-Conference squad are O'Connor, a 6-0, 185-pound senior center-guard, and Skarzinski, a 6-2, 202-pound senior tackle.

From the Viator defense, defensive end and senior Nicolau (6-5, 230) and Shanahan a 6-5, 215 pound senior tackle, also were honored.

Intrasquad cage games at Fremd Friday

The Fremd Booster Club will sponsor its annual array of intrasquad games to mark the opening of the basketball season Friday night.

The freshmen will scrimmage at 8 p.m., the sophomores at 7 and the varsity at 8 p.m. The contests are open to alll Fremd students for 50 cents and parents for $1.

Parents of basketball players will be admitted free.

Concession stands will b open.

The Godfather

Frankie Carbo put muscle in boxing

Jim Murray

They called him "Mr. Gray," "The Wolf," "The Uncle," "The Cousin." He was well-connected in high places in the Mafia. In 1960, when the Kefauver Congressional Committee instigated hearings to see whether boxing needed a federal "scar," one fighter sniffed, "What for? They already got one — Frankie Carbo."

When Paul John Carbo died in a Miami Beach hospital the other day, an era passed with him. It was the era which gave a generation of movie fans their idea of the fight game — a seamy, seedy thing as grime-filled as one of its gyms, as unsanitary as a cut man's swabs.

It was an era in which hoodlums sat in ringside with guns concealed under their newspapers and pointed at the guy who was supposed to lose. It was an era of threats, manipulation and extortion in which fighters frequently ended up on shoeshine stands or in mental hospitals while the guys in the gray felt hats who owned them wore diamond rings and rode around in bullet-proof cars.

FRANKIE CARBO was the lord and master of this sporting compost. Mr. Gray wasn't greedy. All he wanted was the lightweight and the welterweight championships in fee simple, and a piece of every other champion.

He fixed few fights. The Jake LaMotta - Tiger Jack Fox bout was one he got caught at. But, usually, he didn't have to. He owned both fighters anyway. If he didn't own a fighter, that fighter never got a shot at the title. It was that simple.

Carbo's lieutenant in most of this was a human shrike named Frank (Blinky) Palermo, but it was clear Mr. Gray had access to the foot soldiers of the Mafia in any city he needed them.

He became the underworld boss of boxing in the late 40s when James D. Norris, a rich kid from Chicago whose daddy owned stadia and hockey teams in the Midwest, took over the old Mike Jacobs' boxing empire with Joe Louis as his front.

Some people look up to football players, movie stars, others to statesmen or scientists. Jim Norris worshipped hoodlums. He grew up in a Chicago where Al Capone and Frank Nitti and their machine guns kept the peace, and Norris respected muscle.

WHEN HE TOOK over boxing, he soon found he had bought the weed of crime. Like crabgrass, Carbo's tentacles ran deep in the soil of the sport. Rocky Marciano, the heavyweight champ, for instance, was owned by Al Weill. And Al Weill was owned by Frankie Carbo.

But it wasn't only that Jim Norris had seen too many Edward G. Robinson movies. Jim Norris not only wanted to cooperate with Frankie Carbo (Norris named one of his race horses, "Mr. Gray"), Jim Norris had to.

Jim Norris' lawyer and majordomo in the International Boxing Club, Truman Gibson Jr., was to testify later: "We were confronted with the facts of life, because in New York, the first fight we tried to stage, the Graziano-LaMotta fight, suddenly was called off because Graziano developed a mysterious illness, and we had a picket line around Madison Square Garden so that we became concerned that all the elements that would interfere with our keeping our contracts: the organization of managers, the fact of Carbo's friendship with managers, which resulted in our making decisions of policy with respect to operating a business that grew into a very big business."

IN OTHER WORDS, boxing with its big TV commitments, needed an enforcer to ensure the supply of fighters, the honoring of contracts and the guarantee that, on fight night, the network would not have to show test patterns or play organ music. Carbo fit in nicely.

In 1959, trying to arrange a routine transfer of the welterweight title — from his champion, Virgil Akins, to the Los Angeles contender, Don Jordan — Carbo ran into, of all things, that most dreaded of foes, an amateur. All Frankie wanted was his piece of Jordan, who would, then, of course, win the fight and the title.

Carbo paid a Los Angeles fight promoter, Jackie Leonard (nee, Leonard Blakely), $28,000 to effect the orderly transfer. But the amateur, Don Nesseth, a car dealer and Jordan's manager, said no, his fighter wasn't for sale.

When Jordan won, as scheduled, Carbo felt double-crossed. He enlisted the aid of local gangland types, Joe Sica and Louis Dragna, to threaten Leonard and Nesseth, he sent Palermo out to remind everyone how Ray Arcel got hit over the head with a lead pipe and his skull fractured in Boston for a lesser offense against Mr. Gray.

NESSETH WENT to the FBI. Paul John Carbo, Frank Palermo, Louis Dragna, Joseph Sica and Truman Gibson Jr. were all indicted, convicted and sentenced. Jackie Leonard disappeared, presumably to a new identity someplace (in the middle of the proceedings, Jackie Leonard had been found in an alley outside his garage, semi-conscious and bleeding behind the ear but, as with Ray Arcel, nothing was ever proved.)

Boxing never quite shook the reputation the Carbos and Palermos and Co. saddled on it. Even the 15 years he was in prison, Carbo was often suspected of masterminding the game from his jail cell. He is, presumably, someplace now where he no longer can. Boxing has lost its Godfather, at last.

Ask Andy

Bats either hibernate or migrate

Andy sends the Encyclopaedia Britannica's 1976 Yearbook of Science and the Future to June Worley, 11, of Scotts Mills, Ore., for her question:

DO BATS MIGRATE SOUTH IN THE WINTER?

Bats live almost everywhere in the world except the Antarctic, the Arctic tundra and a few isolated islands. Next to rodents, the billions of bats out-number every other mammal group. Scientists tell us there are about 850 species of bats, most of which live in the tropics where there is year around warmth.

North American bats face the winter two ways. Some hibernate in caves or other dark, secluded places. Their body processes practically halt during this deep sleep. Their pulse rate becomes nearly imperceptible, and their breathing slows down to as few as 10 breaths an hour.

Many North American bats migrate to warmer regions where plenty of juicy insects are still active. These energetic fliers can cover 30 miles or more a day. Some species range between southern Canada in summer and the Gulf of Mexico in winter.

Bats usually hunt during the hours between dusk and dawn when insects are most abundant. Although their eyesight is fairly good, they fly by a system called echolocation. To locate food and to avoid flying into obstacles, they send out sounds from their mouth or nose.

These short, high squeaks are beyond our hearing range, but you can be sure other bats hear them. These sounds bounce off objects, echoing back to the bat's ears. Instantly the bat knows the size and movements of an object and how far away it is.

A typical night's search for food uses tremendous energy, during which a bat may consume its own weight in insects or other food. Perhaps this explains why these creatures hang motionless during the day, recharging their batteries.

Many farmers consider bats harmful. Numerous tropical species eat large quantities of fruit and sometimes transmit rabies when they bite livestock. Taken as a whole, though, bats are helpful.

The flower-feeding varieties pollinate flowers, and insect-eating bats consume billions of destructive pests every night. What's more, bat manure, collected periodically in caves, is a valuable fertilizer for crops.

Andy sends a Student Globe to Heidi Fosback, 10, of Spokane, Wash., for her question:

WHY DO BIRDS TAKE DUST BATHS?

Most of us visualize birds as graceful, soaring, freedom-loving creatures who glide through life with very few problems. Of course, we know they often scrounge for food, fight over territory and fall victim to predators.

What may surprise us, however, is the trials and tribulations birds suffer at the hands of ever-present, bothersome parasites. These ectoparasites infest a bird's external body parts, and include such pests as lice, fleas, various flies, mosquitos, ticks and mites.

Birds frequently groom themselves and each other to help get rid of these damaging insects. Water baths, besides being refreshing, help, too. And a good flap in the dust, allowing the dry, powdery soil to thoroughly penetrate the feathers, no doubt does its part in suffocating many unwanted guests.

Search for extra trick

South starts with seven top tricks as a starter for the nine he needs. He also can be sure of one extra club trick irrespective of where the queen is. That will give him eight. Where can he find a ninth?

Given time he can set up a diamond, but he isn't going to have time. The opponents have been unkind enough to attack in hearts.

Is there any other place to get another trick? Yes, there is. With a little luck he can score four club tricks.

One way to get four club tricks is to bang down his ace. If that drops a singleton queen he is home. Otherwise the lead of the ace will not give him a chance for more than three tricks in the suit.

However, there is a reasonable chance to score four club tricks if he leads toward his hand and finesses the 10. If the finesse works, he continues by playing his ace and will be home safely if East started with either queen and one or queen and two clubs. This represents a total probability of about 31 per cent.

Never seldom applies in bridge, but this is one time that it does. We never open notrump with a singleton because such hands are so likely to play better in a suit than in notrump.

Oz will never be the same after magic of 'The Wiz'

by GENIE CAMPBELL

Mid-week review

"The Wonderful Wizard of Oz" will never be quite the same — certainly not after its contemporary follow-up, "The Wiz," which opened officially last week in Chicago.

Yet I don't think L. Frank Baum, who wrote the original classic, or Judy Garland, who helped to immortalize it, would be offended in the least by this new, upbeat, musical version.

I expect they'd react as did all of the lucky Chicagoans and suburbanites who were a part of the audience opening night, by sitting up straight in their seats to catch every minute of what is now noted as a thoroughly entertaining, colorful production.

WHEN A SHOW already has won seven Tony Awards, including Best Musical for 1975, there's little left to be said except — go see it.

A blockbuster of an all-black musical, the Shubert Theatre is being inundated with bigger-than-life, animated characters, exciting dance numbers and a musical score which, if not as significant as "Over the Rainbow," is equally infectious boasting a catchy disco beat.

"The Wiz" is a tribute to William F. Brown and Charlie Smalls, the brains behind the book, music and lyrics. It required courage. To take on the "Wonderful Wizard" is like threatening to mess with mom and apple pie.

Even finding a Dorothy that everyone would readily accept was a feat. But 18-year-old Renee Harris, whose discovery in the Bronx was a magical happening in itself, exudes a layer of warmth no one in the audience can resist. It's hard to believe "The Wiz" marks her first professional stage appearance.

THE STORY AND characters follow the original classic. Only Ben Harney as the tinman wants a heart because "it didn't come with the suit, and now a days it's important to be more than good-looking."

Valentino is a most impressive, vocal scarecrow who begs Dorothy for "a little loose bread to buy some brains."

But it is Ken Prymus who steals the show as the cowardly lion — appearing on stage in a pink velvet lion's suit and makeup only equaled by that worn by the Wizard himself.

The lion visits his analyst, the owl, frequently and blames part of his hang-ups on "being an only cub."

THE WIZARD, whose role is beefed up with a handful of special effects, is played by Chicago's own Andre De Shields.

Though "Ease on Down the Road" is familiar to anyone who listens to rock radio stations, it's the choreography that really sets off this production.

George Faison, for instance, has ingeniously substituted four men with yellow Afros for the yellow brick road and turned the scene with the tornado (Christina Kimball) into a sensuous, dramatic modern dance.

Though some of the backdrops could be intensified, the one for the Emerald City is unsurpassed.

And if the witches didn't receive enough attention in the original version, they do in "The Wiz."

VIVIAN BONNELL is amusing and clever as Addaperlee, the good witch who presents Dorothy with her silver slippers; and Ella Mitchell makes a great Evilene the Wicked Witch of the West whose appearance is enhanced by her gospel-inspired solo.

"The Wiz" is here for an indefinite run, but it's wise to call for tickets now. This is one show that will be sold out nightly for a long time.

TV special stresses Knight's Polish roots

by VERNON SCOTT

Not bad for a Polish boy from Terryville, Conn., whose real name is Tadeus Wladyslaw Konopka.

His roots, in fact, are the basis of Ted's very own special. It was his idea to base the show on his visit to his home town last June.

The dividing line between Knight and Ted Baxter, the wacky newscaster he plays on the weekly series, is almost inperceptible. Much of what the comedian does on is show reflects the Inight-Baxter madness.

"TERRYVILLE HAS a population of 9,000," Knight said with pride, "About half of them are Polish. But 65,000 people from nearby areas turned out for my Ted Baxter Day homecoming parade.

"They had a banquet for me, too. The town gave me a Bible, an engraved silver plate, two plaques and a key to the city. Altogether worth about $22.50. No, I'm just kidding. It was great.

"They even made me chairman of the lock museum in Terryville."

The title is mostly honorary. Terryville is the site of the defunct Eagle Lock Co. The museum displays 70,000 assorted locks. Not a thrilling display to be sure, but Knight is touched by the thought.

A HIGH POINT of Ted's special is a Polish wedding in which Loretta Swit, of "M-A-S-H" is married. The beautiful Miss Swit, to Knight's everlasting delight, is of pure Polish extraction.

He regrets he was married by a justice of the peace instead of in full Polish ceremonies.

"But I've been to plenty of Polish weddings," he said. "They are three day events. The cooking goes on for weeks in advance. The heartburn lasts even longer.

"I SPEAK POLISH like a native. Bobby Vinton bills himself as the Polish Prince. He's a good kid but he speaks horrible Polish. Loretta doesn't speak it too well herself. Ed Asner doesn't speak a word, but then he isn't Polish to start with."

The Asner non sequitur made sense to Knight. Asner, who costars with Ted in "The Mary Tyler Moore Show," plays a delicatessen owner in Ted's CBS-TV special.

Other non-Poles appearing with the white-haired Knight are Phil Silvers, Fred MacMurray, Ethel Merman and Rue McClanahan, "Maude's witless neighbor.

"The whole show isn't Polish," Knight said. "We have some other stuff in there too. I get to sing and dance. Look, it cost me and Kono Productions a half million bucks to produce. Kono is the first four letters of my real name.

"BUT I HAD to establish myself away from Mary Tyler Moore. I'm not knocking Mary and the show. It thrust me into an independent position. I'm an international celebrity. It's made me economically secure.

"The series made stars of everyone in the cast. This is the final season, but I don't feel badly about it ending. Seven years is a long time to pretend to be somebody else. Anyhow, it's time Mary kicked us all out of the nest."

Next fall "The Mary Tyler Moore Show" goes into daily syndication which means the entire cast will get rich. Knight figures his take conservatively at $500,000.

"WE ARE PAID to infinity for reruns of the last two years' shows," he said. "And we're paid for 10 showings per episode for the first five years. It's an annuity. My family will never have to worry financially.

"It's nice to know the reruns will keep us fresh in the public mind. We won't have to take roles just to keep audiences from forgetting us."

At the conclusion of this season, Knight will hit the road with his nightclub act. He also has a development contract with CBS. If he comes up with a good situation comedy concept the network gets first dibs.

HE WILL PERPETUATE the characteristics of Ted Baxter which have grafted themselves to his own personality, making the two of them inseparable in the public mind, and to a degree in his own mind.

"I'm sticking with my Baxterisms because people will think they are brilliantly conceived bits of business," he said. "When I bomb I can blame it on Baxter. Baxter is pure gold to me. He gets me off the hook."

Knight has mixed feelings about the ebb of Polish jokes. "I wonder why they died out," he said. Then, brightening, he asked, "I wonder who they'll pick on next?"

TV special stresses Knight's Polish roots

by VERNON SCOTT

Not bad for a Polish boy from Terryville, Conn., whose real name is Tadeus Wladyslaw Konopka.

His roots, in fact, are the basis of Ted's very own special. It was his idea to base the show on his visit to his home town last June.

The dividing line between Knight and Ted Baxter, the wacky newscaster he plays on the weekly series, is almost inperceptible. Much of what the comedian does on is show reflects the Inight-Baxter madness.

"TERRYVILLE HAS a population of 9,000," Knight said with pride, "About half of them are Polish. But 65,000 people from nearby areas turned out for my Ted Baxter Day homecoming parade.

"They had a banquet for me, too. The town gave me a Bible, an engraved silver plate, two plaques and a key to the city. Altogether worth about $22.50. No, I'm just kidding. It was great.

"They even made me chairman of the lock museum in Terryville."

The title is mostly honorary. Terryville is the site of the defunct Eagle Lock Co. The museum displays 70,000 assorted locks. Not a thrilling display to be sure, but Knight is touched by the thought.

A HIGH POINT of Ted's special is a Polish wedding in which Loretta Swit, of "M-A-S-H" is married. The beautiful Miss Swit, to Knight's everlasting delight, is of pure Polish extraction.

He regrets he was married by a justice of the peace instead of in full Polish ceremonies.

"But I've been to plenty of Polish weddings," he said. "They are three day events. The cooking goes on for weeks in advance. The heartburn lasts even longer.

"I SPEAK POLISH like a native. Bobby Vinton bills himself as the Polish Prince. He's a good kid but he speaks horrible Polish. Loretta doesn't speak it too well herself. Ed Asner doesn't speak a word, but then he isn't Polish to start with."

The Asner non sequitur made sense to Knight. Asner, who costars with Ted in "The Mary Tyler Moore Show," plays a delicatessen owner in Ted's CBS-TV special.

Other non-Poles appearing with the white-haired Knight are Phil Silvers, Fred MacMurray, Ethel Merman and Rue McClanahan, "Maude's witless neighbor.

"The whole show isn't Polish," Knight said. "We have some other stuff in there too. I get to sing and dance. Look, it cost me and Kono Productions a half million bucks to produce. Kono is the first four letters of my real name.

"BUT I HAD to establish myself away from Mary Tyler Moore. I'm not knocking Mary and the show. It thrust me into an independent position. I'm an international celebrity. It's made me economically secure.

"The series made stars of everyone in the cast. This is the final season, but I don't feel badly about it ending. Seven years is a long time to pretend to be somebody else. Anyhow, it's time Mary kicked us all out of the nest."

Next fall "The Mary Tyler Moore Show" goes into daily syndication which means the entire cast will get rich. Knight figures his take conservatively at $500,000.

"WE ARE PAID to infinity for reruns of the last two years' shows," he said. "And we're paid for 10 showings per episode for the first five years. It's an annuity. My family will never have to worry financially.

"It's nice to know the reruns will keep us fresh in the public mind. We won't have to take roles just to keep audiences from forgetting us."

At the conclusion of this season, Knight will hit the road with his nightclub act. He also has a development contract with CBS. If he comes up with a good situation comedy concept the network gets first dibs.

HE WILL PERPETUATE the characteristics of Ted Baxter which have grafted themselves to his own personality, making the two of them inseparable in the public mind, and to a degree in his own mind.

"I'm sticking with my Baxterisms because people will think they are brilliantly conceived bits of business," he said. "When I bomb I can blame it on Baxter. Baxter is pure gold to me. He gets me off the hook."

Knight has mixed feelings about the ebb of Polish jokes. "I wonder why they died out," he said. Then, brightening, he asked, "I wonder who they'll pick on next?"

Admitted killer wanted to die but got engaged

POINT OF THE MOUNTAIN, Utah (UPI) — Admitted killer Gary Gilmore wanted to die Monday. He got engaged instead.

"I told him today, 'Yes, I will,' and he got a very surprised look on his face," said Nicole Barrett, a 20-year-old divorcee and mother of two who accepted the proposal during a two-hour meeting with Gilmore on death row.

"But I don't think any of the prison officials would ever consider it," the petite brunette added as she left the hand-holding rendezvous at Utah State Prison.

WARDEN SAM SMITH said she was right.

"What for?" he said of Gilmore's desire to get married. "I see no basis for it."

But the warden said he had not been asked to allow a marriage and would give it "due consideration" if he were.

"If the death penalty is set aside, then that would be a different ballgame," Smith added.

MISS BARRETT said she and Gilmore, 35, who faces the death penalty for the murder of a Provo, Utah, motel clerk, have been discussing marriage since his arrest in July.

Asked if she really wanted to marry someone who had begged the state to execute him, she replied: "Yes, you can understand that, can't you?"

Gilmore made a personal plea to the Utah Supreme Court last week and convinced the justices to let him die before a firing squad at 8 a.m. Monday. But Utah Gov. Calvin Rampton stayed the execution to allow a review of the sentence by the State Board of Pardons. Gilmore will appear before the board Wednesday to renew his plea for death. His execution would be the first in the United States in nine years.

AT THE HOUR he had asked to die, the condemned man was returning to his cell after a breakfast of sweet rolls, cereal, oranges, milk and coffee.

He then had his long talk with Miss Barrett — who also uses the name Nicole Baker. She said Gilmore was in "good spirits. He feels just fine."

Dennis Boaz, Gilmore's lawyer, said the killer told him: "They have married other convicts in prison before. So I don't think they'll stand in my way."

The condemned man's uncle, Vern Damico of Provo, said Gilmore "went to hell" and committed the crimes which landed him on death row after being jilted by Miss Barrett, with whom he lived for a month last summer.

"He started to booze it up a little," Damico said. "I think he reacted just like, well, shortly after that, you see, he got into trouble."

Brazilian local elections seen as vote on regime

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (UPI) — More than 40 million Brazilians voted Monday in municipal elections that cannot overturn President Ernesto Geisel's military government, but were widely considered a referendum on his administration.

A bus loaded with voters en route to a jungle settlement in the Amazon basin plunged into the piranha-infested Urubu (Vulture) river and 38 persons either drowned or were devoured by the man-eating fish.

Witnesses told police the bus plunged into the river Sunday 125 miles east of Manaus and was swept downstream. Rescuers found only a few of the bodies outside the submerged bus. The rest were trapped inside, most of them mutilated by the fish.

Although a bomb exploded outside the office of a left-leaning magazine in Rio Monday morning and a few election-related fights broke out in rural areas, a nationwide check showed the voting went relatively smoothly.

The newspaper Jornal do Brasil and the magazine Visao predicted the only legal opposition party, the Brazilian Democratic Movement, would double the number of mayoralty slots it now controls but that Geisel's Alliance for National Renewal, known as Arena, will keep a 3-1 lead.

All of the elections were for mayors and city councilman in Brazil's 3,968 municipalities. There were no federal posts at stake.

250 Yanks reported living, raising families in Vietnam

MOUNT CLEMENS, Mich. (UPI) — A newspaper Monday quoted letters from an American engineer working in Southeast Asia who said he knows of 250 to 300 Americans listed as missing in action who are working in Vietnam.

The copyrighted story in the Macomb Daily was based on letters from the unidentified engineer to Nelson Amsdill, a former local Veterans of Foreign Wars commander.

Amsdill and several associates met with Vietnamese officials in Paris June 4 to discuss the fate of Americans missing in Southeast Asia. At that time Amsdill said the officials at the Vietnamese embassy indicated there were still Americans living in Vietnam.

THE LETTERS quoted in the suburban Detroit newspaper indicated many MIA's had voluntarily decided to stay in Vietnam after the war ended.

"They do not want to come home because they have families in Vietnam," the newspaper quoted one letter. "What I'm trying to say is that most of the MIA's aren't missing. They are working in and around Hanoi and other cities close to the Chinese border."

That statement in the letter to Amsdill backed a similar claim made before a House committee last September by Mike Mielke, a Vietnam veteran released by the Vietnamese after the fall of Saigon.

Mielke said he had heard of about 200 Americans volunteering to work for the Vietnamese and of a colony of Americans near the Chinese border.

COPIES OF the letters from the engineer in Indonesia have been forwarded to a special House committee invetigating the fate of MIA's, the newspaper said, but to protect his job status the source's name was not revealed in the article.

J. Angus MacDonald, staff director of the House Select Committee on Missing Persons in Southeast Asia, said in Washington that the panel placed "absolutely no credence" in the report. "We got a letter but no names no details and when ze wrote back, there still were no names or details," he said.

(MacDonald said that investigations so far unfortunately indicate that all Americans listed as missing in action are in fact dead although the committee tries to follow up every reasonable lead to the contrary.)

The engineer, in a letter dated Oct. 29, also said he had heard of large numbers of Americans moving into the Saigon area to work just after the end of the war.

"We've talked to reliable men who were the last to leave Saigon after the U.S. evacuation in 1975," the letter quoted by the newspaper said. "Immediately, the Communists moved some American POW's and MIA's into Saigon to work at the abandoned American air bases."

The engineer also said the Soviet embassy in Singapore has been attempting to recruit Americans to operate equipment left behind in the evacuation of Saigon.

THE ARMY CAN HELP YOUR SON OR DAUGHTER SAVE $8100 FOR COLLEGE OVER THE NEXT THREE YEARS.

INTRODUCING A NEW EDUCATIONAL ASSISTANCE PROGRAM.

Starting January 1, 1977, your son or daughter can accumulate up to $8100 for college or vocational-technical school during just 36 months in the Army.

Under this Educational Assistance Program, they can save from $50 to $75 each month, with their savings matched 2 for 1! And that adds up.

FOR EVERY DOLLAR THEY SAVE TOWARD COLLEGE, TWO WILL BE ADDED.

By participating in the new program, a young person gets three dollars back for every dollar saved toward college or vocational-technical school—the dollar saved plus the additional two dollars of matching funds.

If the maximum of $75 a month is saved ($2700 over 36 months), $5400 will be added for a total of $8100. If the minimum of $50 a month is saved ($1800 over 36 months), $3600 will be added for a total of $5400.

HOW DO THEY COLLECT?

Assuming your son or daughter has finished the 36-month enlistment in the Army and has deposited, for example, $75 to the educational fund each month, the $8100 accumulated under the program will be paid in monthly installments of $225 for each month of college or vocational-technical school completed.

If they decide not to continue schooling after the Army, they get back all the money saved. The matching funds will be paid only if used toward completing up to four years of college or vocational-technical school. The extra $5400 matching amount becomes a strong incentive for a young person to continue with school.

THEY CAN ALSO GO TO COLLEGE WHILE IN THE ARMY AND WE PAY UP TO 75% OF THE TUITION.

If your son or daughter enlists in today's Army, all kinds of educational opportunities are open for earning college or vocational-technical credits right on post with the Army paying up to 75% of the tuition. Under Project AHEAD, for example, a young person can enlist in the Army and enroll in college or vocational-technical school at the same time. Over 1400 colleges and universities around the country now participate in Project AHEAD. It's a great chance for a young person to get a jump on the future.

YOUR LOCAL ARMY REPRESENTATIVE IS THE PERSON TO TALK TO NEXT.

This new Educational Assistance Program, along with all of the other educational benefits the Army offers, will help your son or daughter serve their country better as soldiers now, citizens later. There's no better time to start getting that education than now. Your local Army Representative has full details on all the educational and other opportunities for young people in today's Army. Or, if you'd like us to send the information to you, just mail the coupon. Or call 800-431-1976 toll free. In NY, call 800-243-5614.

INTRODUCING A NEW EDUCATIONAL ASSISTANCE PROGRAM.

Starting January 1, 1977, your son or daughter can accumulate up to $8100 for college or vocational-technical school during just 36 months in the Army.

Under this Educational Assistance Program, they can save from $50 to $75 each month, with their savings matched 2 for 1! And that adds up.

FOR EVERY DOLLAR THEY SAVE TOWARD COLLEGE, TWO WILL BE ADDED.

By participating in the new program, a young person gets three dollars back for every dollar saved toward college or vocational-technical school—the dollar saved plus the additional two dollars of matching funds.

If the maximum of $75 a month is saved ($2700 over 36 months), $5400 will be added for a total of $8100. If the minimum of $50 a month is saved ($1800 over 36 months), $3600 will be added for a total of $5400.

HOW DO THEY COLLECT?

Assuming your son or daughter has finished the 36-month enlistment in the Army and has deposited, for example, $75 to the educational fund each month, the $8100 accumulated under the program will be paid in monthly installments of $225 for each month of college or vocational-technical school completed.

If they decide not to continue schooling after the Army, they get back all the money saved. The matching funds will be paid only if used toward completing up to four years of college or vocational-technical school. The extra $5400 matching amount becomes a strong incentive for a young person to continue with school.

THEY CAN ALSO GO TO COLLEGE WHILE IN THE ARMY AND WE PAY UP TO 75% OF THE TUITION.

If your son or daughter enlists in today's Army, all kinds of educational opportunities are open for earning college or vocational-technical credits right on post with the Army paying up to 75% of the tuition. Under Project AHEAD, for example, a young person can enlist in the Army and enroll in college or vocational-technical school at the same time. Over 1400 colleges and universities around the country now participate in Project AHEAD. It's a great chance for a young person to get a jump on the future.

YOUR LOCAL ARMY REPRESENTATIVE IS THE PERSON TO TALK TO NEXT.

This new Educational Assistance Program, along with all of the other educational benefits the Army offers, will help your son or daughter serve their country better as soldiers now, citizens later. There's no better time to start getting that education than now. Your local Army Representative has full details on all the educational and other opportunities for young people in today's Army. Or, if you'd like us to send the information to you, just mail the coupon. Or call 800-431-1976 toll free. In NY, call 800-243-5614.
